

COPYRIGHTS © JAIN VISHVA BHARATI, LADNUN (RAJASTHAN), INDIA

First Published, 1981

Price : Rs. 150.00 US $ 30.00

Printed at : GOYAL OFFSET
Sahazada Bagh, Delhi-110035

Published under the auspices of JAIN VISHVA BHARATI, LADNUN, RAJASTHAN, INDIA
by R. K. JAIN, TODAY & TOMORROW'S PRINTERS AND PUBLISHERS, 24-B/5, Desh Bandhu Gupta Road, Karol Bagh, N. Delhi-110005

Jain Canonical Text Series

Synod Chief :
ĀCĀRYA TULSĪ

Editor, Translator and Commentator :
YUVĀCĀRYA MAHĀPRAJÑA

Jain Canonical Text Series

CONTENTS

| | |
|----------------|------|
| Preface | i—vi |
|----------------|------|

| | |
|---------------------|----------|
| Introduction | vii—xxiv |
|---------------------|----------|

CHAPTER I. COMPREHENSION AND RENUNCIATION OF WEAPONS

| | |
|-----------|------|
| Section I | 1—15 |
|-----------|------|

| | |
|-------------------|---|
| Existence of Soul | 3 |
|-------------------|---|

| | |
|---|----|
| Cause of Influx of Karma Particles | 10 |
|---|----|

| | |
|--------------------|----|
| Stoppage of Influx | 11 |
|--------------------|----|

| | |
|--|----|
| Consequences of Influx of Karma Particles | 12 |
|--|----|

| | |
|--------------------------------|----|
| Fundamental Motives of Actions | 12 |
|--------------------------------|----|

| | |
|--------------------------------------|----|
| Practice of Stoppage of Karma | 14 |
|--------------------------------------|----|

| | |
|------------|-------|
| Section II | 16—27 |
|------------|-------|

| | |
|-----------|----|
| Ignorance | 16 |
|-----------|----|

| | |
|------------------------|----|
| Injury to Earth-beings | 16 |
|------------------------|----|

| | |
|---|----|
| Earth-beings : Their Animation and Experience of Pain | 21 |
|---|----|

| | |
|-------------------------|----|
| Forswearing of Violence | 26 |
|-------------------------|----|

| | |
|-------------|-------|
| Section III | 28—40 |
|-------------|-------|

| | |
|-----------------------|----|
| Dedication to the Aim | 28 |
|-----------------------|----|

| | |
|--|----|
| Existence of the Beings of Water-body and Promise of Non-intimidation to them | 30 |
|--|----|

| | |
|----------------------------------|----|
| Violence to Beings of Water-body | 31 |
|----------------------------------|----|

| | |
|---|----|
| Water-beings : Their Animation and Experience of Pain | 34 |
|---|----|

| | |
|-------------------------|----|
| Forswearing of Violence | 35 |
|-------------------------|----|

| | |
|------------|-------|
| Section IV | 41—49 |
|------------|-------|

| | |
|--------------------------------------|----|
| Existence of the Beings of Fire-body | 41 |
|--------------------------------------|----|

| | |
|---------------------------------|----|
| Violence to Beings of Fire-body | 43 |
|---------------------------------|----|

| | |
|--|-----------|
| Fire-beings : Their Life and Experience of Pain | 47 |
| Forswearing of Violence | 48 |
| Section V | 50—60 |
| Definition of a Monk | 50 |
| A Hypocritical Ascetic | 51 |
| Violence to Beings of Vegetable-body | 53 |
| Vegetable-beings : Their Animation and Experience of Pain | 56 |
| Comparison of Plant Life with Human Life | 58 |
| Forswearing of Violence | 59 |
| Section VI | 61—70 |
| World of Recurrent Transmigration | 61 |
| Violence to Mobile Living Beings | 64 |
| Mobile Living Beings : Their Animation and Experience of Pain | 67 |
| Forswearing of Violence | 69 |
| Section VII | 71—81 |
| Equality of Beings with the Self | 71 |
| Violence to the Beings of Air-body | 73 |
| Air-beings : Their Animation and Experience of Pain | 76 |
| Forswearing of Violence | 78 |
| Admonition to Ascetics | 79 |
| Forswearing of Violence | 81 |

CHAPTER II SUBJUGATION OF THE WORLD (OF PASSIONS)

| | |
|---|------------|
| Section I | 85—93 |
| Attachment | 95 |
| Wakefulness by Contemplation of Being Unprotected | 87 |
| Section II | 95—101 |
| Dispelling Ennuï | 94 |
| The (True) Monk | 96 |
| Use of Violence | 98 |
| Forswearing of Violence | 100 |
| Unattachment | 100 |

| | |
|--|---------|
| Section III | 75b |
| Equality | |
| Acquisitiveness and its Evils | |
| Section IV | 110-116 |
| Evils of Sensuality and Self-indulgent Persons | 110 |
| Section V | 117-132 |
| Non-attachment to Food | 117 |
| Non-attachment to Desire | 122 |
| Remedy of the Maladies | 130 |
| Section VI | 133-345 |
| Renunciation of Acquisitiveness | 133 |
| Conduct of the Unattached One | 137 |
| Behaviour of a Recluse | 138 |
| Liberation from Bondage | 140 |
| On Preaching Sermons | 142 |

CHAPTER III. THE SHIFTING SANDS OF LIFE

| | |
|----------------------------------|---------|
| Section I | 149-155 |
| The Torpid and the Wide-awake | 149 |
| Section II | 156-165 |
| Knowledge of the Supreme Reality | 156 |
| Manifold Desires of Man | 163 |
| Practice of Self-discipline | 164 |
| Section III | 166-173 |
| Spiritual World | 166 |
| Section IV | 174-180 |
| Riddance of Kasāya | 174 |

CHAPTER IV THE TRUTH

| | |
|---|---------|
| Section I | 183-186 |
| The True Doctrine : Non-violence | 183 |
| Section II | 187-194 |
| The Knowledge : Critique of the Doctrine of Ahimsā | 187 |

| | |
|--------------------------|---------|
| Section III | 195—200 |
| Right Austerities | 195 |
| Forswearing of Passions | 199 |
| Section IV | 201—207 |
| Right Ascetic Discipline | 201 |

CHAPTER V. THE ESSENCE IN THE WORLD

| | |
|---|---------|
| Section I | 211—217 |
| Lust | 211 |
| Section II | 218—225 |
| The Path of Vigilance | 218 |
| Acquisitiveness | 223 |
| Section III | 226—236 |
| Non-acquisitiveness and Detachment from Sensual Pleasures | 226 |
| Section IV | 237—247 |
| Practice of Asceticism in Solitariness by an Immature Ascetic | 237 |
| Manner of Moving (For an Ascetic) | 240 |
| Bondage and Riddance of Karma Particles | 241 |
| Practice of Celibacy | 243 |
| Section V | 248—258 |
| Preceptor | 248 |
| Faith | 250 |
| Unbiased Attitude | 253 |
| Non-violence | 255 |
| The Soul | 257 |
| Section VI | 259—266 |
| Guidance | 259 |
| The Practice of Truth | 261 |
| The Immaculate Soul—The Supreme Soul | 263 |

CHAPTER VI. ADVANCED ASCETICISM (DHUTA)

| | |
|------------------------|---------|
| Section I | 269—279 |
| Discourse on Knowledge | 269 |

| | |
|--|-----|
| Dejection amongst sādhakas lacking in Spiritual Insight | 270 |
| Tormentation of Beings by other Beings | 274 |
| Observance of Non-violence in Medical Treatment | 275 |
| The Dhuta of the Abandonment of Relatives | 277 |

| | |
|---|---------|
| Section II | 280—288 |
| The Dhuta of the Abandonment of Karma | 280 |

| | |
|--|---------|
| Section III | 289—297 |
| The Dhuta of the Abandonment of Clothes | 289 |
| The Dhuta of Attenuation of the Body | 292 |
| The Dhuta of Self-discipline | 942 |
| The Dhuta of Humbleness | 296 |

| | |
|--|---------|
| Section IV | 298—303 |
| The Dhuta of Abandonment of Conceit | 298 |

| | |
|---|---------|
| Section V | 304—310 |
| The Dhuta of Forbearance | 304 |
| The Dhuta of Sermons | 305 |
| The Dhuta of Freedom from Passions | 307 |

CHAPTER VIII. EMANCIPATION

| | |
|------------------------|---------|
| Section I | 313—323 |
| Avoiding Heretics | 313 |
| Improper Conduct | 315 |
| Viveka (wisdom) | 319 |
| Aluṃsā | 322 |

| | |
|------------------------|---------|
| Section II | 324—329 |
| Avoiding the Forbidden | 324 |

| | |
|---|---------|
| Section III | |
| Initiation into Ascetic Life | 330—335 |
| Abandonment of Possessiveness by Ascetics | 331 |
| The Purpose of Monk's Nourishment | 332 |
| Forswearing the Use of Fire | 334 |

| | |
|-------------------------------|---------|
| Section IV | 336—342 |
| The Relinquishment of Clothes | 336 |
| Abandonment of Body | 340 |

| | |
|--|----------------|
| Section V | 343—349 |
| The Relinquishment of Clothes | 343 |
| Abandonment of Food by an Ailing Monk | 346 |
| Rules for Service | 347 |
| Section VI | 350—358 |
| Abandonment of Clothes | 350 |
| Contemplation of Solitariness | 352 |
| Eschewing Taste | 353 |
| Conscious Preparation for Death | 355 |
| Fast unto Death Called Imḡi (Itvarika) | 356 |
| Section VII | 359—366 |
| The Relinquishment of Clothes | 359 |
| Rules for Service | 361 |
| Fasting upto Death called Prāyopagamana | 364 |
| Section VIII | 367—378 |
| Fast unto Death | 367 |
| Bhakta-pratyākhyāna | 369 |
| Imḡi Maṛana | 373 |
| Prāyopagamana | 376 |

CHAPTER IX. THE EXCELLENCE OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

| | |
|--|----------------|
| Section I | 381—394 |
| The Rambles of Bhagavān Mahāvīra | 381 |
| Section II | 395—401 |
| Bhagavān Mahāvīra's Seats and Retreats | 395 |
| Section III | 402—408 |
| Bhagavān Mahāvīra's Endurance of Hardships | 402 |
| Section IV | 409—415 |
| Abandonment of Medication by Bhagavān Mahāvīra | 409 |
| Dietary Routine | 411 |
| Word-index (Glossary) | 417 |
| Subject-index | 430 |

PREFACE

The Āyāro (Skt. ĀCĀRĀṄGA SŪTRA) begins with the quest for the soul. Even as the starting point of the philosophy of Vedānta is the Sūtra: athāto brahma-jīgñāsā "Now begins the quest for the Supreme Reality (Brahmā)"¹, the starting point of Jain Philosophy is athāto ātma-jīgñāsā "Now begins the quest for the soul."

Meaning of Ācāra: That the soul exists, that it is eternal as well as ephemeral, that it itself is the doer of actions as well as the enjoyer of their fruits, that there is "bondage" and there are causes of it; that there is "liberation" and there are means to attain it — these are the basic principles on which rests the edifice of the Jain Ethics or ācāra. As the Ācārāṅga elucidates all these, it may be spoken of as a treatise on ācāra or spiritual conduct.

According to Jain philosophy, neither mere knowledge of philosophy nor mere practice of moral conduct can help one to attain liberation. It is the proper synthesis of both — knowledge and conduct — that leads to the final emancipation². It is, therefore, not possible to keep these two in watertight compartments. The present canonical text, however, mainly deals with the ācāra, and hence it may be spoken of as the "Book of ācāra".

The term ācāra, as it was used by Bhagavān Mahāvīra, does not connote mere moral conduct, but it was used in a wider sense. According to him, ācāra is of five kinds, viz., knowledge, faith, self-discipline, austerities and spiritual exertion. Thus it is clear that ācāra includes all the three — knowledge, faith as well as self-discipline (or spiritual conduct), which are the right means of achieving liberation.

1. Brahma-Sūtra , 1/1.

2. Sūyagado, 1/12/11: Āhaṃsu vijjācaraṇaṃ paṃokkhaṃ.

As the Ācārāṅga Sūtra describes the means of achieving liberation, it has been called the essence of the entire Jain Instruction³.

Samatva which stands for the practice of both "Equanimity" and Equality" forms the basis of the science of ethics prescribed by Bhagvān Mahāvīra. That is why, the Ācārāṅga Sūtra states that one who perceives "equality" in all living beings and observes "equanimity" in all sorts of various opposite situations created by gain and loss, pleasure and pain, living and dying, applause and condemnation, and honour and insult, would never indulge in any action which is against the ethical code *sammatta-damśi na karei pavā n*⁴.

Performance and Renunciation of Karma: The karma-yoga i. e., disciplined performance of action and the karma-sannyāsa i. e., renunciation of action have been the subject of debate for thousand of years in Indian systems of religion, all of which have enjoined the renunciation and performance of karma in a smaller or greater degree. When the *Bhagavad-Gītā*⁵ sings: "na hi dehabhṛtā śakyam tyaktuṃ karmāṇyaśeṣataḥ", "No living organism bound in bodily existence can renounce karma completely", it strikes the right note. In light of the fact that the body and activity are inseparable, we can speak of the renunciation of karma only in a very limited sense. How then can renunciation be defined? Various criteria of renunciation have been laid down to answer this question. For instance, the Āyāro draws a line of demarcation between the spiritually disciplined and undisciplined actions, and defines renunciation as relinquishment of the latter⁶. And the Gītā explains renunciation in terms of giving up of attachment to actions and desire for their fruits.

3. Ācārāṅga Nirvyūkti, verse 9: "Ittha ya mokhovāo esa ya sāro pavayaṇassa,"

4. Āyāro, 3/28.

5. Gītā, 18/11.

6. Āyāro, 1/7

One may see verbal difference in the above definitions, but it would not be right to infer that they differ in meaning. For performance of actions infused with attachment and desire for the fruit amounts to spiritually indisciplined actions. Thus both the Āyāro and the *Gītā*⁷ extol the same ideal of renunciation. Yet it is strange that two different traditions have evolved from the philosophies of the two sacred texts. The tradition based on the Gītā lays emphasis on idea of performing actions, but does not seem to give weight to the idea of giving up attachment and desire for gaining fruits of actions. On the other hand, the tradition that emerged on the basis of the Āyāro seems to have given stress on mere renunciation of actions but failed to give proper weight to the idea of renunciation of attachment, aversion and desire. Thus both the traditions had originally accepted the same ideal, but in course of time they began to proceed in different directions, and the verbal differences made them appear different.

Bhagavān Mahāvīra, however, never insisted on the renunciation of all actions in the very first step of Sādhana. For the beginners he emphasised the need for purifying actions. The *Āyārācūlā*⁸ (i.e. the appendix to the Āyāro) explains Bhagavān Mahāvīra's position in the following words:-

7. Gītā, 18/9:

Kāryamūṭyeva yatkarma, niyatam kriyateṛjuna!
Saṅgaṃ tyaktvā phalaṃ caiva, sa tyāgaḥ sāttviko mataḥ.

8. Āyārācūlā, 15/72-76 :

na sakkā na soum saddā, soyavisayamāgatā,
rāgadosā u je tattha, te bhikkhū parivajjae.
no sakkā rūvamaḍaṭṭhuṃ, cakkhuvisayamāgayam,
rāgadosā u je tattha, te bhikkhū parivajjae.
no sakkā na gamdhamagghāum, nāsāvisayamāgayam,
rāgadosā u je tattha, te bhikkhū parivajjae.
no sakkā na rasamanāsāum, jhāvisayamāgayam,
rāgadosā u je tattha, te bhikkhū parivajjae.
no sakkā na samvedeum, phāsavisayamāgayam,
rāgadosā u je tattha, te bhikkhū parivajjae.

"It is impossible not to hear words within the reach of the sense of hearing, but it is possible not to be attached or averse to them. An ascetic should not, therefore, be a victim of attachment and aversion to the objects of the sense of hearing. Similarly, it is impossible not to smell, taste, see and touch objects within the reach of the sense-organs of smell, taste, sight and touch, but it is possible to give up attachment and aversion to them. The ascetic should not, therefore, become a victim of attachment and aversion.

Ascetic conduct (ācāra) consists in doing actions unmotivated by attachment and aversion. According to the Ācārāṅga,⁹ that man is deemed to be the possessor of right knowledge whose actions are not sullied with attachment or aversion. Bhagavān Mahāvīra has expounded several forms of such conduct. The foremost among them is ahimsā or non-violence. The first chapter of the Ācārāṅga deals with this theme at length. The ensuing chapters give directions in regard to the cultivation of feelings of non-violence, non-possessiveness, celibacy, non-attachment, truth, etc. This code of conduct may in fact be spoken of as the 'code of equanimity'.

Lord Mahāvīra was the propounder of the philosophy of equanimity. He showed how human life could be transformed in the light of this doctrine. He did not forcibly impose any discipline on his followers, but allowed them the freedom of choice. He said, "One who sees things needs no instruction."¹⁰ "One who has the right vision begins to see the world and himself in a different light."¹¹ Aṃmahā naṃ pāsae pariharejjā."

9. Āyāro, 1/13 :

jassete logaṃsī kamma-samarāmbhā pariṇṇāyā bhavaṃti se hu muṇi pariṇṇāyakamme.

10. Āyāro, 2/85 .

uddeso pāsagassa naṭṭhi.

11. Āyāro, 2/118.

It gives me very great pleasure to see this great code of conduct based on the philosophy of transforming life in the light of the concept of equanimity published on the eve of the Twentyfifth Centenary of Bhagavān Mahāvīra.

— Acharya Tulsi

INTRODUCTION

1. The first Śrutaskandha of the Āyāro represents an early phase of the ascetic ideology, and the language and metres of the work are directly derived from the Vedic idiom. The terminology used in the text is related to an earlier state of Nirgranthism and is at the same time the harbinger of its later development as a system of morality and religion with its own definite disciplinary code. The text opens with a passage which embodies the perennial concern of philosophers, doubts that embarrass their minds. The cosmic doubt of the Vedic seer—kuta ājātā kuta iyaṃ viśṛṣṭīḥ (from whence did it sprout forth, from whence did this creation emanate?)—finds its counterpart in the Āyāro's query about the self—*ke ahaṃ āsī, ke vā cute peccā bhavissāmi*² (what was I, what shall I be in the next birth after departure from here?)—which is reminiscent of a heresy recorded in the *Majjhima Nikāya*³—aṃ nu kho satto kuto āgato, so kuhingāmi bhavissati (wherefrom indeed this being come, where shall he go?). Mortification of the flesh for the regeneration of the spirit is the quintessence of the philosophy of the Āyāro which is replete with exhortations to the spiritual aspirant to subjugate the passions through infinite endurance of hardships and relinquishment of wordly interests. "Stoutly tolerating the (unpleasant) sound and touch and subduing the lust for life, the saint, true to his saintliness, mortifies his body born of past karma; he subsists on the stale and insipid (food), being courageous and equanimous; he is indeed the saint, who has crossed the flood and is rightly designated as one 'who has crossed', 'who is emancipated', 'who has withdrawn himself'—thus do I say"⁴. In fact, the biography of Mahāvīra in the Āyāro, chapter IX, which undoubtedly is

1. Ṛgveda, X, 129. 6

2. 1, 1, 1. 2.

3. I, p. 12 (NNMEdn).

4. Āyāro, I, 2. 6. 161-5

the oldest and at the same time absolutely free from mythology, is an illustration of the extreme type of asceticism adumbrated in the text. We shall see in what follows the religio-moral spirit that characterized the age of Mahāvīra and has found vent through the pithy sayings and pregnant expressions which are so abundant in the work under review.

2. Now to come to the pithy sayings, they cover a large number of themes, namely, rejection of violence or non-violence, bondage and emancipation, fearlessness, friendship, attachment to life, ātman in its empirical and transcendental aspects, mysticism, renunciation, asceticism, clusters of essentially connected concepts, prophetic injunctions (praṇīṭāpanā), and such other subjects which offer copious insight into the moral and spiritual background of Mahāvīra's teachings.

(i) Non-violence: The man of violence (daṇḍa) is indeed he who is unmindful and addicted to wordly pleasures⁵. Above, below, and in front, people indulge in violent activities against living beings individually and collectively in many ways; discerning this, a wise man neither himself inflicts violence on these bodies, nor induces others to do so, nor approves of their doing so⁶. The unwise are sleeping, the wise are awake; know that pain is the cause of evil in the world; knowing the welfare of the world, one should eschew weapons of violence⁷.

saddhe ya phāse ahiyāsanaṭṭha jīvuvinda naṇḍaṇi iha jīviyassa muṇi moṇaṇi samādāya, dhuge kamma-sarīraṇaṇi paṇḍitaṇi lūhaṇi sevanti virū samattadamsu esa oghaṇḍare muṇi, tassa mulle virale, viyāhile iti bema

5. Ibid. I, 1.4. 68-69.

viṇeḥaṇi ayaṇi abhibbāya dūṭṭhaṇi, saṇṇatehūṇi sayā jatehūṇi sayā appamattēhūṇi je pamatte gūṇattē, se hu daṇḍe pavuccati

6. Ibid. I, 8.1.17-18

udḍhaṇi ahaṇi turīyaṇi disāsu, savvato savvāvantaṇi ca ṇaṇi paḍiyakkhaṇi jivehūṇi kamma-samāraṇbhe ṇaṇi taṇi pariṇāya meḥāvi neva sayāṇi etehūṇi kīehūṇi daṇḍaṇi samāraṇbhe-jṇā, nevaṇneḥūṇi etehūṇi kīehūṇi daṇḍaṇi samāraṇbbhāvejjā, nevaṇne etehūṇi kīehūṇi daṇḍaṇi samāraṇbbhaṇte vi samapujāṇeja

7. Ibid. I, 3.1.1-3.

suttā amuṇi saṇḍā, muppa sayā jāgaranti, loyaṇaṇi jāṇa ahiyāya dukkhaṇi, samayaṇi loḥassa jāṇitā, ettha satthovarae

(ii) Bondage and Emancipation: Bondage and emancipation are within yourself - *bandha-pamokkho tujjha ajjhatheva*⁸. Blinded and immersed in worldly pleasures, the fool with bondage unsevered and attachment not cut off, dwells in darkness, being ignorant, and is never able to get at the command⁹. Attached to things sensual, they bewail bitterly, and on account of desires, fail to get at emancipation¹⁰. Man! restrain thyself, and thus thou shalt be emancipated from suffering¹¹.

(iii) Fearlessness: The unmindful is beset with fear on all sides; for the mindful, there is no fear from any side¹².

(iv) Friendship: Man! thou art thy own friend, why wishest thou for a friend beyond thyself¹³.

(v) Attachment to Life: All beings are fond of life, they like pleasure, dislike pain, disfavour injury, wish for long life, long for survival; life is dear to all¹⁴.

(vi) Ātman in its Empirical and Transcendental Aspects: There are beings who are blind, sunk in darkness; they experience ups and downs, indulging in an activity (anew) for the first time, or repeating it many times¹⁵. Having con-

8. ibid. I, 5. 2. 36.

9. ibid. I, 4. 4. 45
petthun palichannehup, āyāsoya-gaḍhīe bāle avvoccunnabandhā, aṇahikkampassaṇṇo, tamaṇṇi avyāpāro āpāse lābhho gattū ti bemi

10. ibid. I, 6. 1. 7
rūvehun sattā kalupam thapamti, piyāpāro te na labhamti mokkham

11. ibid. I, 3. 3. 64

purisā! attānameva abhinigijjha, evaṃ dukkhā pamokkhasi

12. ibid. I, 3. 4. 75

savvato pamattassa bhayaṃ, savvato appamattassa natthi bhayaṃ

13. ibid. I, 3. 3. 62

purisā! tumameva tumam mittam, kum bahiyā mittamucchasi?

14. ibid. I, 2. 3. 63-

savve pāpā piyāyā suhasāyā dukkhaḍḍikūlā appiyavahā piyajīvaṃ jīviukāmā savvesuṃ jīviyaṃ piyaṃ

15. ibid. I, 6. 1. 9-10.

samti pāpā apidhā tamaṇṇi viyāṇiyā tāmeva samti atacca uccāvayaphāse paḍisaṃvedenti

tained the stream, leaving the world, the great (soul) becomes free from karma and knows and perceives (the truth) and does not desire (anything), being introspective; having comprehended the coming and going, he crosses the path of birth and death, being established in perfection (viz. the state of emancipation)¹⁶. For the seer, there is no need of instruction¹⁷. Of one who is free from karma there exists no description. It is karma that gives rise to (the necessity of) imposition (of characteristics)¹⁸.

(vii) Mysticism. The wise is neither bound nor liberated¹⁹. The ātman is the knower, and the knower is the ātman: that by which one knows is the *ātman*²⁰. The liberated state is not expressible through language; nor is it amenable to reasoning; intellect does not penetrate there; the passionless (ātman) is conversant with the nature of 'what is without support' (viz. emancipation); he is neither long nor small. neither feminine nor masculine nor otherwise (neuter) there is no analogy; it is formless existence; there is no condition of the unconditioned²¹.

(viii) Renunciation: Such person is rightly called 'houseless' who is straightforward, follows the right path, and

16. ibid. I, 5. 6. 120-122

viṇaṇṇe soyaṃ piṭṭhamma, esa mahāṃ akammā jāpati pāsati paṭilehāe pāvakaṃkhati, iha āgatiṃ gatiṃ pariṇāya acceti jāi-maraṇassa vaṇṇamaggaṃ vakkhāya-rae

17. ibid. I, 2. 3. 73

uddeso pāsagassa ṇatthi

18. ibid. I, 3. 1. 18-19;

akammassa vavahāro na vijjai
kammupā uvāhi jāya

19. ibid. I, 2. 6. 182

kusale puṇa ṇo baddhe, ṇo mukke

20. ibid. I, 5. 5. 104

je āyā se viṇṇāyā, je viṇṇāyā se āyā, jeṇa vijāpati se āyā

21. ibid. I, 5. 6. 123-140

savve sarā piyaṇṇanti takkā tattha ṇa vijjai maṭṭa tattha ṇa gāmyā oe appatitthānassa kheyanne se na dihe, na hasse ṇa itthi, ṇa purise, ṇa aṇṇahā.
uvamā ṇa vijjai
arūvi satti
apayassa payaṃ ṇatthi

attachment; men are bound by fetters, sunk in spirit and overpowered by lust; be not, therefore, afraid of hardship. He who is perfectly and completely enlightened about the acts of violence and from whom even his robbers do not fear harm, is indeed one who has shaken off anger, pride, deceit and greed; he is indeed worthy being called 'the metamorphosed one' — thus I say. Such person, on account of his renunciation of the body, is considered as standing 'in the forefront of the battle'. He is indeed the sage who has reached the other side. Even on being killed, he stands still like a beam approached by death, courting death as the dissolution of the body — thus I say"²⁶. This discipline unto death finds its consummation in the eighth chapter called the Vimoha-Ajjhayaṇa (chapter on liberation).

(x) The Clusters of Essentially Connected Concepts: Our text contains clusters of words connoting similar concepts which throw a flood of light on the evolution of those concepts—the history of their origin and the later course of their development. Thus, for instance, the cluster—āyāvādi, logāvādi, kammāvādi, kiriyāvādi (respectively, believers in soul, world, karma, action)²⁷ represents the early stage of the doctrine of soul and rebirth in Indian philosophy. Similarly, the bunch—pāṇa (breathing), bhūta (existing), jīva (living), satta (sentient-creature)²⁸ — indicates the divergent conceptions of the principle of soul in our ancient thought. On the other hand, the group—gaṇṭha (bondage), moha (delusion), māra (death), niraya (hell)²⁹—

26. Ibid. I, 6.5.108-113

tamhā saṅgam ti pāsaha, gaṇṭhehiṃ gaḍhiyā parā viṣaṇṇā kāma viṇṇā. tamhā lūhko ṇo parivittasajjā, jessime ārambhā savvato savvattise supariṇṇāyā bhavaṇṇi jessime lūhino ṇo parivittasajjā, se vappā kohaṇṇ ca māṇam ca māyaṇṇ ca lobhaṇṇ ca esa tuṭṭe viyāhite tti bemi kāyassa viovāe esa saṃgāmaṇṇe viyāṇe, se hu pāraṇṇame muniṇṇ avī haṇṇamaṇṇe phalaḡāvayaṇṇi kahoṇṇaṇṇe kaṇṭhejja kālāṇṇ jāva sarīraṇṇhe tti bemi.

27. Ibid. I, 1.1.6:

se āyāvādi logāvādi kammāvādi kiriyāvādi.

28. Ibid. I, 4.1.1.

29. Ibid. I, 1.5.134.

stands for the cause as well as the state of worldly life in the earlier phase of the ancient religions of our country. In I. 2. 4. 92, the terms dukkha (suffering) and naraga-tirikkha (hell-animal) are found added. The cluster—ātavaṃ, nāṇavaṃ, veyavaṃ, dhammavaṃ, baṃbhavaṃ (respectively, established in ātman, knowledge, Vedas, dharma, Brahmana)³⁰ refers to the state of interaction of the Brāhmaṇa and Śramaṇa cultures, which gave rise to an integrated Indian culture in later times. The highest achievements of the spiritual aspirant are grouped together in the bunch—sāṃti (peace), virati (abstinence), wasama (calmness), ñivvāṇa (liberation), soyaviya (purity), ajjaviya (uprightness), maddaviya (modesty), lāghaviya (lightness), aṇaṭṭi-vattiya (non-transgression)³¹. The cluster—hiyaṃ (good), suhaṃ (blissful), khemaṃ (wholesome), nissesaṃ (complete), aṇugāmiyaṃ (favourable)³² represents the different aspects of the ancient concept of the highest good, the summum bonum of the spiritual disciplines. The firm conviction about a particular doctrine was expressed by any of these words—ditthi (view), mutti (faith, Cf. Pāli adhimutti), purakkāra (dominant idea), saṃṇa (notion), nivesana (persuasion)³³.

(xi) Prophetic Injections (Paṇḍavaṇā): Our text contains a few excerpts which are given as universal injunctions of the Exalted Ones, past, present, and future. These passages are definitely of very great antiquity, if not the words of the Nāyaputta himself. One such excerpt is given at the very outset of Chapter IV, called Sammatta-Ajjhayana. It runs as follows: Thus do I say—the *Arahant*s (the Revered Ones) and the *Bhagavanta*s (the Lords) of the past, present and future, all say thus, speak thus, enjoin thus (evaṃ paṇḍavaṇte), explain thus—all breathing, all existing, all living, all sentient creatures should not be killed, nor treated with violence, nor abused, nor tormented, nor driven away. This is the discipline which is pure, eternal, inalterable, and declared by the enlightened ones who have

30. Ibid. I, 3. 1. 4.

31. Ibid. I, 6. 5. 102.

32. Ibid. I, 8. 4. 61.

33. Ibid. I, 5. 4. 68.

comprehended (the nature of) the world³⁴. Non-violence is always the theme of these injunctions.

3. Our text provides a vivid picture of the ascetic life that dominated the society of the days of Mahāvīra and Buddha. Some of the expressions used in the text are, in fact, the prototypes of what we find enunciated in the systematic works of early Jainism and Buddhism. The moral and monastic discipline of the Jainas which was codified in later times are discernible here in a rudimentary form couched in expressions which are pregnant with principles that served as a bridge between the ascetic codes of the pre- and post-Mahāvīra periods. Even the five Mahāvratas (great vows) which have the universal sanction of all schools of Indian philosophers are here only in the process of evolution. There are also ideas and concepts that gave way to their nearby counterparts which gained currency in the changed set-up. We shall here study a number of such amorphous expressions to see how they contributed to the evolution of concepts which later on became static and solid in their connotation.

(1) The Five Mahāvratas (Great Vows): Of the five mahāvratas of later days, the first, viz. ahimsā, has found place in our text in numerous contexts, and is indeed the persistent theme dominating over all other principles that constituted the moral life of those times. All types of himsā perpetrated on all kinds of beings, beginning from the one-sensed organisms up to the fully developed five-sensed beings, are condemned. The words damḍa (panel instrument) and saṭṭha (weapon of violence) are repeatedly used to denote violence. A person who is careless (pamattie) in his conduct and is engrossed in sensual pleasures (gumattḥite) is called damḍa (panel instrument)³⁵. All suffering is due

34. ibid. I, 4.1.1.

se bemi-je ya ayiṣṣa je ya paḍappampā je ya āgamaṣṣa arahaṃti bhagavaṃto te savve evaṃsikkhaṃti, evaṃ bhāsaṃti, evaṃ paṇavaṃti, evaṃ parivēṃti-savve paṇā savve bhūtā savve jīvā savve sattā pa hantavvā, pa ajjāveyavvā, pa parighettavvā, pa paritōveyavvā, pa uddavayavvā, esa dhamme suddhe piye sāsae samicca loyaṃ kheyayāṇehiṇ pavasiye.

35. ibid. I, 1.4.69.

je pamattie gumattḥie, se hu damḍe pavuccati.

to himsā qua-ārambha (violent action)³⁶. The word sacca (truth) which is the designation of the second mahāvratā is used with a special connotation in our text. Sacca stands for the word of the Enlightened One, that is, the discipline propounded by Him³⁷, and not simply 'desisting from falsehood'. The third traditional mahāvratā, viz. (desisting from) adivṇādāṇa (unauthorized appropriation) is mentioned immediately after (desisting from) sattha (weapon of violence)³⁸. This second position occupied by the traditionally third mahāvratā tallies with the Buddhist custom of placing it at the second place in the list of śīlas. As regards the traditional mahāvratā of brahmācārya (celibacy), our text usually mentions it as 'vasitā bāmbhaceraṃsi' (practising monkhood, literally 'living in chastity')³⁹. It is also used singly on one occasion⁴⁰. The use of the expression 'bāmbhavaṃ' as synonymous with 'dhammavaṃ' also points to a wider connotation of the word 'bāmbhacera'⁴¹. The mahāvratā of aparigraha (non-possession of property) is stated through the phrase 'pariggahaṃ amama-yamaṃ' (not attached to the possessions)⁴², which does not formulate the vow in the fashion of its traditional definition. The indefinite nature of this vow in the Buddhist tradition confirms the position of our text in the matter. This review of the state of mahāvratas in the first Śrutakāṇḍha of the Āyūro clearly demonstrates the uncrystallized forms of the great vows in those days. A passage of the Āyūro deserves our consideration in this connection. It mentions a discipline of three *jāmas*⁴³, which, if explained in the context of sūtras I. 8. 1. 3-5, might stand for ārambhayaṃ dukkhamayaṃ ti gacchā.

36. Ibid. I, 3. 1. 13 & 4. 3. 29.

37. Ibid. I, 5. 5. 95

tameva saccam piṣaṃkamaṃ jaṃ jigeḥaṃ pavayaṃ.

38. Ibid. I, 1. 3. 58 & I, 8. 1. 4.

aduvā adivṇādāṇaṃ;

aduvā adivṇamāyayaṃ

39. Ibid. I, 4. 4. 44; I, 6. 2. 30 & I, 6. 4. 78.

40. Ibid. I, 5. 2. 35;

etesu ceva bāmbhaceraṃ ti bema

41. Ibid. I, 3. 1. 4.

42. Ibid. I, 2. 5. 88.

43. Ibid. I, 8. 1. 15

jāmaṃ tippaṃ udāhayaṃ

the great vows of pāṇāṭyāo veramaṇaṃ (desisting from killing), adīṇṇādānāo veramaṇaṃ (desisting from theft) and musāvāyāo veramaṇaṃ (desisting from false speech), the meaning of musāvāya being analogous to that given in the Tattavārthabhāṣya, VII. 9, which appears to be a faithful record of the original content of the vow. These sūtras run as follows:

(3) ihamegesim āyāragoyare ṇo suṇisaṃte bhavati, te iha āraṃbhaṭṭhi aṇuwayamāṇā haṇamāṇā, ghāyamāṇā, haṇato jāvī samaṇuṇāṇamāṇā; (4) aduṇā adīṇṇamāyanti; (5) aduṇā vāyāo viṇṇanti, taṃ jahā — atthi loe, natthi loe, dhuve loe, adhuve loe.... That is "(3) Some people are not well instructed as regards the subject of conduct; they are desirous of actions, repeat them in words, they kill (creatures), make others kill and approve of (such acts); (4) or, they take what has not been given to them; (5) or, they pronounce divergent opinions, viz., 'the world exists', 'the world does not exist', 'the world is eternal', 'the world is non-eternal', and so on." Here the content of the sūtra no. 5 may be interpreted as standing for musāvāya (false speech) of later times, and we have the Tattavārthabhāṣya, VII. 9, which explains the vow in a similar fashion, to endorse such interpretation. The traditional great vows as reflected in our text are thus the precursors of the classical codification of the subject in the other Āgamas and the treatises. The word 'vrata' (vow) is also conspicuous by its absence in our text.

(11) The Mārga (path): The classical definition of the moksa-mārga (path of emancipation) is consisting in samyag-dārsana (right view), samyag-jñāna (right knowledge) and samyak-cāritra (right conduct) is absent. A very simple, though immensely poignant, description of the path of emancipation has found vent in the statement: se kiṇṇati tesim samuṭṭhiṇāṇaṃ nikkhattadaṇḍāṇaṃ samāhiṭṭāṇaṃ paṇḍāṇamaṇṭṭāṇaṃ iha muttimaggam (He, the Exalted One, here propounds the path of emancipation to those who are exerting their spiritual vigour, have given up weapons of violence, are practising meditation, and are full of penetrating wisdom)⁴⁴. The spiritual vigour, mentioned here, stands for vīrya (energy) which is the sine qua non of all spiritual activity, rejection of violence is the epitome of the śīlas, and the elements of saṃādhi (meditation) and prajñā (penetrating wisdom) are clearly mentioned in the statement. Śīla, saṃādhi and prajñā, which are traditionally known as constituting the Buddhist path of emancipation, are thus succinct in the above description. As regards the samyag-darśana of Jainism, it is expressed by the term damsaṇa in the following passage; se vaṃtā koḥaṃ ca māyaṃ ca māyaṃ ca lobham ca; etam pāssagassa damsāṇam uwaratasatthassa paṭiyamtakarassa āyāṇam sagaḍabbhi (he conquers anger, pride, deceit, and greed; thus is the view of the seer who desists from weapons of violence, has put an end to the sources (of saṃsāra), being the destroyer of his karmas)⁴⁵. In another passage⁴⁶ the items of pejja (lust), doṣa (hatred), moha (delusion), gabbha (womb), jamma (birth), māra (death), naraga (hell), tiriya (animal) and dukkha (suffering) are to be conquered for attaining the right view. On yet another occasion⁴⁷ this damsaṇa (view) is identified with ditṭhi (view), mutti (faith), etc., which leaves no doubt that the concept is the forerunner of the samyag-darśana or samyag-dṛṣṭi in the system of Jain ethics. As for the samyag-jñāna, the expression paṇṇāna (Skt. Prajñāna), mentioned above, is the prototype which is represented by the Pali word 'paññā'. As regards samyak-cāritra, the statements—ahege dhammamādāya āyāṇappabhiṃ supaṇ-ṭhīe care apaliyamāṇe daḍhe savvaṃ gehiṃ paṇṇāya (having embraced the dhamma one should practise it from the very beginning with extreme precaution and firmness, not succumbing (to worldly things), fully abandoning all lust⁴⁸, vaḍḍiṭṭe ajjhappasaṃvuḍḍe parivajjāe sadā pāvamaṃ (being reserved in his speech and guarding his mind, he should always avoid sin)⁴⁹, and the like contain the rudiments of the system of moral conduct formulated later on. The concept of mārga (path) thus is represented in our text through a terminology which is most popular in character and far away from the later crystallization in the systematic treatises dealing with the topic.

44. ibid. I, 6.1.3.

45. Ibid. I, 3. 4. 71-73.

46. Ibid. I, 3. 4. 83.

47. Ibid. I, 5. 4. 87-88.

48. Ibid. I, 6. 2. 35-37.

49. Ibid. I, 5. 4. 87.

(iii) Āsava: The expression āsava is used in the sense of hardship to be borne by an ascetic. "Even if the creatures injure the body, he should not move from the place; he should endure (with patience), being afflicted with different types of āsavas (hardships)"⁵⁰. This is also exactly the meaning of the Pali word 'āsava' in the phrase- adhiṇvāsanaṁ pahātābbaṁ āsavā (the hardships which are to be got rid of through endurance)⁵¹. The word is used in this very sense in the phrase- je āsavā te pariṣsavā, je pariṣsavā te āsavā (what is hardship is privation, what is privation is hardship)⁵². The meaning of the word pariṣsavā in this phrase is analogous to that of the Pali word pariṣsayā which stands for the privation of hunger, heat, cold, insect-bites, and so on⁵³. This reminds us of the pariśahas in the second chapter of the Uttarajjhayaṇa. The expression āsava gradually underwent a great semantic change in the ethical system of the Jainas.

(iv) Nivvāṇa, Parinivvāṇa, Pamokkha: We have already given the synonyms of ṇuvvāṇa in 2 (X) which unequivocally indicate a state of spiritual peace and tranquillity and pliability of body and mind. The expression ṇivvuḍa or ṇuvvuta which are past participles of ṇuvvāṇa stands for a person who desists from sinful activities and is free from all desires⁵⁴. The expression parinivvāṇa however is used to denote freedom from fear and suffering⁵⁵, the past participle 'parinivvuḍa' standing for the state of being a source of fearlessness and freedom from attachment and animosity⁵⁶, the expression pamokkha refers to deliverance from suffering *dukkhā pamokkhasi*⁵⁷ or death (marañā

50. ibid. I, 8.8.40.

pāṇā dehaṁ vihuṇṇasamṭi, thāṇhō ṇa viubbhame āsavehuṁ vivuttehuṁ tippamāṇehiyāsae.

51. Majjhima Nikāya, I, p. 15 (NNM Edn.)

52. Āyāro, I, 4.2.12.

53. Suttanipāṭa (Sāriputtasutta)

54. Āyāro, I, 4.3.38 & I, 8.1.16.

je ṇivvuḍaṁ pāvehuṁ kammehuṁ, aṇḍiṇṇā te viyāṇvā

55. ibid. I, 1.6.121.

ṇijjhāttaṁ paḍahehitaṁ patteyaṁ parinivvāṇaṁ.

56. ibid. I, 6.5.107.

57. ibid. I, 3.1.8. & I, 3.3.64.

pamuccati)⁵⁸. Nivvāṇa and its equivalents thus primarily stand for emancipation from suffering, and not for any positive condition of unimpeded bliss as the later thinkers try to interpret them.

(v) Samdhi: The word appears as standing for the 'juncture' of birth and death, and is perhaps the precursor of the concept of pratisamdhi (rebirth). The expression rūvasamdhi (material juncture, or the meeting point of matter and spirit) in the following passage clinches the issue: "Those who are not addicted to sinful activities might be liable to calamities, but the steadfast will bear them. As in the past so in the future, the body is (always) subject to change and destruction, unstable, transient, non-eternal, fattening and defattening, and of a changeable nature; ~~ex-~~^{per-}ceive this material juncture (rūvasamdhi). For him who looks at things rightly, is devoted to one purpose, is disentangled and detached, there is no passage (from birth to birth)"⁵⁹. One who has searched out the (proper) moment (khaṇa) of the body has identified the juncture (samdhi)⁶⁰. The phrases macciehiṃ samdhiṃ (juncture with the mortal ones)⁶¹, loḡassa samdhiṃ (juncture of the world)⁶², and samdhi jhosito (the juncture destroyed)⁶³ confirm our conjecture about the connotation of the expression 'samdhi'. The expressions 'saṃga' and 'saṃyoga' are also used in similar sense. Thus we have 'āvaṇṇasoe saṃgamabhijjānati (he knows the connection in the current of the whirl)⁶⁴, 'ete soya vīyakkhātā jehiṃ saṃgaṃ ti pāsahū (these have been declared to be the currents, look at the connection

58. ibid. I, 3.1.15 & 3.2.36

59. ibid. I, 5 2.28-30

je asatī pāvehuṃ kammehiṃ, udāhu te āyapkā phusaṃti ita udāhu vīre te phāse puṭṭho hiyāse se purvvaṃ peyaṃ paccehī peyaṃ bheura-dhammaṃ.
viddhammaṃ-dhammaṃ, adhuvaṃ, apitiyaṃ, asāsayap, cayaṇvacariyaṃ, vipariyāma-dhammaṃ, pāsaha eyaṃ rūvaṃ.
samdhiṃ samuppehamāssa egāyataṃ-rayassa iha vipparamukkaṃ, ṇatthu magge virayassa tū bema.

60. ibid. I, 3.2. 20-21.

ayaṃ samdhī ti adakkhu je māsā viggahassa ayaṃ khaṇeti māṇesi.

61. ibid. I 2.5.127.

62. ibid. I. 3.3.51

63. ibid. I. 5 J. 41 & I 5.5.98

64. ibid. I 3.1.6

with them)⁶⁵. As for the use of saṃjoga, we find passage like 'esa vīre pasamsie acceti logasaṃjogaṃ, esa ṇḍe pavuccati' (he is extolled as a hero, he transcends the connection with the world, he is called the leader (to the right path))⁶⁶. The most significant use of the word is found in the following excerpt which gives a total view of the spiritual path from beginning to end: *dukkhaṃ logassa jaṇittā, vamiṭṭhā logassa saṃjogaṃ, jaṇti vīrā mahājāṇaṃ, pareṇa param jaṇti, ṇāvakaṃkhaṃti jīvitam*⁶⁷. That is, knowing the suffering of the world, rejecting the connection (saṃjoga) with the world, the heroes go on the great path, they rise higher and higher and do not hanker after life. Here the four factors viz. (1) suffering, (2) the cause of suffering (viz. saṃjoga), (3) the path, and (4) the release from hankering which is the cause of suffering are succinctly stated. In other words, we here find the rudiments of the four ārya-satyas (noble truths) of the Buddhists, viz. dukkha (suffering), samudaya (cause of suffering), nirodha (release from suffering) and mārga (the path leading to the release).

(vi) Sarvajñatā (Omniscience): There is no reference to the subject in our text. On only one occasion, however, it is said "one who knows the one knows all (savvaṃ jāṇati) and one who knows all knows the one; there is fear for the careless from all quarters, and there is no fear for the careful from any quarter; one who controls the one controls the many, and one who controls the many controls the one"⁶⁸. The context here is the subjugation of anger, pride, deceit and greed and the insight of the seer (pāsagassa dāṇṣaṇaṃ). It should therefore be plausible that the knowledge in question refers to the comprehension of the nature and subjugation

65. ibid. I. 5. 6. 118.

66. ibid. I. 2. 6. 168-170.

67. ibid. I. 3. 4. 77-78.

68. ibid. I. 3. 4. 74-76.

je egaṃ jāṇai se savvaṃ jāṇai

je savvaṃ jāṇai se egaṃ jāṇai

savvato pamattassa bhayaṃ, savvato appamattassa paṭṭhi bhayaṃ je egaṃ ṇāme se bahūṃ ṇāme je bahūṃ ṇāme se egaṃ ṇāme.

tion of any of these passions and the consequent conquest of the remaining ones. An insight into the nature of any one of these passions is followed by an insight into the nature of the rest, or conversely the insight into the nature of all these is virtually an insight into the nature of any of them. The concept of traditional omniscience cannot be read into the above statement by any stretch of imagination.

(vii) Paṇṇāna (Perception, Insight): This expression played a very important role in the Jaina as well as Buddhist soteriology, as also epistemology. The Buddhist Pali equivalent of this word is paññā (Skt. prajñā). The expression paṇṇāna has an epistemological sense in the compounds śotapaṇṇāna (auditory perception), cakkhupaṇṇāna (ocular perception), ghāṇapaṇṇāna (olfactory perception), rasapaṇṇāna (gustatory perception), phāsaṇapaṇṇāna (tactile perception)⁶⁹. This is comparable to the Abhidharma conception of prajñā, which is common to all states of consciousness⁷⁰. The other use of the term paṇṇāna in Jainism is in the sense of spiritual insight. Thus the compound *savva-samaṇṇā-gatapaṇṇāna*⁷¹ means 'insight into the nature of all things'. Similarly, the phrase *mahāvīrehiṇ paṇṇānamantehiṇ paṇṇānamupalabbha*⁷², stands for 'having obtained insight from the great heroes who are possessed of the insight'. This meaning of paṇṇāna is in essential conformity with that of the expression prajñā in Buddhism, which is the consummation of the practice of śīla (right conduct) and saṃādhi (meditation). The expression paṇṇāna thus as used in our text is pregnant with the future role that it was destined to play in Indian thought, specially Buddhism.

(viii) Jñāna (Knowledge) and Darśana (Perception): The phrase *jāṇati pāsati*⁷³ is used to denote two separate aspects of knowledge, the verb 'jāṇati' standing for knowing through various means, and pāsati for knowing directly through perception or intuition. Thus in the description sejjaṇ puṇa jāṇejjā saha sammuiyāe paravāgarajenāṇ

69 ibid I 2 1.4 & I 2 1.25.

70 Abhidharma-kośa-Bhāṣya, II 24

71 Āvīra, I 1 7 174

72 ibid I 6 4 78

73 ibid I 2 2 17 & I 5 6 120.

*aṇṇesiṃ vā aṃtie soccā*⁷⁴, the act of knowing is stated to be done through consensus of opinion, or interpretation made by others; or hearing from others. The verb pāsati, on the other hand, in the phrase *pāsamane rūvāim pāsati*⁷⁵ like suṇeti in suṇamāṇe saddāiṃ suṇeti, denotes simply the act of seeing with eyes, exactly as suṇeti denotes simply the act of hearing with ears. The word pāsati is also used, as in the statement *aṃto aṃto putidehaṃtarāṇi pāsati puḍho vi savaṇṭāiṃ*⁷⁶ (in the interior of the body he perceives the foul interior humours and their several streams), figuratively to denote acuteness of intelligence. The derivative pāsaga in the usages - *uḍḍeso pāsagassa natthi*⁷⁷, *etam pāsagassa daṃsaṇaṃ*⁷⁸, *kimatthi uwāḍhi pāsagassa*⁷⁹, is used to denote 'a person of deep insight'. Similarly the derivative, nāṇi (from jāṇati) in *nissāraṃ pāsiya ṇāṇi*⁸⁰, stands for a 'wise person' (the expression pāsiya meaning 'having observed'). It is thus found that the verbs jāṇati and pāsati or their derivatives were used in various ways to denote the different aspect of the act of knowing or intuition - sometimes accentuating the distinction, and on other occasions obliterating it beyond recognition. In the phrase nissāraṃ pāsiya ṇāṇi, just quoted, the acts of jñāna and darśana are simultaneous, the latter being a part of the former. The distinction between the derivatives pāsaga and ṇāṇi is almost nil, as both imply the penetrating insight of the seer or the knower, irrespective of the linguistic aspects of the term. The sharp line of demarcation between jñāna and darśana drawn in traditional Jaina philosophy is absent in our text and the controversies that emerged among the stalwart supporters of the different theories on the relationship between the two concepts should have found an aetiological solution from the usages of the terms in our text.

(ix) Dhyāna (meditation): The biography of the Nāyaputta in the ninth chapter is an illustration of the role that was

74. ibid. I. 1.1.3. & I. 5.6. 114.

75. ibid. I. 1.5.94.

76. ibid. I. 2.5.130.

77. ibid. I. 2.3.73.

78. ibid. I. 3.4.72.

79. ibid. I. 3.4.87.

80. ibid. I. 3.2.45.

assigned to jhāṇa (Skt. dhyaṇa) in the life of an ascetic. His austerities flowed from his jñāna. He mediated day and night, self-restrained, mindful and concentrated (rāmaṇī-vampi jhāyamāṇe appanatte samāhite jhāti)⁸¹. He meditated internally fixing his eyes on the horizontal plane of the length of a man (ādu porisṇ tṛyabhittiṇ cakkhumā-sajja aṇiṇso jhāti)⁸². "That great hero, free from all distractions (akukkue) and seated (in a suitable posture) meditated—looking above, below and in front in concentration, without guile (apaṇṇe). Free from passions (akassāyi), devoid of greed (vigatagehī), and not attached to sounds and colours, he meditated."⁸³ The conditions of meditation, as succinctly given here, are comparable to those given in early Buddhist scripture. Although it is not possible to have a full picture of the course of meditation followed by the Nayaputta, the strands that we are able to gather from stray references make it appear plausible that it was not essentially different from the one practised and preached by Gautama Buddha. There is passage in our text which gives a somewhat vivid idea of what a meditator should do for gaining an insight into the nature of things. "With his (mental) eye wide open, and with a penetrating insight into (the nature of) the world (logavipassī) he knows the lower part, the upper part, as well as the horizontal region, with infatuated creatures circling round. He knows the juncture of the world. The hero who unfetters the fettered ones deserves praise. As is the interior (world of passions) so is the exterior (world circling round), and as is the exterior, so is the interior. In the interior of the body he perceives the foul interior humours and their several streams. The wise man, observing this and intelligently understanding the same, should not eat (his saliva). He should not throw himself flat on those things."⁸⁴ This is, obviously a prac-

81. ibid. I. 9. 2. 4.

82. ibid. I. 9. 1. 5.

83. ibid. I. 9. 4. 14-15

avi jhāti se m dhāvire, āsayaṭṭhe akukkue jhāṇaṇ uddhamahe tṛiyāṇ ca, pechamāṇe samāhumaṇaṇṇe, akassā vigatagehī saddarūpesu amucche jhāti.

84. ibid. I. 2. 5. 125-133.

āyatacakkhū loga-vipassī logassa aho bhāṇaṇ jāṇai, uddhaṇaṇ bhāṇaṇ jāṇai, tṛiyāṇ bhāṇaṇ jāṇai, gaḍḍhe aṇupariyaṭṭamāṇe saṇḍhup viḍḍā iha macciehuṇ

tice which is the precursor of the kāyānupassanā satipaṭṭhāna (mindfulness concerning inspection of the interior of the body). An important aspect of this meditation is represented by the gerunds pehāe (having looked at)⁸⁵ and sapehāe (having comprehended)⁸⁶, which indicate the necessity of right cognitive attitude towards the world. This brief account of meditation, read with the eighth chapter called Vimoha-Ajjhayaṇa which prescribes immobility of the body at the highest stage, gives an idea of the earliest form of meditation prevalent in the early periods of Nirgranthism and Buddhism.

4. The above account of the contents of the earliest book of the Ardhamāgadhi scripture of the Jainas is given, as far as possible, on the basis of the text itself, as edited by Muni Shri Nathmalji, without any reference to the exegetical literature. This study may be considered supplementary to what has been done by the learned editor who has brought to bear his vast knowledge in disentangling many a problem that exercised the ingenuity of great scholars of the eminence of Jacobi and Schubring. The present edition with notes which are so penetrating is a valuable contribution to the field of Jainological studies. The editor has the blessings and inspiration of the great saint and reformer Āchārya Śrī Tulsī who has been indefatigably working for the spiritual, moral and cultural regeneration of the nation for more than three decades. The translator Muni Shri Mahendra Kumārji, B.Sc., has also done his job excellently, and we hope he would continue to do such work in the future with unabated zeal.

Nathmal Tatia

30 June 1981

Jain Vishva Bharati, Landnun (Rajasthan).

esa vire pasamsie, je baddhe paḍumōyae jahā aṇṭo tahā bāhūṇi, jahā bāhūṇi tahā aṇṭo, aṇṭo aṇṭo dehaṇṭarāṇi pāsati puḍhovi savanṭiṇi, paḍae paḍilehāe se maumaṇi pariṇṇāya, mā ya hu lālaṇi paccāsī, mā tesu tiricchamappāṇamāvātae.

85. ibid. I. 2.5. 138.

86. ibid. I. 4.3. 32.

CHAPTER I

COMPREHENSION AND RENUNCIATION OF WEAPONS

पढमं अज्झयणं
सत्थं परिण्णा

PADHAMAM AJJHAYANAM

SATTHA-PARINNA

SECTION I

पदमो उद्देशो

Padhmo Uddeso

अप्यणो अत्थित्त-पदं

१ सुयं मे आस ! तेण भगवया एवमक्खाय—इहमेगेसि नो सण्णा

भवइ, तं जहा—

पुरत्थिमाओ वा दिसाओ आगओ अहमसि,
 दाहिणाओ वा दिसाओ आगओ अहमसि,
 पच्चत्थिमाओ वा दिसाओ आगओ अहमसि,
 उत्तराओ वा दिसाओ आगओ अहमसि,
 उद्धाओ वा दिसाओ आगओ अहमसि,
 अहे वा दिसाओ आगओ अहमसि,
 अण्णयरीओ वा दिसाओ आगओ अहमसि,
 अणुदिसाओ वा आगओ अहमसि ।

Appaṇo atthittā-badam

1. Suyam me āsam! teṇam bhagavayā evamakkhāyam - ihamegesam no sammā bhavaī, tam jahā —

Purattimāo vā disāo āgao ahamamsi,
 Dāhināo vā disāo āgao ahamamsi,
 Paccattimāo vā disāo āgao ahamamsi,
 Uttarāo vā disāo āgao ahamamsi,
 Uddhāo vā disāo āgao ahamamsi,
 Ahe vā disāo āgao ahamamsi,
 Aṇṇayārīo vā disāo āgao ahamamsi,
 Anudisāo vā āgao ahamamsi.

Existence of Soul

1. O Long-lived (disciple)! I have heard Bhagavān Mahāvīra speaking thus:

In this world there are many who do not have intuitive knowledge (samjñā) (pertaining to their previous life) such as —

"Have I migrated (to this world) from the eastern direction, or from the southern direction,

or from the western direction,
or from the northern direction,
or from the direction above,
or from the direction below,
or from any other direction,
or from any intermediate direction."

२. एवमेगेसि णो पातं भवति—

अत्थि मे आया ओववाइए,

णत्थि मे आया ओववाइए,

के अहं आसी ?

के वा इत्थो कुत्थो इह पेच्चा भविस्सामि ?

2. Evamegesim̐ no pātam̐ bhavati —

Atthi me āyā ovavāie,

Natthi me āyā ovavāie,

Ke aham̐ āsī ?

Ke vā io cuo iha peccā bhavissāmī.

2. Similarly many (people) do not know —

"Does my soul go on reincarnating, or does not my soul go on reincarnating?"

Who was I (in my previous birth) or after departure from here what shall I become in my next birth?"

ANNOTATIONS 1, 2: We observe that certain phenomena, which we call the phenomena of consciousness, are fundamentally different from the non-conscious or material phenomena. Hence the existence of consciousness (or more precisely, the conscient reality) has been accepted by almost all schools of philosophy, ancient as well as modern.

As the phenomena manifesting consciousness are directly perceptible, there is no question of denying the existence of conscient reality. All the controversy that prevails in the world of philosophy regarding the conscient reality is about its eternity or ultimate independence.

Thus, there are two schools of thought: One which accepts the eternal and ultimately independent existence of the conscient reality or psychical reality or soul, and the other which denies it. The former is called "spiritualism", and the latter "non-spiritualism" or "materialism".

The non-spiritualists accept the existence of conscient reality (soul) but repudiate its transmigration — its past and future existence (i. e. previous birth and rebirth). Hence, they do not give importance to the question of the direct perception of soul or phenomena of transmigration. But for the spiritualists, the question is of the utmost importance.

However, all are not able to cognize soul or its transmigration directly. The following four questions constitute the enigma of the Spiritual Universe:

Where from have I transmigrated?

Where to shall I transmigrate?

Who was I (in my previous birth), or After departure from here what shall I become in my next birth?

३. सेवर्षं पुण जाणेज्जा—

सहस्रमुदयाए,

परवागरजेणं,

अणोसि वा अंतिए सोच्चा, तं जहा—

पुरत्थिमाओ वा दिसाओ आगओ अहमंसि,

वत्थिणाओ वा दिसाओ आगओ अहमंसि,

पच्चत्थिमाओ वा दिसाओ आगओ अहमंसि,

उत्तराओ वा दिसाओ आगओ अहमंसि,

उद्दहाओ वा दिसाओ आगओ अहमंसि,

अहे वा दिसाओ आगओ अहमंसि,

अण्णयरीओ वा दिसाओ आगओ अहमंसि,

अणुदिसाओ वा आगओ अहमंसि ।

3. Sejjam̐ puna jāpejjā —
 Sahasaṃmuiyāe,
 Paravāgarañṇam̐
 Aṇṇesim̐ vā am̐tie soccā, tam̐ jahā —
 Puratthimāo vā disāo āgao ahamamsi,
 Dakkhināo vā disāo āgao ahamamsi,
 Paccatthimāo vā disāo āgao ahamamsi,
 Uttarāo vā disāo āgao ahamamsi,
 Uḍḍhāo vā disāo āgao ahamamsi,
 Ahe vā disāo āgao ahamamsi,
 Aṇṇayario vā disāo āgao ahamamsi,
 Aṇudisāo vā āgao ahamamsi.
3. (i) By recollecting himself the (details of) his previous birth (or births) or
- (ii) Through exposition by one who commands direct knowledge (para)¹ or
- (iii) By hearing from someone (who has gained his knowledge from one who commands direct knowledge), some (people) acquire knowledge such as —
- "I have migrated (to this world) from the eastern direction, or from the southern direction,
 or from the western direction,
 or from the northern direction,
 or from the direction above,
 or from the direction below,
 or from any other direction,
 or from any intermediate direction.

ANNOTATION 3: The soul, being devoid of all material qualities viz. colour, odour, taste and touch, is not perceptible to any of the sense-organs or any other physical instrument of knowledge. Such entities which are beyond our sensory perception can be known either through one's own extra-sensory knowledge or through the revelation made by a person possessing transcendental knowledge.

1 Para denotes here any of those persons who have Extra-sensory or Transcendental Knowledge.

Now, if a sādhaka (an aspirant exerting himself in asceticism for achieving self-realization) does not possess the extra-sensory power of perception, there are chances that due to lack of direct knowledge of soul or its transmigration, he may lose his faith in sādhana (the path prescribed for self-realization). In such cases, it is necessary to assist him to remain steadfast by making him directly perceive some transcendental phenomenon.

Bhagavan Mahāvīra, it seems, had the technique of helping his disciples remember their past life (or lives). Thus enlightened with the knowledge of eternal existence of soul, the aspirants would exert themselves with unflinching faith and fresh enthusiasm in sādhana.

This is well illustrated by the episode of Meghakumāra, the son of king Śrenika of Magadha. Meghakumāra was initiated by Bhagavān Mahāvīra. On the very first night of his ascetic life, Meghakumāra, disheartened by inconveniences in lodging thought of returning home. On the next morning, he approached the Lord.

The Bhagavān said — Meghakumāra! You are perturbed because you had a disturbed night due to inconveniences, and now you are thinking of going back. Is it not so?

Meghakumāra — Yes, Lord. It is true.

Lord — Meghakumāra! In your previous life you were an elephant named Meruprabha living in a jungle. Once the jungle caught fire and the wild animals residing in it gathered in an arid zone outside it. The whole area got packed with all sorts of creatures. There was not an inch of space left. At that time you were also standing there. You had an itching sensation and you lifted your foot to scratch your body. Perchance, a hare happened to settle under the lifted foot. After scratching, when you wanted to lower your foot, you saw the hare sitting there. Out of compassion for the hare, you did not lower your foot, but kept it raised for two and a half days, after which the conflagration subsided. The creatures started returning to their own places and the hare too. Seeing the hare left the place, you tried to lower your foot. But it had become stiff and you fell with a bang.

Meghakumāra! You forbore such a great hardship in your birth as an elephant, while now you are a human being and an ascetic too. Only a little discomfort has perturbed you. Is it worthy of you? Then you kept your foot hanging in the air out of compassion for one small hare and would now like to go back to worldly life where every step of yours would result in injury to countless beings?

On hearing this from the Lord, Meghakumāra got lost in contemplation and introspection which brought back the memory of his previous life. This incident reinforced his faith and strengthened his unattachment. Tears rolled out of his eyes out of sheer ecstasy. He no more thought of his perturbation and resolved to follow the sādhana steadfastly. He bowed to the Lord and said — "Lord! I dedicate my whole body except the eyes to the services of the ascetic order. May the order utilise my humble services."

This is how Mahavira used to enlighten the sādhakas. In order to develop the memory of previous birth, a sādhaka would sit in meditation and concentrate his mind on any of the questions such as:

- a. From which direction have I migrated to this birth?
Whether from the east direction or the west direction?
Whether from the north direction or the south direction?
Whether from the direction above or below?
- b. Who am I?
- c. Who was I in the previous birth?
- d. What shall I become in the next birth?

The ethical code prescribed by Bhagavān Mahāvira mainly consists in the practice of non-violence (ahimsa). Its philosophical base is the existence of soul. Unless a sādhaka is enlightened with the unobscured knowledge of soul, he cannot have unflinching faith in the ethical code of non-violence. That is why the author of the scripture establishes the existence of soul in the very beginning of the present text.

૪. એવમેર્ગેસિ જં જાતં મન્દ્—અતિ મે આયા ઓવવાદ્દ । જો
દિસાઝો અણુદિસાઝો વા અણુસંચરદ્, સજ્જાઝો દિસાઝો
સજ્જાઝો અણુદિસાઝો જો આગઝો અણુસંચરદ્ સોહું ।

4. Evamegesuñ jañ ñātañ bhavai — atthi me āyā ovavāie.
Jo imāo disāo anudisāo vā anusañcarai, savvāo disāo savvāo anudisāo jo āgao anusañcarai sohañ.

4. Similarly some (people) come to know —

"My soul goes on reincarnating.

"That which transmigrates from these directions and intermediate directions, and which has migrated (to this life) from these directions or intermediate directions is none other than 'I' (my soul)."

ANNOTATION 4: 'Who am I?' (kohaṃ) and 'I am He' (sohaṃ),—these are two very important expressions in the discussion of the philosophy of Soul. The former manifests the inquisitiveness about the nature of one's own self, and the latter signifies direct recognition of the Self (I).

When the Ācārya (teacher) was inquired of by his disciple as to what was the token of recognition of the soul, the Ācārya replied, "I am He." The expression 'I am He' is thus a means of arriving at the right knowledge known as 'pratyabhijñā' in logic, which means a logical conclusion based on the recognition of the object of the past experience with that of the present one. 'Ego', which experiences itself as the 'doer', through the assertions such as 'I do', 'I did', 'I shall do', is to be identified with the Soul (the conscient reality) and not with the body (the physical reality).

It may be mentioned that Sohaṃ (I am 'He') is also a chant in the Yoga system. There it signifies identification of soul with the Supreme Reality.

५. से जायावाई, लोकावाई, कम्मावाई, किरियावाई ।

5. Se āyāvāi, logāvāi, kammāvāi, kiriyāvāi.

5. Only he (who comprehends the doctrine of transmigration) is a believer in the doctrines of Atmavāda —doctrine of objective reality of soul,

Lokavāda —doctrine of real existence of the world,

Karmavāda —doctrine of reaping the fruits of one's actions, and Kriyāvādā -- doctrine that actions are the cause of bondage of soul.

ANNOTATION 5: The principle of non-violence is based mainly on the above four doctrines.

Soul by itself is imperceptible to any of the sense-organs. It is perceived only through the medium of body.

The world is also an ultimate reality just as the soul is,

The whole system of material body is governed by karma. The system of karma, in its turn, is governed by kriyā — actions. The fundamental cause of diversities and changes in the world is action. So long as there are vibrations, disturbances and various sorts of emotions in the soul, it continues to be bound by the atoms of the kar-mas, which results in its continuous transmigration in different species. Transmigration or reincarnation clearly signifies the existence of soul. The cause of rebirth is the bondage of karma, and the cause of bondage is action. All this takes place 'in the world' itself. There exists in the world an infinite number of souls and material substances.

Cultivating discipline in our behaviour towards other souls and material substances is the fundamental basis of non-violence.

आसव-पदं

✓ ६. अकरिस्सं वहं, कारवेसुं वहं, करओ यावि समणुण्णे भविस्सामि ।

Āssava padam

6. Akarissam cāham, kāra-vesum cāham, karao yāvi samanūṇṇe bhaviṣṣāmi.

Cause of Influx of Karma Particles

6. I had acted, I had caused others to act, (and I had approved of others' indulgence in actions.)
 (I act, I cause others to act, and I approve of others' actions.)
 (I shall act, I shall cause others to act,) and I shall approve of others' actions.

संवर-पदं

७. एषावति सव्वावति लोकांसि कम्म-समारंभा परिजानियन्वा
भवति ।

Samvara-padam

7. Eyāvaṃti savvāvaṃti logaṃsī kamma-samāraṃbhā parijāṇiyavvā bhavaṃti.

Stoppage of Influx

7. One should first comprehend that all such actions¹ taking place in the world² are the cause of the influx of karma particles and then should forswear them.

आस्सव-परिणाम-पदं

८. अपरिणाय-कम्मे खलू अयं पुरिसे,
जो इमानो दिसाओ वा अणुदिसाओ वा अणुसंचरइ,
सव्वाओ दिसाओ सव्वाओ अणुदिसाओ सहेति,
अणेरुव्वाओ जोणीओ सवेइ,
विरुवरुवे फासे य पडिसवेदेइ ।

Āssava-pariṇāma-padam

8. *Aparinnāya — kamme khalu ayaṃ purise,
Jo imāo disāo vā aṇudisāo vā aṇusaṃcarai,
Savvāo disāo savvāo aṇudisāo saheti,
Aṇegarūvāo joṇīo samādhei,
Virūvarūve phāse ya paḍisaṃvedei.*

1. Kamma-samāraṃbhā —

The term kamma (Skt. Karman), which has several meanings is used here in the sense of action (i. e. kiriya) causing influx of karma particles. Whole phrase, then, would mean 'indulging in activities of mind, speech and body'.

2. In this context loka means the world of non-ascetic actions.

Consequences of Influx of Karma Particles

8. Only a person who does not comprehend and forswear actions undergoes transmigration in various directions and intermediate directions.

Loaded with the lot of accumulated karma particles, he wanders in all directions and intermediate directions, keeps on binding his soul to various genera and experiences (there) various sorts of feelings.

ANNOTATIONS 6, 8: These aphorisms furnish in short the essence of Bhagavān Mahāvīra's ideology which may be summarised as follows:

Indulging in actions and abstaining from them are respectively the causes of transmigration and its cessation. The succeeding Ācāryas have expressed this view in the following verse:

*Āśrvo bandhahetuḥ syāt,
Saṁvaro mokṣakāraṇam.
Itiyamaḥ hatī ārṣṭi-Ranyadasyāḥ prapañchanam..*

(Indulging in actions is the cause of the influx of Karma particles and hence the cause of bondage, while forswearing them is the cause of salvation. This is the essence of Bhagavān Mahāvīra's philosophy; everything else is merely elaboration).

कर्म-सोय-पदं

१. तत्तु खलु भगवया परिण्णा पवेइया ।

Kamma-soya-padam

9. Tattha khalu bhagavayā pariṇṇā paveiyā.

Fundamental Motives of Actions

9. In the context of Karma-samārambha, Bhagavān Mahāvīra has taught discernment (i. e. first comprehension and then forswearing).

१०. इमस्स चेव जीवियस्स,
परिवंदण-माणण-पूयणाए,
जाई-मरण-मोयणाए,
दुक्खपडिचायहेत्तं ।

10. Imassa ceva jīviyassa,
Parivaṇḍaṇa - māṇaṇa - pūyaṇāe,
Jāī - maraṇa - moyañāe, Dukkhaṇaḍḍhāyaheṭṭhā.

10. (These are the four ultimate motives of activities in life:)

For the sake of survival,
for the sake of honour and reverence,
for the sake of birth, death and liberation,
for the sake of prevention of miseries,
(one indulges in actions.)

ANNOTATION 10: (i) Man consumes various drugs and medicines for survival. Believing that 'life sustains life', he kills and exploits other lives in order to sustain his.

(ii) In order to earn admiration, fame and name, he indulges in such competitive activities as wrestling, aquatics, mountaineering, etc.

(iii) In order to earn reverence, he acquires wealth, power, etc.

(iv) In order to gain honour, he indulges in such activities as war.

(v) Birth: Desire to beget children and worries about his next birth make men indulge in various kinds of activities.

(vi) Death: Such activities as avenging death, making offerings to departed souls are indulged in, in connection with 'death'.

(vii) Liberation: Motivated by liberation he carries out such activities as worship, etc.

(viii) Prevention of Miseries: For ameliorating agonies and curing diseases, he requires drugs and medicines, production of which involves violence to birds, animals etc.

संवर-साहणा-पदं

११. एयावति सव्वावति लोगंसि कम्म-समारंभा परिजाणियव्वा
भवति ।

Samvara-sāhaṇā-padam

11. Eyāvaṃti savvāvaṃti, logaṃsi kamma-samāraṃbhā pari jāṇiyavvā bhavaṃti.

11. One should first comprehend that all such actions taking place in the world are the cause of the influx of karma particles and then should forswear them.

१२. जस्सेते लोगंसि कम्म-समारंभा परिणाय भवति, से हु मुणी परिणाय-कम्मे ।

— त्ति वेमि ।

12. Jassete logaṃsi kamma-samāraṃbhā pariṇāyā bhavaṃti, se hu muṇi parinṇāya-kamme.

— Tti bemi

12. Only he, who discerns (i. e. comprehends and forswears) all such actions, which are the cause of the influx of karma particles, is a true ascetic (muṇi), (for a true ascetic is he), who has discerningly for-sworn actions.

— Thus I say.

ANNOTATION 12: In this aphorism, the muṇi is defined to be a person, who has forsworn all sorts of actions. This is comparable with Bhagavad Gītā's (4/19) definition of a pañḍita (i. e. sage):

*"Yasya sarve-samāraṃbhāḥ,
Kāma-saṃkalpa-varjitaḥ
Jñānāgni-dagaha-karmāṇaḥ, Tasmāhuḥ pañḍitaḥ budhāḥ.*

(He, whose actions have been dissociated from attachment and desires, and have been consumed by the fire of knowledge is called paṇḍita by the wise).

The Bhagavad Gītā (17-2, 3) also elucidates the terms karmayoga (actions controlled by spiritual discipline) and karma-saṁnyāsa (renunciation of actions),

The karmayoga enjoins one to persevering in actions, without having desire to get their rewards, abandoning the egotistic instinct, and dedicating their merits to God.

The karma-saṁnyāsa, however, has been interpreted diversely by different scholars, thus—

- (a) Abstinence from the actions which are accompanied with rewards.
- (b) Renouncing the desire for reward of one's actions.
- (c) Total abstinence from all sorts of actions (for every action is vicious).

Bhagavān Mahāvīra, however, harmonised karma-saṁnyāsa with karmayoga. His technique of achieving self-realization mainly consisted in saṁvara — the stoppage of the influx of karma particles through total abstinence from all actions. But this is not feasible in the very beginning. Therefore, it is advisable to refine the actions first through nirjarā (by employing oneself in right actions) and then to stop them. Total cessation of actions is achieved only on the verge of the final liberation.

The discernment of the indulgence in actions taught in the aphorism 7-12, thus includes both the karmayoga and the karma-saṁnyāsa — refinement of actions followed by their cessation.

SECTION II

बीओ उद्देसो

Bīo Uddeso

अण्णाण-पदं

११. अददे लोए परिजुण्णे, दुस्संभोहे अविजाणए ।

Anṇāṇa-padam

13. Atte loye pariṇuṇṇe, dussam̐bohe avijāṇae.

Ignorance

13. One (who) is afflicted (with lust) is bereft (of knowledge and perception). (Truth) always baffles him, (consequently) he remains benighted.

१४. अस्सिं लोए पव्वहिए ।

14. Assiṃ loye pavvahiē.

14. In this world, he (the benighted one, and hence, the ignorant one) feels distress.

काइयहिंसा-पदं

५. तत्थ तत्थ पुडो पास, आतुरा परितावेत्ति ।

Pudhaviḥāyahiṃsā-padam

15. Tattha tattha pudho pāsa, āturā paritāveṃti.

Injury to Earth Beings

15. See! almost everywhere the passionate men are tormenting (beings of earth-body).

ANNOTATION 15: Sex, luxury, anger, fear, pleasure, etc. are the various kinds of passions. While he seeks objects to satiate his passion (of sex, of pleasure etc.) a passionate man causes violence. Passion is the cause of mental perturbation. A perturbed man falls an easy prey to desire and indulges in violence.

१६. संति पाणा पुढोसिया ।

16. Saṁti pāṇa puḍhosiyā.

16. (Each of the) beings of earth-body has its own body to inhabit.

ANNOTATION 16: Gautama, the chief disciple of Bhagavān Mahāvīra asked — Bhagavān! whether one, two, three, four or five beings of earth-body collectively build one body, absorb nutrients for sustenance, assimilate those nutrients and then through the assimilation build the body?

Bhagavān—No, they do not do so. Each of the beings of earth-body builds a different (individual) body. It also takes and assimilates its food (nutrients) individually.

१७. लज्जमाणा पुढो पास ।

17. Lajjamāṇa puḍho pāsa.

17. See! Every (ascetic who has ceased from causing violence¹ to these beings) leads a life of self-discipline.

१८. अणगारा मोत्ति एने पवयमाणा ।

18. Aṇagārā motti ege pavayamāṇa.

18. (And discern from them) those pseudo-monks, who, despite professing, "we are mendicants", (act like

1. By violence (hiṁsā) is meant all actions of injuring, hurting, causing harm, killing, etc.

householders i. e. cause violence to the beings of earth-body).

१९. जमिण विरुवरूवेहि सत्थेहि पुढवि-कम्म-समारभेण पुढविसत्थं
समारभमाणे अण्णे वण्णेरूवे पाणे विहिंसति ।

19. Jamiṇaṃ virūvarūvehiṃ satthehiṃ puḍhavi-kamma-samāraṃbheṇaṃ puḍhavi-satthaṃ samāraṃbhe-māṇe aṇṇe vaṇṇe-gaṇṇe pāṇe vihiṃsati.

19. He (pseudo-monk), employing various kinds of weapons, indulges in actions involving earth, (thereby) causing violence to the beings of earth-body. (He causes violence not only to the beings of earth-body, but also) causes violence to different kinds of other beings.

ANNOTATION 19: In this world there are many kinds of beings and many substances. One man's food is another man's poison. A substance which is harmful to a particular kind of beings is termed as weapon for that kind. The term weapon is a general one which includes physical implements as well as processes which when operated upon beings would cause violence to them. The implements or the process may be homologous i. e. composed of the same material as body of the victims or heterologous, i. e. composed of material which is different from the body of the victims or combination of both. Besides physical weapons described here, there is the unrestrained impulse for violence which in itself is a psychic weapon. It should be noted that the psychic weapon is in itself the cause of prāṇātipāta (sin of violence) irrespective of the operation or non-operation of the physical weapons.

The following nine kinds of weapons are enumerated in the Niryukti (the earliest commentary) on the Āyāro:

- i. Implements such as plough, pick-axe etc. used for ploughing, digging, etc.;
- ii. Horns of deer;
- iii. Wood;
- iv. Fire;
- v. Excretions;
- vi. Homologous weapons, e. g. two different incompatible types of soil, when mixed, kill the earth-being;

- vii. Heterologous weapons, e.g. water, fire;
- viii. Combination of 6 and 7 above, e.g. water mixed with soil;
- ix. Psychic weapon, i.e. unrestrained impulse for violence.

२०. तत्थ खलु भगवया परिण्णा पवेइया ।

20. Tattha khalu bhagavayā pariṇṇā paveiyā.

20. (Hence) Bhagavān Mahāvira has taught discernment (i.e. comprehension and forswearing) with respect to this issue.

२१. इमस्स चैव जीवियस्स,
परिवरण-माणण-पूयणाए,
जाई-भरण-मोयणाए,
दुक्खपडिभायहेउं ।

21. Imassa ceva jīviyassa,
Parivaṇḍaṇa - māṇaṇa - pūyaṇāe,
Jāī - maraṇa - moyaṇāe,
Dukkhapaḍiḥāyaheum.

- 21. 1. For the sake of survival,
- 2. for the sake of praise, honour, reverence,
- 3. for the sake of birth, death, liberation,
- 4. for the sake of prevention of miseries, —

२२. से सयमेव पुढवि-सत्थं समारंभइ, अण्णेहि वा पुढवि-सत्थं
समारंभावेइ, अण्णे वा पुढवि-सत्थं समारंभते समणुजाणइ ।

22. Se sayameva puḍhavi-sattham samāraṇḍhai, aṇṇehi vā puḍhavi - sattham samāraṇḍhāvei, aṇṇe vā puḍhavisattham samāraṇḍhanāte samaṇujāṇai.

22. Some monk either indulges himself in action causing violence to the beings of earth-body through various kinds of weapons, makes others to cause violence to the beings of earth-body or approves of others causing violence to the beings of earth-body.

२३. त से अहियाए, तं से अबोहीए ।

23. Tam se ahiyāe, tam se abohīe.

23. Such an act of violence proves baneful for him. Such an act of violence deprives him of enlightenment.

२४. से त सबुज्झमाणे, आयाणीयं समुट्ठाए ।

24. Se tam sambujjhamāṇe, āyāṇīyaṁ samuṭṭhāe.

24. He (true ascetic), comprehending it (i. e. consequences of act of violence) becomes vigilant over the practice of self-discipline.

२५. सोच्चा खलु भगवओ भगगाराणं वा अतिए इहमेगेसि जातं
भवति—एस खलु गये,
एस खलु मोहे,
एस खलु मारे,
एस खलु परए ।

25. *Socchā khalu bhagavao apagārāṇaṁ vā antie ihamegesim pātaṁ bhavati -
Esa khalu gāṁthe,
Esa khalu mohe,
Esa khalu māre,
Esa khalu parae.*

25. Hearing from Bhagavān Mahāvīra himself or from the monks, one comes to know: —

It (i. e. causing violence to the beings of earth-body), in fact, is the knot of bondage,
it, in fact, is the delusion,
it, in fact, is the death,
it, in fact, is the hell.

२६. इच्चत्थं गढिए लोए ।

26. Iccatthaṁ gaḍhie loe.

26. (Nevertheless) man impelled by the aforesaid motives becomes engrossed in (the acts of inflicting injury to the beings of earth-body).

२७. जमिण विरूवरूवेहिं सत्येहिं पुढवि-कम्म-समारभेणं पुढवि-सत्थं
समारभेमाणे अण्णे वणेगरूवे पाणे विहिंसइ ।

27. Jamiṇaṃ virūvarūvehiṃ satthehiṃ puḍhavi - kamma - samāraṃbheṇaṃ puḍhavi - satthaṃ samāraṃbhemāṇe aṇṇe vaṇegarūve pāṇe vihiṃsa।

27. He, employing various kinds of weapons indulges in actions involving earth, (thereby) causing violence to the beings of earth-body. He causes violence not only to the beings of earth-body, but, also causes violence to the different kinds of other beings.

✓ पुढविकाइयाणं जीवत्त-वेदणारोघ-पदं

२८. से बेमि—अप्पेगे अंधमग्गे, अप्पेगे अघमच्छे ।

Puḍhavi-kāyāṇaṃ jīvatta-vedanābodha-padaṃ

28. Se bemi—appege aṇḍhamabbhe, appege aṇḍhamacche.
Earth-Beings, their Animation and Experience of Pain

28. I say—

(Just as consciousness of a man born without any sense-organs (i.e. one who is blind, deaf, dumb, crippled, etc. from birth) is not manifest, the consciousness of the beings of earth-body is also not manifest.) (Nevertheless) such a man (the one born organless) (experiences pain) when struck or cut with a weapon. (and so also do the beings of earth-body).

२९. अप्पेगे पायमग्गे, अप्पेगे पायमच्छे,
अप्पेगे गुप्फमग्गे, अप्पेगे गुप्फमच्छे,
अप्पेगे जघमग्गे, अप्पेगे जघमच्छे,
अप्पेगे जाणुमग्गे, अप्पेगे जाणुमच्छे,

अप्पेगे ऊरुमब्भे, अप्पेगे ऊरुमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे कडिमब्भे, अप्पेगे कडिमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे णाभिमब्भे, अप्पेगे णाभिमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे उयरमब्भे, अप्पेगे उयरमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे पासमब्भे, अप्पेगे पासमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे पिट्ठमब्भे, अप्पेगे पिट्ठमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे उरमब्भे, अप्पेगे उरमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे हिययमब्भे, अप्पेगे हिययमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे थणमब्भे, अप्पेगे थणमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे खंघमब्भे, अप्पेगे खंघमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे बाहुमब्भे, अप्पेगे बाहुमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे हत्थमब्भे, अप्पेगे हत्थमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे अगुलिमब्भे, अप्पेगे अगुलिमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे ण्हमब्भे, अप्पेगे ण्हमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे गीवमब्भे, अप्पेगे गीवमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे हणुयमब्भे, अप्पेगे हणुयमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे होट्टमब्भे, अप्पेगे होट्टमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे दत्तमब्भे, अप्पेगे दत्तमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे जिन्नमब्भे, अप्पेगे जिन्नमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे तालुमब्भे, अप्पेगे तालुमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे गलमब्भे, अप्पेगे गलमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे गडमब्भे, अप्पेगे गडमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे कण्णमब्भे, अप्पेगे कण्णमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे णासमब्भे, अप्पेगे णासमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे अञ्छिमब्भे, अप्पेगे अञ्छिमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे भमुहमब्भे, अप्पेगे भमुहमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे णिडालमब्भे, अप्पेगे णिडालमच्छे,
 अप्पेगे सीसमब्भे, अप्पेगे सीसमच्छे ।

29. Appege pāyamabbhe, appege pāyamacche,
 Appege gupphamabbhe, appege gupphamacche,
 Appege jaṅghamabbhe, appege jaṅghamacche,
 Appege jāṇumabbhe, appege jāṇumacche,
 Appege ūrumabbhe, appege ūrumacche,

Appege kaḍimabbhe, appege kaḍimacche,
 Appege nābhimabbhe, appege nābhumacche,
 Appege uyaramabbhe, appege uyaramacche,
 Appege pāsamabbhe, appege pāsamacche,
 Appege piṭṭhamabbhe, appege piṭṭhamacche,
 Appege uramabbhe, appege uramacche,
 Appege hiyayamabbhe, appege hiyayamacche,
 Appege thaṇamabbhe, appege thaṇamacche,
 Appege khaṇḍhamabbhe, appege khaṇḍhamacche,
 Appege bāhumabbhe, appege bāhumacche,
 Appege hatthamabbhe, appege hatthamacche,
 Appege aṇḍulimabbhe, appege aṇḍulimacche,
 Appege ṇāhamabbhe, appege ṇāhamacche,
 Appege gīvamabbhe, appege gīvamacche,
 Appege haṇuyamabbhe, appege haṇuyamacche,
 Appege hoṭṭhamabbhe, appege hoṭṭhamacche,
 Appege daṇṭamabbhe, appege daṇṭamacche,
 Appege jibhamabbhe, appege jibhamacche,
 Appege tālumabbhe, appege tālumacche,
 Appege galamabbhe, appege galamacche,
 Appege gaṇḍamabbhe, appege gaṇḍamacche,
 Appege kaṇṇamabbhe, appege kaṇṇamacche,
 Appege ṇāsamabbhe, appege ṇāsamacche,
 Appege acchimabbhe, appege acchamacche,
 Appege bhamuhamabbhe, appege bhamuhamacche,
 Appege nīḍālamabbhe, appege nīḍālamacche,
 Appege sīsamabbhe, appege sīsamacche.

29. (On simultaneously) cutting and severing with weapons, (all the following 32 anatomical features of a man, he suffers excruciating pain, though he would not be able to express it):

Foot, ankle, leg, knee, thigh, waist, belly, stomach, flank, back, bosom, heart, breast, shoulder, arm,
 hand, finger, nail, neck, chin, lip, tooth, tongue, palate, throat, temple, ear, nose, eye, brow, forehead, and head.

(So is the case with the beings of earth-body).

30. Appege saṃpamārae, appege uddavae.

30. Man (experiences pain) when forced into unconsciousness or when deprived of life. (So do the beings of earth-body).

ANNOTATIONS 28-30: Once a disciple asked Bhagavān Mahāvīra—O Venerable One! the beings of earth-body can neither see, nor speak, nor hear, nor move about. Then, how can one ascertain that it has life and it experiences pain on being struck or cut with some weapon?

Bhagavān Mahāvīra replied—O disciple! suppose that there is a man, who is blind, deaf, dumb, and crippled since his birth. Moreover, he is completely limbless—just a ball of flesh like the son of queen Mrgā (vide, the Vipāka Sūtra). Now, suppose that someone strikes or cuts him with weapon. The poor fellow, being blind etc. can neither see, nor hear, nor speak, nor move about. In the absence of vision, audition, speech, and locomotion, will it be right to say that the fellow is devoid of life and that he does not experience any pain on being struck or cut?

Bhagavān Mahāvīra further said—And again suppose that there is a man with normal physique. Some other men equipped with various sorts of weapons attack him cutting and severing simultaneously all the thirty two anatomical features of his body (enumerated in the 29th aphorism). Now, the man becomes blind, deaf, dumb and crippled. He can no more see, hear, speak or move about. Would it mean that he has no life? Would he not feel severe but inexpressible pain?

The disciple replied—Yes, Bhagavān! it is true that the man would feel the pain. But, my doubt is yet not resolved. For, there is a world of difference in the wounded man and beings of earth-body. Despite his inability to express his pain, the respiratory movements in the man are clearly visible, whereas they are absent in the said earth-lives.

Bhagavān Mahāvīra said—It is not so, my disciple. The process of respiration is present in the beings of earth-body too, but it is not perceptible. Like a man in a swoon, the beings of earth-body do not manifest consciousness.

This is due to the 'constant coma produced by the "deep slumber producing" Karma, known as "Styānārdhā".

Further elucidating the point, Bhagavān Mahāvīra continued—A man in swoon may be unconscious either externally or internally. In the latter case, the inner consciousness is also benumbed, so that nothing is felt or experienced. But in the case of external swoon, only the external consciousness is lost. The inner consciousness, being active, experiences pain. A similar state prevails in the beings of earth-body. They experience pain through inner consciousness on being struck or cut.

Gautama, the chief disciple of Bhagavān Mahāvīra, asked—On being attacked, what sort of pain does a being of earth-body experience?

Bhagavān Mahāvīra — Gautama, suppose a young and strong man hits an old feeble man on head with both his hands. What sort of pain does the old man feel on being hit on the head by both the hands of the young man?

Gautama — Bhagavan! The old man experiences excruciating pain.

Bhagavān Mahāvīra — Gautama! On being attacked, the being of earth-body experiences much more pain than that experienced by the old man¹.

Thus, in the three illustrations, Bhagavān Mahāvīra has compared the state of consciousness and capacity to experience pain of the beings of earth-body with those of the persons, who are insensible since birth, rendered insensible with weapons, and in the state of swoon respectively. /

हिंसाविवेग-पदं

३१. एतत् सत्यं समारम्भाणस्स इच्छेते आरम्भा अपरिण्णता भवन्ति ।

Hīṁsāvivēga-padam

31. Ettha satthaṃ samāraṁbhamāṇassa icchete āraṁbhā aparippātā bhavaṁti.

1. Bhagavati Sutra, 19-35.

Forswearing of Violence

31. He who uses a weapon on the beings of earth-body has neither comprehended nor forsworn actions (causing violence to the beings of earth-body and other beings residing in the earth.).

३२ एतत् सत्त्वं असमारंभमाणत्स इच्छेते आरंभा परिण्णाता भवति ।

32. Ettha sattham̐ asamārambhamāṇassa icchete ārambhā parinnātā bhavaṃti.

32. (On the contrary) he who does not use any weapon on the beings of earth-body, has comprehended and forsworn actions (causing violence to the beings of earth-body and other beings residing in it.).

३३. तं परिण्णाय मेहावी नेव सयं पुढवि-सत्त्वं समारंभेज्जा, नेवण्णेहिं पुढवि-सत्त्वं समारंभावेज्जा, नेवण्णे पुढवि-सत्त्वं समारंभते समणुजाणेज्जा ।

33. Taṃ parinnāya mehāvī neva sayam̐ pudhavi - sattham̐ samārambhhejjā, nevaṇṇehim̐ pudhavi - sattham̐ samārambhāvejjā, nevaṇṇe pudhavi - sattham̐ samārambhante samanujāṇejjā.

33. Having discerned this, a sage should neither use any weapon causing violence to the beings of earth-body, nor cause others to use it, nor approve of others using it.

३४. जस्सेते पुढवि-कम्म-समारंभा परिण्णाता भवन्ति, से ह्मु मुणी परिण्णात-कम्मे ।

—त्ति नेमि ।

34. Jassete pudhavi-kamma-samarambha parinnata bhavaṃti, se hu muni parinnata-kamme.

— Tti bemi

34. He, who discerns (i. e. comprehends and forswears) the actions that cause violence to the beings of earth-body can be regarded as a (true) ascetic (for a true ascetic is he) who has discerningly forsworn actions.

— I say so .

SECTION III

तइओ उद्देसो

Taio Uddeso

समप्पण-पदं

३५ से बेमि—से जहावि अणगारे उज्जुकडे, नियागपडिवण्णे अमायं
कुव्वमाणे वियाहिए ।

Samappana-padam

35. Se bemi—se jahāvi aṇagāre ujjukade, niyāgapadivāṇṇe amāyaṁ kuvvamaṇe viyāhie.

Dedication of the Aim

35. I say—

Which is the conduct that distinguishes a monk from a non-monk.

A monk is he, whose conduct is ingenuous, who has devoted himself to the path of achieving salvation, and who never indulges in hypocrisy (i. e. laxity of efforts inspite of good ability to follow the path of Sādhana); (one who deviates from this conduct is a non-monk).

ANNOTATION 35: The following are the three maxims for achieving the Goal:

- (i) Guilelessness in conduct,
- (ii) Devotedness to the Goal,
- (iii) Sincerity of efforts.

According to the author of the scripture, above three are the criteria of a monk. Straightforwardness is the fundamental tenet of religion. A crooked man cannot be religious. Religion abides only in a pure soul and only he who is straightforward is pure.

Crookedness is practised by him who wants to twist the truth. On the contrary, one who wants to present the truth without distortion is straightforward in all his activities of body, mind and speech. He would be practising what he preaches. In accordance with this, Bhagavān Mahavira has recommended the following four ways of practising truth:

- (a) Guilelessness in bodily expression,
- (b) Straightforwardness of thoughts,
- (c) Ingenuousness of speech,
- (d) Harmony of speech and action.

३६. जाए सद्धाए निष्कलतो, तमेव अनुपालिया । विजहितु विस्तोतिथं ।

36. Jāye saddhāe ṇikkhamto, tameva anupāliya.
Vijahittu visottiyam.

36. One should preserve, without the slightest diminution, the faith which one had at the time of renunciation. One should not be swept away by the eddies of mercurial mind.

ANNOTATION 36: When a sādhaka — an aspirant of the Mokṣa — is initiated into the path of sādhana, his zest is certainly like the crescent moon. Even the slightest diminution of it is not desirable. Yet, during the prolonged course of sādhana, it is not improbable that the sādhaka's faith may remit slightly. Here, therefore, the teacher admonishes the novice to ever invigorate his faith continuously in the path. In case he is not able to make any progress, he is expected at least to persevere in his sādhana with the initial intensity.

The eddies, the mental fluctuations, or the doubts, are the dangerous pitfalls for the sādhaka.

३७. पणया बीरा सहावीहि ।

37. Paṇayā vīrā mahāvīhīm.

1. (Sthānāṅga Sutra, 4/102).

37. The valiant Sādhakas have dedicated themselves to the Great Path.

ANNOTATION 37: Non-violence is the path to liberation. It is everywhere, eternal and for everyone. That is why it is a Great Path. All those who have been dedicated to it or will be dedicated to it will attain liberation.

The Great Path also means Kundalini (vitality). An enterprising ascetic, for his sublimation, dedicates himself to this stream of vitality and makes it flow towards his brain through his spinal chord. Consequently his instinct of violence disappears. That conduct which is circumscribed by space and time is a smaller path. Equanimity is not so circumscribed. It can be practised in all space and time. That is why equanimity also is a Great Path.

Equanimity is not a creed. It is Religion in itself. All those who have attained peace have treaded, are treading and will tread this Great Path. And yet it remains as capacious as ever.

आडकाइयाणं अत्थित-अभयदान-पदं

३८ लोणं च आणाए अभिसमेच्चा अकुतोभयं ।

Āukātyāṇaṃ atthitta-abhaya-dāna-padam

38. Logaṃ ca āpāe abhisameccā akutobhayaṃ.

Existence of the Beings of Water-body and Promise of Non-intimidation to them

8. Comprehending the (living) world of the beings of water-body through the teachings of the Omniscient, a Sādhaka should make it free from all sorts of intimidation on his part.

३९. से बेमि—णेट सयं लोणं अन्माइक्खेज्जा, जेव अत्ताणं
अन्माइक्खेज्जा ।

जे लोयं अन्माइक्खइ, से अत्ताणं अन्माइक्खइ ।

जे अत्ताण अन्माइक्खइ, से लोयं अन्माइक्खइ ।

39. Se bemi — neva sayam logam abbhāikkhejjā, neva attānam abbhāikkhejjā.
 Je loyam abbhāikkhai, se attānam abbhāikkhai.
 Je attānam abbhāikkhai, se loyam abbhāikkhai.

39. I say —

One should neither deny (the existence of the living) world (of the beings of water-body) nor should he deny (existence of) one's own soul. He who denies (existence of the living) world of the beings of water-body) denies the existence of his own soul.

ANNOTATION 39: A disciple asked his teacher, "Venerable One! No one denies one's own existence. Is it not then strange to ask one not to question one's own existence?"

The teacher replied, "If anyone denies the existence of life in the beings of water-body, it amounts to denying one's own existence, for consciousness in the water beings of water body is identical with his own consciousness."

The term abbhāikkhejjā (Skt. abhyākhyāyet) means to malign, asperse, slander or accept falsehood as truth.

आउकाइयहिंसा-पदं

४०. लज्जमाणा पुढो पास ।

Aukatyahimsa-padam.

40. Lajjamāṇā puḍho pāsa.

40. See every (ascetic who has ceased from causing violence to these beings) leads a life of self-discipline

४१ अणगारा मोत्ति एगे पवयमाणा ।

41. Aṇagārā motti ege pavayamāṇā.

41. (And discern from them) those pseudo-monks who, despite professing, "We are mendicants" (act like householders, i.e. cause violence to the beings of water-body).

४२. जमिणं विरूवरूवेहिं सत्थेहिं उदय-कम्म-समारम्भेणं उदय-सत्थं
समारम्भमाणे अण्णे वणेगरूवे पाणे विहिंसति ।

42. Jamiṇaṃ virūvarūvehiṃ satthehiṃ udaya - kamma - samārambheṇaṃ udaya - satthaṃ samārambhamāṇe
aṇṇe vaṇegarūve pāṇe vihiṃsati.

42. He (pseudo-monk), employing various kinds of weapons, indulges in actions involving water, (thereby causing violence to the beings of water-body). (He causes violence not only to the beings of water-body, but also) causes violence to different kinds of other beings.

४३. तत्थ खलु भगवया परिण्णा पवेदिता ।

43. Tattha khalu bhagavayā parinṇā paveditā.

43. (Hence) Bhagavān Mahāvīra has taught discernment (i. e. comprehension and forswearing) with respect to this issue.

४४. इमस्स चेव जीवियस्स,
परिवंदण-माणण-पूयणाए,
जाई-मरण-मोयणाए,
दुक्खपडिघायहेउ ।

44. Imassa ceva jīviyassa,
Parivaṇḍaṇa - māṇaṇa - pūyaṇāe,
Jāi - maraṇa - moyāṇāe,
Dukkhapadighāyaheum.

44. (1) For the sake of survival,
(2) for the sake of praise, honour, reverence,
(3) for the sake of birth, death, liberation,
(4) for the sake of prevention of miseries, —

४५. से समयेव उदय-सत्थं समारभति, अण्णेहिं वा उदय-सत्थं
समारम्भावेति, अण्णे वा उदय-सत्थं समारभते समणुजाणति ।

45. Se sayameva udaya-satthaṃ samārambhati, annehum vā udaya-satthaṃ samārambhāveti,
aṇṇe vā udaya-satthaṃ samārambhamāṇte samañujāṇati.

45. Some monk either indulges himself in actions causing violence to the beings of water-body through various kinds of weapons, makes others to cause violence to the beings of water-body or approves of other causing violence to the beings of water-body.

४६. त से अहियाए, त से अबोहीए ।

46. Tam se ahīyāe, tam se abohīe.

46. Such an act of violence proves baneful for him.
Such an act of violence deprives him of enlightenment.

४७. से त समुज्जमाने, आयणीयं समुट्ठाए ।

47. Se tam samūjjhamāne, āyāñīyaṃ samuṭṭhāe.

47. He (true ascetic), comprehending it (i. e. consequence of act of violence), becomes vigilant over the practice of self-discipline.

४८. सोच्चा जलु भगवओ अणगाराणं वा अंतिए इहमेगेसि णायं
भवति—

एस जलु गंथे,

एस जलु मोहे,

एस जलु मारे,

एस जलु णरए ।

48. Soccā khalu bhagavao aṇagārāṇaṃ vā amītie ihamege-siri ṇāyaṃ bhavati —
Esa khalu gamthe,
Esa khalu mohe,
Esa khalu māre,
Esa khalu narae.

48. Hearing from Bhagavān Mahāvīra himself or from the monks, one comes to know, —
It (i. e. causing violence to the beings of water-body), in fact, is the knot of bondage,
it, in fact, is the delusion,

it, in fact, is the death,
it, in fact, is the hell.

४६ इत्थत्थं गडिए लोए ।

49. Iccattham gadhie loye.

49. (Nevertheless) man impelled by the aforesaid motives becomes engrossed in (the acts of inflicting injury to the beings of water-body).

५०. जमिण विरूवरूवेहिं सत्येहिं उदय-कम्म-समारभेण उदय-सत्यं
समारभमाणे अण्णे वणेगस्वे पाणे विहिंसति ।

50. Ḍamīṇaṃ virūvarūvehiṃ satthehiṃ udaya - kamma - samāraṃbhemaṃ udaya - sattham samāraṃbhamāṇe aṇṇe vaṇegaruve pāṇe vihiṃsati.

50. He, employing various kinds of weapons indulges in actions involving water, (thereby) causing violence (not only) to the beings of water-body, (but also) to different kinds of other beings.

आउकाइयाणं जीवत्त-वेदणाबोध-पदं

५१. से बेमि—अप्पेगे अंधमब्भे, अप्पेगे अद्धमच्छे ।

Āukāiyāṇaṃ jīwatta-vedanābodha-padaṃ

51. Se bemi—appege aṇḍhamabbhe, appege aṇḍhamacche.

Water beings — their Animation and Experience of Pain

51. I say—

(Just as consciousness of a man born without any sense-organs (i. e. one who is blind, deaf, dumb, crippled etc. from birth) is not manifest, the consciousness of the beings of water-body is also not manifest). (Nevertheless) such a man (the one born organless) (experiences pain) when struck or cut with a weapon, (and so do the beings of water-body).

१२. अप्येगे पायमब्भे, अप्येगे पायमच्चे ।^१

52. Appege pāyamabbhe, appege pāyamacche¹.

52. (On simultaneously) cutting and severing with weapons, (all the following thirty-two anatomical features of a man, he suffers excruciating pains, though he would not be able to express it):

Foot, ankle, leg, knee, thigh, waist, belly, stomach, flank, back, bosom, heart, breast, shoulder, arm, hand, finger, nail, neck, chin, lip, tooth, tongue, palate, throat, temple, ear, nose, eye, brow, forehead, and head.

(So is the case with the beings of water-body).

१३. अप्येगे सप्पमारए, अप्येगे उद्धवए ।

53. Appege saṃpamārae, appege uddavae.

53. Man (experiences pain) when forced into unconsciousness or when deprived of life, (so do the beings of water-body).

हिंसाविवेग-पदं

१४ से भेमि—सति पाणा उदय-निस्सिया जीवा अणेगा ।

Himsāvivēga-padaḥ

54. Se bemi —samti pāṇa udaya-nissiyā jīvā aṇegā.

Forswearing of Violence

54. I say—

That there are innumerable beings living in water.
(This fact is universally accepted).

१५ इह व खलु भो ! अणगाराण उदय-जीवा वियाहिया ।

55. Ihaṃ ca khalu bho ! aṇagārāṇaṃ udaya-jīvā viyāhiyā.

1. For the complete text, see, 1/29.

55. (But) O man! in this ascetic philosophy (i.e. the philosophy of the Arhats), it has been propounded that water itself is living.

ANNOTATIONS 54-55: Here a fundamental distinction is drawn between the two kinds of beings existing in water:

- (1) Beings which make water their habitat,
- (2) Beings which are embodied in water, i.e. water molecules themselves become the physical bodies. They are termed as beings of water-body.

The worms or micro-organisms which live in water have been accepted as life in water by all schools of thought. But the assertion that water molecules themselves become the bodies of living organisms viz. beings of water-body is to be found only in the philosophy of Bhagavān Mahāvira.

It is quite clear from the above that beings of water-body cannot be separated from water unless they are killed by a weapon, e.g. boiling. It follows, therefore, that the purest water, i.e. water from which beings of the first kind are completely removed, is still animate (sachitta) water.

Inanimate (achitta) water is that in which beings of water-body have been killed. Water may thus be classified into four types.

- (a) Animate water containing beings of kind (1)
- (b) Animate water devoid of kind (1).
- (c) Inanimate water containing beings of kind (1)
- (d) Inanimate water devoid of beings of kind (1).

Water may also be classified as follows:

- (a) Animate,
- (b) Inanimate,
- (c) Mixed.

When a weapon is operated upon animate water, it either becomes inanimate or mixed, according to whether the weapon used is powerful enough or not.

५६ सत्त्व चेत्य अनुवीह पासा ।

56. Sattham cettha anuvī pāsā.

56. O man! contemplate and visualise weapons which are capable of killing these (beings of water-body).

५७ पुढो सत्त्व पवेय्यं ।

57. Puḍho sattham pavēyam.

57. Thus propounded Bhagavān (Mahāvira) — "There are numerous weapons (which can kill) the beings of water-body."

ANNOTATIONS 56-57: The Niryukti enumerates seven kinds of weapons which kill beings of water body as follows:

- (1) Drawing water from well, etc.
- (2) Straining.
- (3) Washing clothes, etc.
- (4) Homologous weapons, i.e. water from different sources, e.g. lake-water and river-water act as weapons for each other.
- (5) Heterologous weapons, e.g. soil, oil, alkali, fire, etc.
- (6) Combination of 4 and 5, e.g. water mixed with soil.
- (7) Pyschic weapon, i.e. un-restrained impulse for violence.

५८ अदुवा अदिग्गदादायं ।

58. Aduvā adiggaḍḍāyāṃ.

58. Or it amounts to adattāḍḍā (i.e., appropriating that which is not given).

ANNOTATION 58: The Parivṛājakas (ascetics belonging to the heretical sects) used to beg animate water with due permission of the owner. Still they were accused by the Jains of indulging in stealing. Their argument was based on the fact that the beings of water-body never consented to anyone depriving them of their lives. Hence, if anyone used or accepted water even after duly taking the permission of the owner of the lake, etc., he still indulged in stealing, for he deprived the beings of water-body of their life without their consent.

५९. कप्पइ जे, कप्पइ जे पाउं, अदुवा विभूसाए ।

59. Kappaṃ jē, kappaṃ jē pāuṃ, aduvā vibhūsāe.

59. (The Ājīvikas and the Śaivas assert:) "We are allowed by our commandments to consume (raw) water for drinking purposes; quite deliberately we are allowed."

(The Buddhists contend:) "We are allowed to consume water both for drinking as well as for self-adornment purposes (such as bathing)."

ANNOTATION 59: There was a world of difference amongst the various schools of the śramaṇas regarding the usage of water by monks. The Jain ascetics asserted that usage of animate (or raw) water for any purpose was not free from the sins of violence as well as stealing.

On the other hand, the Ājīvikas (i.e. a school of the śramaṇa ascetics led by Makkhali Gosālaka), the Buddhists and some other ascetics contended that water was an inanimate matter and hence its use was free from the sins of violence as well as stealing. Thus some used water for drinking only, whereas others used it for bathing too.¹

६०. पुढो सत्थेहिं विउट्ठति ।

60. Puḍḍho satthehiṃ viuttaṃti.

60. (Thus, quoting their own authority) they cause violence (to the beings of water-body) through various kinds of weapons.

ANNOTATION 60: The monks such as Parivrājakas, etc. used to do violence to a certain extent to the beings of water-body for limited purposes such as bathing, drinking, etc. But causing violence to beings was not totally taboo for them.

1. Cf. Ovāṇiya Sutta, Sūtras, 111-113, 137-138.

६१ एत्थवि तेसिं णो णिकरणाए ।

61. Etthavi tesim̐ ño ñikarapāe.

61. (Those monks who quoting their commandments cause violence to the beings of water-body) do not completely abstain themselves from committing violence (i. e. their vow of not causing violence is not fulfilled).

हिंसाविबेग-पदं

६२. एत्थ सत्थं समारम्भमाणस्स इच्चेते आरंभा अपरिण्णाय्वा भवन्ति ।

Himsāvivēga-padam̐

62. Ettha sattham̐ samārambhamāṇassa iccete ārambhā aparipñāyā bhavaṃti.

Forswearing of Violence

62. He, who uses a weapon, on the beings of water-body, has neither comprehended nor forsworn actions (causing violence to the beings of water-body and other beings residing in water).

६३. एत्थ सत्थं असमारम्भमाणस्स इच्चेते आरंभा परिण्णाय्वा भवन्ति ।

63. Ettha sattham̐ asamārambhamāṇassa iccete ārambhā paripñāyā bhavaṃti.

63. (On the contrary) he who does not use any weapon on the beings of water-body, has comprehended and forsworn actions (causing violence to the beings of water-body and other beings residing in it).

६४. तं परिण्णाय मेहावी णेव सयं उदय-सत्थं समारभेज्जा, णेवण्णेहि उदय-सत्थं समारभावेज्जा, उदय-सत्थं समारभतेवि अण्णे ण समणुज्जाणेज्जा ।

64. Tam̐ paripñāya mehāvi ñeva sayam udaya-sattham̐ samārambhejjā, ñevannehim̐ udaya-sattham̐ samārambhāvejjā, udaya-sattham̐ samārambham̐tevi aṇṇe ña samanujāṇejjā.

64. Having discerned this, a sage should neither use any weapon causing violence to the beings of water-body, nor cause others to use it, nor approve of others using it.

६५. जस्सेते उदय-सत्थ-समारंभा परिण्णाया भवन्ति, से ह्मु मुणी परिण्णात-कम्मे ।

—त्ति बेमि ।

65. Jassete udaya-sattha-samāraṃbhā pariṇṇāyā bha-varānti, se hu muni pariṇṇāta - kamme.

— Tti bemi.

65. He, who discerns (i. e. comprehends and forswears)
the actions that cause violence to the beings of waterbody can be regarded as a (true) ascetic (for a true ascetic is he) who has discerningly forsworn actions.

— I say so,

SECTION IV

चउत्थो उद्देशो .

Cauttho Uddeso

तेउकाइयाणं अत्थित्त-पदं

६६. 'से वेमि'—गेव सयं लोग अब्भाइक्खेज्जा, णेव अत्ताणं
 अब्भाइक्खेज्जा ।
 जे लोग अब्भाइक्खइ, से अत्ताण अब्भाइक्खइ,
 जे अत्ताण अब्भाइक्खइ, से लोग अब्भाइक्खइ ।

Teukāiyāṇaṃ atthitta-padam

66. Se bemi — ŋeva sayam logam abbhāikkhejjā, ŋeva attāṇaṃ abbhāikkhejjā.
 Je logam abbhāikkhai, se attāṇaṃ abbhāikkhai,
 Je attāṇaṃ abbhāikkhai, se logam abbhāikkhai.

Existence of the Beings of Fire-Body

66. I say —
 One should neither deny (the existence of living) would (of the beings of fire-body), nor should he deny the existence of one's own soul. He, who denies (the existence of the living) world (of the beings of fire-body), denies the existence of his own soul.

- ६७ जे दीहलोग-सत्थस्स खेयण्णे, से असत्थस्स खेयण्णे ।
 जे असत्थस्स खेयण्णे, से दीहलोग-सत्थस्स खेयण्णे ।

67. Je dīhaloga-satthassa kheyāṇṇe, se asatthassa
 kheyāṇṇe,
 Je asatthassa kheyāṇṇe, se dīhaloga-satthassa
 kheyāṇṇe.

67. One who is conversant with the nature of weapon (causing violence) to the beings of fire-body is, (in fact), conversant with the non-weapon (i. e. self-restraint); (similarly) one, who is conversant with self-restraint, is also conversant with the nature of weapon (causing violence) to the beings of fire-body.

६८ वीरेहि एव अभिज्ञाय दिदृष्टं, सज्जेतेहि सया ज्ञतेहि सया अप्यमर्तेहि ।

68. Vīrehiṃ eyaṃ abhijñāya dīḍḍhaṃ, saṃjatehiṃ sayā jatehiṃ sayā appamattehiṃ.
68. This (i. e. the existence of beings of fire-body) has been perceived directly by those (ascetics) who have removed (the veils of the Karmas obscuring knowledge and intuition). Such ascetics are — bold (for they have gallantly overcome the hardships met with in the path of sādhana), self-disciplined (for they have controlled their mind and senses), self-composed (for they have toned down their passions), and ever vigilant (for they are always on guard against stupefying activities).

ANNOTATION 68:† Our knowledge of a substance may be either direct or indirect. Knowledge obtained through study, thinking, simple meditation etc. is indirect. Such a knowledge reveals only a few aspects of a substance, and they too may not be distinct, whereas knowledge obtained by higher meditation or on removing the veil of Karma particles obscuring knowledge, is direct. It is crystal clear and reveals at once all the aspects of the substances.

In ancient times, the ascetics through various techniques of meditation, used to gain direct perception of objects. The mechanical devices (like microscope etc.) are not the only things through which we can study or analyse a thing. Higher form of meditation and unveiled consciousness can also lead to direct perception of a thing. There are four stages for gaining direct knowledge:

- (1) Fortitude: facing hardships with brave and unwavering efforts.

- (2) Self-discipline: control of mind and senses,
- (3) Self-composure: pacification of anger, conceit, deceit, and greed. -
- (4) Vigilance: constant heedfulness.

तेउकाइयाहिंसा-पदं

६६. जे पमत्ते गुणद्धिउ, ते हु वंहे पवुव्वति ।

Teukāiyahimsa-padam

69. Je pamatte guṇatthie, se hu vaṇḍe pavuccati.

Violence to Beings of Fire-Body

69. One who is stupefied and desirous of (kindling fire for taking advantage of) its properties (such as light, heat, etc., for preparing food etc.) is called (i. e. is equivalent to) a scourge (i. e. a killer of the beings of fire-body).

७०. तं परिण्णाय मेहावी इयाणि नो जमहं पुव्वमकासी पमाएणं ।

70. Taṃ paripṇāya mehāvī iyāṇiṃ no jamahaṃ puvvama-kāsi pamāeṇaṃ.

70. Comprehending this, a sage (should resolve): "Henceforth I will not indulge in any actions which I used to indulge in due to my stupefaction."

७१. लज्जमाणा पुढो पास ।

71. Lajjamāṇa puḍho pāsa.

71. See! Every (ascetic who has ceased from causing violence to these beings) leads a life of self-discipline.

७२. अणगारा मोत्ति एवे पवयमाणा ।

72. Aṇagārā motti ege pavayamāṇā.

72. (And discern from them) those pseudo-monks who, despite professing, "We are mendicants," (act like householders i. e. cause violence to the beings of fire-body).

७३. जमिणं विरूवरूवेहि सत्थेहि अग्नि-कम्म-समारम्भेणं अग्नि-सत्त्वं
समारम्भमाणे, अग्णे वणेगरूवे पाणे विहिंसति ।

73. Jamiṇaṁ virūvarūvehiṁ satthehiṁ aṇaṇi-kamma-samārambhaṇaṁ aṇaṇi-satthaṁ samārambhamāṇe, aṇṇe vaṇegarūve pāṇe vihiṁsati.

73. He (pseudo-monk), employing various kinds of weapons, indulges in actions involving fire, (thereby causing violence to the beings of fire-body. (He causes violence not only to the beings of fire-body, but also) causes violence to different kinds of other beings.

ANNOTATION 73: The Niryukti enumerates the following eight kinds of weapons which when operated on the beings of fire-body cause violence to them:

- (1) Soil or sand
- (2) Water
- (3) Moist vegetation
- (4) Mobile beings
- (5) Homologous weapons (i. e. made up of the same body): fire from different sources such as grass and leaves act as weapons on each other.
- (6) Heterologous weapons; water, etc.
- (7) Combination of 5 and 6
- (8) Psychic weapon: unrestrained impulse for violence.

७४. तत्थं खलु भगवया परिण्णा पवेइया ।

74. Tattha khalu bhagavayā pariṇṇa paveiyā.

74. (Hence) Bhagavān Mahāvira has taught discernment (i. e. comprehension and forswearing) with respect to this issue.

७५ इमस्स चेव जीवियस्स,
परिवदण-माणण-पूयणाए,
जाई-मरण-मोयणाए,
दुक्खपडिघायहेउ ।

75. *Imassa ceva jīviyassa,
Parivaṇḍaṇa-māṇaṇa-pūyaṇāe,
Jāī-maraṇa-moyaṇāe,
Dukkhapaḍighāyaheum.*

75. (1) For the sake of survival,
(2) for the sake of praise, honour, reverence.
(3) for the sake of birth, death, liberation,
(4) for the sake of prevention of miseries.

७६ से सयमेव अगणि-सत्थ समारंभइ, अण्णेहि वा अगणि-सत्थं
समारंभावेइ, अण्णे वा अगणि-सत्थं समारंभमाणे समणुजाणइ ।

76. Se sayameva agaṇi-sattham samāraṁbhai, aṇṇehim vā agaṇi-sattham samāraṁbhāveī, aṇṇe vā agaṇisattham samāraṁbhamāṇe samaṇujāṇai.

76. Some monk either indulges himself in action causing violence to the beings of fire-body through various kinds of weapons, makes others to cause violence to the beings of fire-body or approves of others causing violence to the beings of fire-body.

७७ त से अहियाए, त से अबोहीए ।

77. Tam se ahīyāe, tam se abohīe.

77. Such an act of violence proves baneful for him; such an act of violence deprives him of enlightenment.

७८ से त सवुज्झमाणे, आयाणीयं समुत्थए ।

78. Se tam sambujjhamāṇe, āyāṇīyaṁ samuṭṭhāe.

78. He (true ascetic), comprehending it (i. e. consequence of acts of violence), becomes vigilant over the practice of self-discipline.

७९. सोच्चा खलु भगवओ अणगाराणं वा अतिए इहमेगेसि णायं
भवति—

एस खलु गये,
एस खलु मोहे,
एस खलु मारे,
एस खलु णरे ।

79. Soccā khalu bhagavao anagārāṇaṃ vā añtie ɪname-gesim̐ pāyaṃ bhavati —
Esa khalu gaṃthe,
Esa khalu mohe,
Esa khalu māre,
Esa khalu parae.

79. Hearing from Bhagavān Mahāvīra Himself or from the mendicants, one comes to know—

It (i. e. causing violence to the beings of fire-body),
in fact, is the knot of bondage,
it, in fact, is the delusion,
it, in fact, is the death,
it, in fact, is the hell.

८०. इत्थं गहिं लोए ।

80. Iccatthaṃ gaḍḍhie loyē.

80. (Nevertheless) man, impelled by the aforesaid motives, becomes engrossed in (the acts of inflictin injury to the beings of fire-body).

८१. जमिणं विरुवरुवेहिं सत्थेहिं अगणि-कम्म-समारंभेणं अगणि-सत्थं
समारभमाणे अण्णे वणेरुवे पाणे विहिंसति ।

81. Jamiṇaṃ virūvarūvehiṃ satthehiṃ agaṇi-kammasaṃāraṃbheṇaṃ agaṇi-satthaṃ saṃāraṃbhamāṇe
aṇṇe vaṇegarūve pāṇe vihiṃsati.

81. He, employing various kinds of weapons, indulges in actions involving fire, (thereby) causing violence to the beings of fire-body. (He causes violence not only to the beings of fire-body, but also) causes violence to different kinds of other beings.

तेजकाद्याणं जीवस्य वेदना बोध-यव

८२ से वेमि—अप्येगे अंधमग्गे, अप्येगे अंधमग्गे ।

Teukātyāṇaṃ jīvatta-vedanābodha-padam

82. Se bemi—appege aṇḍhamabbhe, appege aṇḍhamacche.

Fire-beings : Their Life and Experience of Pain

82. I say—

(Just as consciousness of a man born without any sense organs (i. e. one who is blind, deaf, dumb, crippled etc. from birth) is not manifest, the consciousness of the beings of fire-body is also not manifest.) (Nevertheless) such a man (the one born organ-less) (experiences pain) when struck or cut with a weapon (and so also do the beings of fire-body).

८३ अप्येगे पायमग्गे, अप्येगे पायमग्गे ।¹

83. Appege pāyamabbhe, appege pāyamacche.¹

83. (On simultaneously) cutting and severing with weapons, (all the following thirty-two anatomical features of a man, he suffers excruciating pain though he would not be able to express it):

Foot, ankle, leg, knee, thigh, waist, belly, stomach, flank, back, bosom, heart, breast, shoulder, arm, hand, finger, nail, neck, chin, lip, tooth, tongue, palate, throat, temple, ear, nose, eye, brow, forehead, and head.

(So is the case with the beings of fire-body).

८४ अप्येगे सपमारए, अप्येगे उद्दवए ।

84. Appege saṃpamārae, appege uddavae.

84. Man (experiences pain) when forced into unconscious-

1. For complete text, see, 1/29.

ness or when he is deprived of life. (So do the beings of fire-body).

हिंसाविवेग-पदं

८५. से बेमि—संति पाणा पुढवि-णित्थिया, तण-णित्थिया, वत्त-
णित्थिया, कट्ठ-णित्थिया, गोमय-णित्थिया, कयवर-णित्थिया :
संति संपातिमा पाणा, आहुच्च संपयंति य ।
अगणिं च खलु पुट्ठा, एगे संघायमावज्जंति ॥
जे तत्थ संघायमावज्जंति, ते तत्थ परियावज्जंति ।
जे तत्थ परियावज्जंति, ते तत्थ उद्दयंति ॥

Himsāvivēga-padam

85. Se bemi—saṃti pāṇā puḍhavi-ṇissiyā, tapa-ṇissiyā, patta-ṇissiyā, kaṭṭha-ṇissiyā, gomaya-ṇissiyā,
kayavara-ṇissiyā:
Saṃti saṃpātīmā pāṇā, āhacca saṃpayaṃti ya,
Agaṇiṃ ca khalu puṭṭhā, ege saṃghāyamāvajjāṃti..
Je tattha saṃghāyamāvajjāṃti, te tattha pariyāvajjāṃti,
Je tattha pariyāvajjāṃti, te tattha uddayaṃti..

Forswearing of Violence

85. I say —

"There are beings residing in earth (soil), grass, leaves, wood, cowdung and garbage; there are also beings (insects) which fly in the air and drop down from there. All these beings shrivel up on coming in contact with fire.

"Those beings which shrivel up (on coming in contact with fire), faint (by its heat), and those which faint (by its heat) die there (and then)."

८६. एत्थं सत्थं समारंभमाणस्स इच्चेते आरम्भा अपरिण्णायाम भवति ।

86. Ettha sattham samāraṇibhamāṇassa iccete āraṇbhā aparipṇāyā bhavaṃti.

86. He who uses a weapon on the beings of fire-body has neither comprehended nor forsworn actions (causing violence to the beings of fire-body and other beings residing in the fire.)

८७ एत्थ सत्थ असमारभमाणस्स इच्चेते आरभापरिण्णाय भवति ।

87. Ettha sattham asamārambhamāpassa iccete ārambhā pariṇṇāyā bhavanāti.
87. (On the contrary) he who does not use any weapon on the beings of fire-body has comprehended and forsworn actions (causing violence to the beings of fire-body and other beings residing in it).

८८ तं परिण्णाय मेहावी नेव सय अगणि-सत्थ समारभेज्जा, नेवण्णेहिं
अगणि-सत्थ समारभावेज्जा, अगणि-सत्थ समारभमाणे अण्णे
न समणुजाणेज्जा ।

88. Taṃ pariṇṇāya mehāvī neva sayam aṇaṇi-sattham samārambhejjā, nevaṇṇehim aṇaṇi-sattham samārambhāvejjā, aṇaṇi-sattham samārambhamāṇe aṇṇe na samaṇuḍaṇeja.

88. Having discerned this, a sage should neither use any weapon causing violence to the beings of fire-body, nor cause others to use it, nor approve of others using it.

८९ जस्सेते अगणि-कम्म-समारभा परिण्णाय भवति, से हु मुणी परिण्णाय-कम्मे ।

— त्ति वेमि ।

89. Jassete aṇaṇi-kamma-samārambhā pariṇṇāyā bhavanti, se hu muṇi pariṇṇāyā-kamme.

— Tti bemi

89. He who discerns (i. e. comprehends and forswears) the actions that cause violence to the beings of fire-body, can be regarded as a (true) ascetic (for a true ascetic is he) who has discerningly forsworn actions.

— I say so.

SECTION V.

पंचमो उद्देशो

Pañcama Uddeso

अणवार-पदं

६०. तं णो करिस्सामि समुत्थाए ।

*Aṇagāra-padam*90. Taṃ no karissāmi samutthāe.Definition of a Monk

90. (One pledged to non-violence should resolve:) "Having been ordained (to practise non-violence), I shall not indulge in it (violence)."

✓ ६१. मत्ता मइमं अणय विदित्ता ।

91. Matṭā matmaṃ aṇayaṃ vidittā.

91. Having reflected upon (the existence of living beings) and having comprehended non-intimidation (i. e. the fact that every living being desires to be free from intimidation as I do), a man of acumen (does not cause violence to any being).

ANNOTATION 91: Both comprehension and renunciation are essential elements in the path of sādhana. Renunciation presupposes comprehension and comprehension is necessarily followed by renunciation. One without the other is futile. That is why the teachers have advised disciples to acquire knowledge first and then to put into practice the principle of non-violence.

In the present aphorism, acquirement of knowledge is suggested through two steps:

- (1) Reflection
- (2) Feeling of self-equivalence with all beings.

Here, the first step furnishes one with the enlightenment revealing the truth, and the second enables him to establish unity with all beings. Then follows the practice of non-violence in life.

✓ ९२ त जे णो करए एसोवरए, एत्थोवरए एस अणगारेत्ति पवुच्चइ ।

92. Tam je ño karae esovarae, ethovarae esa añagāretti pavuccai.

92. He who does not commit violence is one who has ceased from (sinful) actions; it is he who has ceased from (sinful) actions (according to the code of conduct of the Arhats) that deserves to be called a monk.

गिहवाइणो वि गिहवास-पदं

✓ ९३. जे गुणे से आवट्टे, जे आवट्टे से गुणे ।

Gihacāṇo vi gihavāsa-padam

11271

93. Je guṇe se āvaṭṭe, je āvaṭṭe se guṇe.

A Hypocritical Ascetic

93. Carnality is the whirlpool;
the whirlpool is nothing else but carnality.

९४ उद्ध अहं तिरियं पाईणं पासमाणे रुवाइ पासति, सुणमाणे सदाइ सुणति ।

94. Uddham ahaṃ tiriyaṃ paīṇaṃ pāsamaṇe rūvāim pāsati, suṇamaṇe saddāim suṇeti.

94. One who looks upwards, downwards, sideways or in front, sees (various sorts of) forms (i. e. colours); and a listener hears (various sorts of) sounds (coming from various directions).

९५. उद्ध अह् तिरिय पाईणं मुच्छमाणे रुवेसु मुच्छति, सद्देसु आवि ।

95. Uḍḍham aham tiriyaṃ pāṇaṃ mucchamaṇe rūvesu mucchati, saddesu āvi.

95. One who feels attachments (for the objects present) upwards, downwards, sideways or in front becomes attached to the (various sorts of) forms (while seeing) and also to (various sorts of) sounds (while listening).

९६ एस लोए वियाहिए ।

96. Esa loe viyāhie.

96. This is known as the world (of attachments).

९७ एत्थ अगुत्ते अणाणाए ।

97. Ettha agutte aṇāṇāe.

97. One who does not control (his mind and senses) in this (world of attachments) does not comply with my Instruction.

९८ पुणो-पुणो गुणासाए, वंक्समायारे, पमत्ते गारमावसे ।

98. Puṇo-puṇo guṇāsāe, vaṅkasaṃāyāre, pamatte gāra-māvase.

98. One who repeatedly reveals in sensual pleasures, who is a hypocrite and who is lax (in self-discipline), (though professing to be a monk,) is, in fact, a householder.

ANNOTATIONS 93-98: The word 'guṇa' signifies here the ve types of sensual qualities viz., colour, sound, odour, taste and touch. These are existent in all directions — east, west, south and north; up, down and sideways. Perception of these qualities through the sense-organs and feelings of attachment to them are two distinct phenomena. The Sādhaka is warned here to be on his guard against the latter. For, one who gets lost in the world of attachments becomes a slave of his desires which, subsequently, degenerates him into a wanton or a licentious person. Consequently he would not be able to follow the path of asceticism and hence leaving it, would become again a householder.

In case he does not become a householder, he would still act like one, even though remaining in the garbs of a monk.

Here, therefore, the evangelist has compared the sensual qualities with a whirlpool. Just as a person caught in a whirlpool finds it difficult to extricate himself out of it, so also a sādhaka caught in sensual pleasures cannot easily free himself from them.

वणस्सइकाइयहिंसा-पदं

६६ लज्जमाणा पुढो पास ।

Vaṇassaikāyahiṃsā-padam

99. Lajjamāṇā puḍho pāsa.

Violence to Beings of Vegetable-body

99. See! every (ascetic who has ceased from causing violence to these beings) leads a life of self-discipline.

१०० अणगारा मोत्ति एगे पवयमाणा ।

100. Apagārā motti ege pavayamāṇā.

100. (And discern from them) those pseudo-monks who, despite professing, "We are mendicants, "(act like householders i. e. cause violence to the beings of vegetable-body).

१०१ जमिणं विरुवरुवेहिं सत्थेहिं वणस्सइ-कम्म-समारभेण वणस्सइ-सत्थं समारंभमाणे अण्णे वणेगस्सवे पाणे विहिंसति ।

101. Jamimaṃ virūvarūvehiṃ satthehiṃ vaṇassai-kamma-samārambheṇaṃ vaṇassaisattham samārambhamāṇe aṇṇe vaṇegarūve pāṇe vihiṃsati.

101. He (pseudo-monk), employing various kinds of weapons, indulges in actions involving vegetable, (thereby) causing violence to the beings of vegetable-body. (He causes violence not only to the beings of vegetable-body, but also) causes violence to different kinds of other beings.

ANNOTATION 101: The Niryukti enumerates the following kinds of weapons which, when operated on beings of vegetable-body, cause violence to them:

- (1) The human limbs and mouth.
- (2) Homologous weapons: wooden implements like a stick, etc.
- (3) Heterologous weapons: stone, fire, etc.
- (4) Combination of 2 and 3- weapons like axe, chisel etc.
- (5) Psychic weapon: unrestrained impulses for causing violence.

१०२ तत्त्व खलु भगवया परिण्णा पवेदिता ।

102. Tettha khalu bhagavayā parinnā paveditā.

102. (Hence) Bhagavān Mahāvīra has taught discernment (i. e. comprehension and forswearing) with respect to this issue.

१०३ इमस्स चेव जीवियस्स,
परिवंदण-माप्पण-पूयणाए,
जाती-मरण-मोयणाए,
दुक्खपडिषायहेतुं ।

103. Imassa ceva jīviyassa,
Parivaṇḍapa-māpapa-pūyapae,
Jātī-maraṇa-moyanāe,
Dukkhapaḍighayaheum.

03. (1) For the sake of survival,
- (2) for the sake of praise, honour, reverence,
- (3) for the sake of birth, death, liberation,
- (4) for the sake of prevention of miseries. ~

१०४. से सयमेव वणस्सइ-सत्थं समारंभइ, अप्णेहिं वा वणस्सइ-सत्थं
समारंभावेइ, अप्णे वा वणस्सइ-सत्थं समारंभमाणे
समणुजाणइ ।

104. Se sayameva vaṇassai-sattham samāraṁbhai, appe-him vā vaṇassai-sattham samāraṁbhāve, appe vā vaṇassai-sattham samāraṁbhamāṇe samaṇujāṇai.

104. Some monk either indulges himself in action causing violence to the beings of vegetable-body through various kinds of weapons, makes others to cause violence to the beings of vegetable-body or approves of others causing violence to the beings of vegetable-body.

१०४ त से अहियाए, तं से अबोहीए ।

105. Tam se ahīyāe, tam se abohīe.

105. Such an act of violence proves baneful for him, such an act of violence deprives him of enlightenment.

१०५ से त संबुज्जमाने, जावाणीयं समुद्धाए ।

106. Se tam sambujjhamāne, āyāñīyaṃ samuddhāe.

106. He (true ascetic), comprehending it (i. e. consequences of acts of violence) becomes vigilant over the practice of self-discipline.

१०७ सोक्खा भगवजो, अणगारणं वा अतिए इहमेगेस पायं

भवति—

एस खलु गधे,

एस खलु मोहे,

एस खलु मारे,

एस खलु पिरए ।

107. Soccā bhagavao, aṇagārāṇaṃ vā antie ihamegesin ñāyaṃ bhavati —
Esa khalu gaṃthe,
Esa khalu mōhe,
Esa khalu māre,
Esa khalu pīray

107. Hearing from Bhagavān Mahāvīra Himself or from the monks, one comes to know —
It (i. e. causing violence to the beings of vegetable-body), in fact, is the knot of bondage,
it, in fact, is the delusion,

it, in fact, is the death,
it, in fact, is the hell.

१०८. इच्छत्यं गदिए लोए ।

108. Iccattham gadhie loe.

108. (Nevertheless) man, impelled by the aforesaid motives becomes engrossed in (the acts of inflicting injury to the beings of vegetable-body).

१०९ जमिणं विरुवरुवेहिं सत्येहिं वणस्सइ-कम्म-समारभेणं वणस्सइ-
सत्यं समारभेमाणे अण्णे वणेगरुवे पाणे विहिंसति ।

109. Jamiṇaṃ virūvarūvehiṃ satthehiṃ vaṇassaī-kamma-samāraṃbhepaṃ vaṇassaisattham samāraṃbhemāṇe anne vaṇegarūve pāṇe vihiṃsati.

109. He, employing various kinds of weapons, indulges in actions involving vegetable, (thereby) causing violence to the beings of vegetable-body. (He causes violence not only to the beings of vegetable-body, but also) causes violence to different kinds of other beings.

वणस्सइकाइयाणं जीवत्त-वेदणाबोध-पदं

११०. से बेमि—अप्पेगे अंधमब्भे, अप्पेगे अद्धमच्चे ।

Vaṇassaikāyāṇaṃ jīvatta-vedanābodha-padam

110. Se bemi—appege aṇdhamabbhe, appege aṇdhamacche.

Vegetable Beings : Their Animation and Experience of Pain

110. I say—

(Just as consciousness of a man born without any sense-organs (i. e. one who is blind, deaf, dumb, crippled etc. from birth) is not manifest, the consciousness of the beings of vegetable-body is also not manifest). (Nevertheless) such a man (the one born organless), (experiences pain) when struck or cut with a weapon (and so do the beings of vegetable-body).

१११. अप्पेगे पायमब्भे, अप्पेगे पायमच्चे ।*

111. Appege payamabbhe, appege pāyamacche*.

111. (On simultaneously) cutting and severing with weapons (all the following thirty-two anatomical features of a man, he suffers excruciating pain though he would not be able to express it):

Foot, ankle, leg, knee, thigh, waist, belly, stomach, flank, back, bosom, heart, breast, shoulder, arm, hand, finger, nail, neck, chin, lip, tooth, tongue, palate, throat, temple, nose, ear, eye, brow, forehead and head.

(So is the case with the beings of vegetable-body).

११२. अप्येगे संपमारए, अप्येगे उद्दवए ।

112. Appege saṃpamārae, appege uddavae.

112. Man (experiences pain) when forced into unconsciousness or when he is deprived of life. (So do the beings of vegetable-body).

✓ वनस्सइजीवाणं माणुस्सेण तुलणा-पदं

११३. से बेमि—इमपि जाइधम्मयं, एयंपि जाइधम्मयं ।

इमपि बुद्धिधम्मयं, एयंपि बुद्धिधम्मयं ।

इमपि चित्तमंतयं, एयंपि चित्तमंतयं ।

इमपि छिन्नं मिलाति, एयंपि छिन्नं मिलाति ।

इमपि आहारयं, एयंपि आहारयं ।

इमपि अणिच्चयं, एयंपि अणिच्चयं ।

इमपि असासयं, एयंपि असासयं ।

इमपि चयावचइयं, एयंपि चयावचइयं ।

इमपि विपरिणामधम्मयं, एयंपि विपरिणामधम्मयं ।

Vaṇassaṭṭhīvāṇaṃ māṇusseṇa tulaṇā-padaṃ

113. Se bemi—Imaṃpi jāidhammayāṃ, eyaṃpi jāidhammayāṃ.

Imaṃpi buddhidhammayāṃ, eyaṃpi buddhidhammayāṃ.

Imaṃpi cittamañtayaṃ, eyaṃpi cittamañtayaṃ.

Imaṃpi chinnaṃ milāti, eyaṃpi chinnaṃ milāti.

* For the complete text, see, 1/29.

Imāṃpi āhāragāṃ, eyāṃpi āhāragāṃ.
 Imāṃpi aṇiccayāṃ, eyāṃpi aṇiccayāṃ.
 Imāṃpi asāsāyāṃ, eyāṃpi asāsāyāṃ.
 Imāṃpi cayāvacaīyāṃ, eyāṃpi cayāvacaīyāṃ.
 Imāṃpi vipariṇāmadhammayāṃ, eyāṃpi vipariṇāmadhammayāṃ.

Comparison of Plant Life with Human Life

113. I say —

- | | |
|---|--|
| (a) This (i. e. human beings) is born; | This (i. e. plant) too is born. |
| (b) This grows; | This too grows. |
| (c) This possesses consciousness; | This too possesses consciousness. |
| (d) On being cut this becomes sad; | This too becomes sad (i. e. withers) on being cut. |
| (e) This takes nourishment; | This too takes nourishment. |
| (f) This is mortal; | This too is mortal. |
| (g) This is not eternal; | This too is not eternal. |
| (h) There is metabolism (anabolism and ketabolism) in this (i.e. building up of new cells and decaying of old cells); | There is metabolism in this too. |
| (i) This undergoes various transformations (such as aging etc.); | This too undergoes various transformations (such as aging etc.). |

ANNOTATION 113: Besides the points of similarity enumerated in this aphorism, there are some more phenomena, according to the commentary, common to both human beings and plants, e. g. sleep, longings during pregnancy, disease/ etc.

हिंसाविवेग-पदं

११४. एतत् सत्यं समारंभमाणस्तस्य इच्छते आरम्भा अपरिष्णता भवति ।

Himsā-vivega-padam

114. Ettha sattham samārambhamāpassa iccete ārambhā aparippatā bhavānti.

Forswearing of Violence

114. He who uses a weapon on the beings of vegetable-body, has neither comprehended nor forsworn actions (causing violence to the beings of vegetable-body and other beings residing in the vegetable.)

११४. एतत् सत्त्वं असमारभमाणस्स इच्छेते आरंभा परिणया भवन्ति ।

115. Ettha sattham asamārambhamāpassa iccete ārambhā parippāyā bhavānti.

115. (On the contrary) he who does not use any weapon on the beings of vegetable-body, has comprehended and forsworn actions (causing violence to the beings of vegetable-body, and other beings residing in it.)

११६. तं परिणाय मेहावी नेव सयं वणस्सइ-सत्थं समारंभेज्जा, नेवण्णेहि वणस्सइ-सत्थं समारंभावेज्जा, नेवण्णे वणस्सइ-सत्थं
समारभते समणुजाणेज्जा ।

116. Tam parippāya mehāvī neva sayam vaṇassai-sattham samārambhējā, nevaṇṇehim vaṇassai-sattham samārambhāvejā, nevaṇṇe vaṇassai-sattham samārambhānte samanujānejā.

116. Having discerned this, a sage should neither use any weapon causing violence to the beings of vegetable-body, nor cause others to use it, nor approve of others using it.

११७. जस्सेते वणस्सइ-सत्थं-समारंभा परिणया भवति, से णु मुणी परिणाय-कम्मे ।

—ति वेमि ।

117. Jassete vaṇassai-sattha-samārambhā parinnāyā bhavānti, se hu mupī parinnāya-kamme.

— Tti bemi.

117. He, who discerns (i. e. comprehends and forswears) the actions that cause violence to the beings of vegetable-body, can be regarded as a (true) ascetic (for a true ascetic is he) who has discerningly forsworn actions.

—I say so.

SECTION VI

छद्दो उद्देशो

Chattho Uddeso

संसार-पदं

✓ ११८ से बेमि—संतिमे तसा पाणा, तं जहा—अंडया पोयया जराउया
रसया संसेयया समुच्छिमा उब्भिया ओववाइया ।

Samsāra-padam

118. Se bemi—saṁtime tasā pāpā, taṁ jahā — aṇḍayā poyayā jarāuyā rasayā samseyayā sammucchimā ub-bhiyā ovavāiyā.

World of Recurrent Transmigration

118. I say—

These are mobile beings such as those born

- (1) out of eggs,
- (2) out of foetus (born complete)
- (3) out of foetus with the amnion (or the chorion, an enveloping membrane),
- (4) out of fluids,
- (5) out of sweat
- (6) by coagulation,
- (7) by sprouting from the earth),
- (8) spontaneously (i. e. not as a result of union of sperms and ova).

ANNOTATION 118: Some examples of these genera are respectively as follows:

- (1) Birds, etc.
- (2) Elephants, bats, etc. (Pota means a young one; po-taja, therefore, means a being which is born as a young one (i. e. without an enveloping membrane).

- (3) Human beings, and quadrupeds such as cows and buffaloes etc. (Jarūyu means the membrane which envelops the young one at the time of birth).
- (4) Worms, etc. (generated in fluids like curd, butter-milk etc.)
- (5) Bugs, lice, etc.
- (6) Two-sensed, three-sensed, and four-sensed beings, (whose birth depends upon external conditions).
- (7) Butter-flies, wagtails, etc.
- (8) Hell-beings and celestial beings. These are born spontaneously and come to manhood within a muhūrta (i. e. 48 minutes). It may be mentioned that No. (vi) includes (iv), (v) & (vii) also.

११९. एस संसारेत्ति पवुच्चत्ति ।

119. Esa saṃsāretti pavuccati.

119. This (category of mobile-beings) is called saṃsara (i. e. world of recurrently transmigrating beings).

ANNOTATION 119. The world of mobile-beings is called here saṃsara perhaps for two reasons:

- (1) Souls go on transmigrating from one genus to another one, passing through the cycles of birth and death.
- (2) Only the beings belonging to this category are capable of locomotion.

१२०. मंदस्स अवियाणमो ।

120. Maṇḍassa aviyaṇao.

120. The slow-witted and the benighted ones (go on transmigrating in this world).

ANNOTATION 120: In this aphorism two causes of the incessant transmigration of souls are pointed out:

- (1) Lack of wisdom or discretion.
- (2) Ignorance.

One who has acquired the Right Knowledge and who is possessed of discretionary powers can liberate himself from the world-cycle.

१२१ णिज्झादत्ता पडिलेहिता पत्तेय परिणिव्वाण ।

121. Ñijjhāṭṭā paḍilehittā patteyaṃ parinivvāṇaṃ.

121. Through observation and scrutiny find out for yourself that peace is dear to every living being.

१२२ सर्वेसि पाणाणं, सर्वेसि भूयाण, सर्वेसि जीवाणं, सर्वेसि
सत्ताण अस्साय अपरिणिव्वाण महम्मय दुक्ख ति वेमि ।

122. Savvesiṃ pāṇāṇaṃ, savvesiṃ bhūyāṇaṃ, savvesiṃ jīvāṇaṃ, savvesiṃ sattāṇaṃ assāyaṃ aparinivvāṇaṃ mahabbhayaṃ dukkhaṃ ti vemi.

122. Through observation and scrutiny find out for yourself that inquietude is distasteful to, highly terrifying and painful for all animals, all beings, all those throbbing with life and all souls. So do I say.

ANNOTATIONS 121-122: The words assāyaṃ, aparinivvāṇaṃ, mahabbhayaṃ, and dukkhaṃ are all more or less synonymous with suffering or pain. On the contrary, sāyaṃ, parinivvāṇaṃ, abhayaṃ and sukhaṃ signify the feeling of happiness.

The purport of the author here is to point out the fact that only he who knows and realises the Eternal Truth that every living being is keen to have peace and pleasure, and has a strong antipathy to inquietude and suffering is competent to practise abstinence from violence.

तसकाइयहिंसापदं

१२३ तसंति पाणा पडिसोदिसासु य ।

Tasakāyaḥimsā-padaṃ

123. Tasaṃti pāṇā paḍisodisāsu ya

Violence to Mobile Living Beings

123. (Being overwhelmed by grief), the creatures are scared from (all) directions and intermediate directions.

ANNOTATION 123. All beings live under constant strain due to fear from all sides—all directions. There is, in fact, no direction in which they can live free from terror. (It is probably for this reason that a silk-worm forms a cocoon around itself). Thus, beings in all directions and intermediate directions are intimidated on account of various sorts of mental and physical sufferings.

१२४. तत्त्व-तत्त्व पुढो पास, आडरा परितावेंति ।

124. Tattha-tattha puḍho pāsa, āura paritāveṃti.

124. See! Almost everywhere the passionate man are tormenting (mobile-beings).

१२५. संति पाणा पुढो सिंया ।

125. Samti pāṇa puḍho siyā.

125. (Each of the) mobile-beings has its own body to inhabit.

१२६. लज्जमाणा पुढो पास ।

126. Lajjamāṇa puḍho pāsa.

126. See! Every (ascetic who has ceased from causing violence to these beings), leads a life of self-discipline.

१२७. अणगारा मोत्ति एगे पवयमाणा ।

127. Aṇagārā motti ege pavayamāṇa.

127. (And discern from them) those pseudo-monks who, despite professing, "We are mendicants," (act like householders i.e. cause violence to the mobile-beings).

१२८ जमिण विरुद्धरूवेहि सत्येहि तसकाय-समारभेणं तसकाय-सत्थ
समारभमाणे अण्णे वणेगस्स वे पाणे विहिंसति ।

128. Jamīṇaṃ virūvarūvehaṃ satthehaṃ tasakāya - samārambhaṇaṃ tasakāya-satthaṃ samārambhamāṇe aṇṇe vaṇe-ga-sse paṇe vihiṃsati.

128. He (pseudo-monk), employing various kinds of weapons, indulges in actions involving mobile-beings, (thereby) causing violence to the mobile-beings, (he causes violence not only to the mobile-beings, but also) causes violence to different kinds of other beings.

१२९ तत्थ खलु भगवया परिण्णा पवेइया ।

129. Tattha khalu bhagavayā pariṇṇā pavēyā.

129. (Hence) Bhagavān Mahāvīra has taught discernment (i.e. comprehension and forswearing) with respect to this issue.

१३० इमस्स चैव जीवियस्स,
परिवदण-माण-पूयणाए,
जाई-मरण-मोयणाए,
दुक्खपडिघायहेत्त ।

130. *Imassa ceva jīviyassa,
Parivāṇḍaṇa-māṇa-pūyaṇāe,
Jāi-maraṇa-moyaṇāe, Dukkha-paḍiḡhāyaheṃ.*

130. (1) for the sake of survival,
(2) for the sake of praise, honour, reverence,
(3) for the sake of birth, death, liberation,
(4) for the sake of prevention of miseries.

१३१ से सयमेव तसकाय-सत्थ समारंभति, अण्णेहि वा तसकाय-सत्थं
समारभवेह, अण्णे वा तसकाय-सत्थ समारभमाणे समणुज्जाणह ।

131. Se sayameva tasakāya-sattham samārambhatī, aṇṇe-huṃ vā tasakāya-sattham samārambhāvei, aṇṇe vā tasakāya-sattham samārambhamāṇe samanujānai.

131. Some monk either indulges himself in action causing violence to the mobile-beings through various kinds of weapons, makes others to cause violence to the mobile-beings, or approves of others causing violence to the mobile-beings.

१३२. त से अहियाए, त से अबोहीए ।

132. Tam se ahīyāe, tam se abohīe.

132. Such an act of violence proves baneful for him, such an act of violence deprives him of enlightenment.

१३३. से त संबुद्धमाणे, आयाणीयं समुद्गाए ।

133. Se tam sambuddhamāṇe, āyāṇīyaṃ samuttāḥae.

133. He (true ascetic), comprehending it (i. e. consequences of act of violence), becomes vigilant over the practice of self-discipline.

१३४. सोळा भगवओ, अणगाराणं वा अंतिए इहमेगेसि णायं भवइ—

एस खलु गये,

एस खलु मोहे,

एस खलु मारे,

एस खलु णरए ।

134. Soccā bhagavao, aṇagārāṇaṃ vā antīe iha megesim ṇāyaṃ bhavaī —

Esa khalu gaṃthe,

Esa khalu mohe,

Esa khalu māre,

Esa khalu ṇarāe.

134. Hearing from the Bhagavān Mahāvīra Himself or from the monks, one comes to know:—

It (i. e. causing violence to the mobile-beings), in fact, is the knot of bondage,

it, in fact, is the delusion,
it, in fact, is the death,
it, in fact, is the hell.

१३५. इच्छत्वं गदिए लोए ।

135. Iccatham gadhie loe.

135. (Nevertheless) man, impelled by the aforesaid motives, becomes engrossed in (the acts of inflicting injury to the mobile-beings).

१३६. जमिण विरुवरुवेहिं सत्थेहिं तसकाय-समारभेणं तसकाय-सत्वं
समारभमाणे अण्णे वणेरुवे पाणे विहिसति ।

136. Jaminam virūvarūvehiṃ satthehiṃ, tasakāya-samārambheṇaṃ tasakāya-sattham samārambhamāṇe aṇṇe vaṇegarūve pāṇe vihimsati.

136. He, employing various kinds of weapons, indulges in actions involving mobile-beings, (thereby) causing violence to the mobile-beings, (He causes violence not only to the mobile beings but also) to different kinds of other beings.

तसकाइयाणं जीवत्त-वेदणाबोध-पदं

१३७. से वेदि—अप्पेगे अममब्भे, अप्पेगे अममच्छे ।

Tasakāyāṇaṃ jīvatta - vedanābodha-padam

137. Se bemi—appege aṃdhamabbhe, appege aṃdhamācche.

Mobile Living Beings : Their Animation and Experience of Pain

137. I say —

(Just as consciousness of a man born without any sense-organs (i. e. one who is blind, deaf, dumb, crippled etc. from birth) is not manifest, the consciousness of the mobile-beings is also not manifest.) (Nevertheless) such a man (the one born organless) (experiences pain) when struck or cut with a weapon, (so also do the mobile-being).

१३८. अप्पेगे पायमब्भे, अप्पेगे पायमच्चे ।¹

138. Appege pāyamabbhe, appege-pāyamacche¹.

138. (On simultaneously) cutting and severing with weapons, (all the following thirty-two anatomical features of a man, he suffers excruciating pain though he would not be able to express it):

Foot, ankle, leg, knee, thigh, waist, belly, stomach, flank, back, bosom, heart, breast, shoulder, arm, hand, finger, nail, neck, chin, lip, tooth, tongue, palate, throat, temple, ear, nose, eye, brow, forehead and head.

(So is the case with the mobile-being).

१३९. अप्पेगे संपमारए, अप्पेगे उद्दवए ।

139. Appege sampamārae, appege uddavae.

139. Man (experiences pain) when forced into unconsciousness or when he is deprived of life. (So do the mobile-being).

हिंसाविवेग-पदं

१४०. से बेमि—अप्पेगे अच्छाए वहति, अप्पेगे अजिणाए वहति,
अप्पेगे मंसाए वहति, अप्पेगे सोणियाए वहति,
अप्पेगे हिययाए वहति, अप्पेगे पित्ताए वहति,
अप्पेगे वसाए वहति, अप्पेगे पिच्छाए वहति,
अप्पेगे पुच्छाए वहति, अप्पेगे बालाए वहति,
अप्पेगे सिगाए वहति, अप्पेगे विसाणाए वहति,
अप्पेगे दत्ताए वहति, अप्पेगे दाढाए वहति,
अप्पेगे नहाए वहति, अप्पेगे प्हावणीए वहति,
अप्पेगे अट्टीए वहति, अप्पेगे अट्ठिमिजाए वहति,
अप्पेगे अट्टाए वहति, अप्पेगे अणट्टाए वहति,
अप्पेगे हिंसिसु मेत्ति वा वहति,
अप्पेगे हिंसति मेत्ति वा वहति,
अप्पेगे हिंसिस्सति मेत्ति वा वहति ।

Himsāuvvega-padam

140. Se bemi — appege accāe vahaṃti, appege ajiṇāe vahaṃti,

1. For the complete text, see, 1/29.

Appege mamsāe vahaṃti, appege soṇiyāe vahaṃti,
 Appege hiyaṇāe vahaṃti, appege piṭṭāe vahaṃti,
 Appege vasāe vahaṃti, appege picchāe vahaṃti,
 Appege pucchāe vahaṃti, appege bālāe vahaṃti,
 Appege suṃgāe vahaṃti, appege visāṇāe vahaṃti,
 Appege daṃtāe vahaṃti, appege dādhāe vahaṃti,
 Appege nahāe vahaṃti, appege ṇhārunīe vahaṃti,
 Appege aṭṭhīe vahaṃti, appege aṭṭhimimjāe vahaṃti,
 Appege aṭṭhāe vahaṃti, appege anattāe vahaṃti,
 Appege himsimsu mettī vā vahaṃti, appege himsamti mettī vā vahaṃti, appege himsissamti mettī vā vahaṃti.

Forswearing of Violence

140. I say —

Some people kill (beings) for the sake of obtaining their body, while some others do so for the sake of obtaining their skin, flesh, blood, heart, bile, fat, feathers, tail, hair, horns, tusks, teeth, jaws, nails, sinews, bones and marrow.

Some people kill (beings) with a purpose and some do so without one.

Some people kill (beings) for vendetta, reflecting that the latter had injured or killed (their kith and kin).

Some people kill (beings with the consideration that) they are injuring or killing (their kith and kin) while some others do so (with the apprehension that) they will injure (or kill) (their kith and kin).

१४१ एतत् सत्यं समारम्भमाणस्स इच्छेते आरम्भा परिण्णाय भवति ।

141. Ettha satthaṃ samārambhamaṇassa iccete ārambhā aparinnāyā bhavarhīti.

141. He who uses a weapon on the mobile-beings, has neither comprehended nor forsworn actions (causing violence to the mobile-beings and other beings residing in them).

१४२ एतत् सत्यं असमारम्भमाणस्स इच्छेते आरम्भा परिण्णाय भवति ।

142. Ettha sattham asamārambhamānassa iccete ārambhā paripñāyā bhavaṃti.

142. (On the contrary), he who does not use any weapon on the mobile-beings, has comprehended and forsworn actions (causing violence to the mobile-beings and other beings residing in them).

१४३. तं परिणाय मेहावी णेव सय तसकाय-सत्थ समारभेज्जा, णेवण्णेहि तसकाय-सत्थ समारभावेज्जा, णेवण्णे तसकाय-सत्थ
समारभते समणुजाणेज्जा ।

143. Taṃ parinnāya mehāvī neva sayam tasakāya-sattham samārambhejjā, nevaṇnehim tasakāya-sattham samārambhāvejjā, nevaṃme tasakāya-sattham samārambhaṃte samanujānejjā.

143. Having discerned this, a sage should neither use any weapon causing violence to the mobile-being, nor cause others to use it nor approve of others using it.

१४४ जस्सेते तसकाय-सत्थ-समारभा परिणया भवति, से ह्मुणी
परिणाय-कम्मे । —ति वेमि ।

144. Jassete tasakāya-sattha-samārambhā paripñāyā bhavaṃti, se hu muni parinnāya-kamme.

— Tti bemi.

144. He who discerns (i. e. comprehends and forswears) the actions that cause violence to the mobile-beings, can be regarded as a (true) ascetic (for a true ascetic is he) who has discerningly forsworn actions.

— I say !

SECTION VII

सत्तमो उद्देशो

Sattamo Uddeso

अत्ततुला-पदं

१४५ पद्व एजस्स दुगंछणाए ।

Attatula-padam

145. Pahū ejassa dugamchāṇe.Equality of Beings with the Self

145. (One who practises non-violence) becomes competent to practise abstinence from causing violence to the beings of air-body.

१४६. आर्यकवंसी अहियं ति नज्जा ।

146. Āyāṃkadamī ahiyaṃ ti naccā.

146. It is he who perceives (that violence causes) terror (and that it would be to) his own detriment (becomes competent to practise non-violence).

✓ १४७. जे अज्झत्थं जाणइ, से बहिया जाणइ । जे बहिया जाणइ, से अज्झत्थं जाणइ ।

147. Je ajjhattham jāṇai, se bahiyā jāṇai. Je bahiyā jāṇai, se ajjhattham jāṇai.

147. One who knows the inner-self knows the external (world) as well:

One who knows the external (world) knows the inner-self as well.

ANNOTATION 147: This aphorism can be interpreted in three different ways:

1) The intrinsic aspect of a substance is subtle, while the external one is gross. It is easy to comprehend the latter, but difficult to comprehend the former. One who can comprehend the former can distinctly comprehend the latter also. One who has comprehended the latter is able to know the former only through the medium of the gross. The soul is an inner-reality. Its conscious form cannot be distinctly comprehended. But its functions, manifested through the body, are gross and external. It follows from this that a body, devoid of consciousness cannot perform functions of consciousness. The functions of consciousness are the functions performed by the conscient reality (soul).

2) A person directly experiences pain and pleasure and as such they are immediate and self-perceptible. On the basis of the self-experience we can understand the pains and pleasures of others. Therefore, the feeling of pains and pleasures of others is an indirect one. The way in which we are affected by any external cause is the same in which others are affected and the way in which the others are affected by external causes is the same as the way in which we ourselves are affected.

3) Knowledge like the sun is self-luminary. Just as the sun is self-luminary and illuminates other objects, knowledge is self-luminary and enlightens other substances. The function of knowledge is to know the knowable. Knowledge is self-luminary and therefore reveals the spiritual substance—it reveals the self. It enlightens others and therefore it reveals the external world i.e. it reveals the whole gamut of knowable objects, distinct from the Self. But the knowledge that reveals the external world and internal world is one and the same. That is why, the author has laid down —

One who knows the inner-self knows the external (world)
as well;

One who knows the external (world) knows the inner-self
as well./

१४८. एयं तुल्यमण्येति ।

148. Eyaṁ tulamaṇyesim.

148. Try to realise the significance of this 'equality'.

ANNOTATIONS 146-148: Three pre-requisites of the practice of non-violence are as follows:

- (1) Perception of terror caused by violence.
- (2) Realisation of detrimental consequences of violence.
- (3) Equality of all other beings with the Self — that is to say that just as we like pleasure and dislike pain, so do other beings and the vice versa.

१४९ इह संतिगया दविया, नावकंखंति बीजिडं ।

149. Iha saṁtigayā daviyā, nāvakaṁkhamti vijjitaṁ

149. The sādhakas initiated in this (Nirgrantha order i. e. the Order of Unfettered ones or the Jain Order) are serene and free from bodily attachments. That is why they never want to fan¹ themselves.

वाडकाइयहिंसा-पदं

१५०. लज्जमाणा पुढो पास ।

Vāḍkāiyahiṁsā-padam

150. Lajjamāṇā puḍho pāsa.

Violence to the Beings of Air-body

150. See ! Every (ascetic who has ceased from causing violence to these beings) leads a life of self-discipline.

१५१ अणगारा मोत्ति एगे पवयमाणा ।

151. Aṇagārā mottī ege pavayamāṇā.

151. (And discern from them) those pseudo-monks who, despite professing, "We are mendicants," (act like

1. Cf. Dasaveyāliyaṁ, 6/37 householders i. e. cause violence to the beings of air-body).

१५२. जमिणं विरूवरूवेहि सत्थेहि वाउकम्म-समारभेण वाउ-सत्थं
समारभमाणे अण्णे वणेगरूवे पाणे विहिसति ।

152. Jamīṇaṃ virūvarūvehiṃ satthehiṃ vāukamma-samārambheṇaṃ vāu-satthaṃ samārambhamāṇe aṇṇe vane-garūve paṇe vihiṃsati.

152. He (pseudo-monk), employing various kinds of weapons, indulges in actions involving air, (thereby) causing violence to the beings of air-body. (He causes violence not only to the beings of air-body, but also) causes violence to different kinds of other beings.

१५३. तत्थ खलु भगवया परिण्णा पवेइया ।

153. Tattha khalu bhagavayā pariṇṇa paveiyā.

153. (Hence) Bhagavān Mahāvīra has taught discernment (i. e. comprehension and forswearing) with respect to this issue.

१५४ इमस्स चैव जीवियस्स,
परिवदण-भाणण-पूयणाए,
जाई-मरण-मोयणाए,
दुक्खपडिघायहेउ ।

154. *Imassa ceva jīviyassa,
Parivaddaṇa-māṇaṇa-pūyaṇāe,
Jāi-marāṇa-moyaṇāe,
Dukkha-padighāyaheum.*

154. (1) For the sake of survival,
(2) for the sake of praise, honour, reverence,
(3) for the sake of birth, death, liberation,
(4) for the sake of prevention of miseries.

१५५. से सयमेव वाउ-सत्थं समारभति, अण्णेहि वा वाउ-सत्थं
समारभवेति, अण्णे वा वाउ-सत्थं समारभते समणुजाणइ ।

155. Se sayameva vāu-satthaṃ samārambhati, anñehiṃ vā vāu-sātthaṃ samārambhāveti, aṇṇe vā vāu-satthaṃ samārambhamte samapujāṇaī.

155. Some monk either indulges himself in action causing violence to the beings of air-body through various kinds of weapons, makes others to cause violence to the beings of air-body or approves of others causing violence to the beings of air-body.

१५६. त से अहियाए, तं से अबोहीए ।

156. Taṃ se ahiyāe, taṃ se abohīe.

156. Such an act of violence proves baneful for him, such an act of violence deprives him of enlightenment.

१५७. से त सबुज्झमाणे, आयाणीयं समुट्ठाए ।

157. Se taṃ sambujjhamāṇe, āyāṇīyaṃ samuṭṭhāe.

157. He (true ascetic), comprehending it (i. e. consequence of acts of violence), becomes vigilant over the practice of self-discipline.

१५८ सोच्चा भगवन्तो, अणगाराणं वा अंतिए इहमेगेसि जायं भवह—

एस खलु गये,

एस खलु मोहे,

एस खलु मारे,

एस खलु गिराए ।

158. Soccā bhagavaṇo, anagārāṇaṃ vā aṃtiē ihamegesuṇi nāyaṃ bhavaī —

Esa khalu gaṃthe,

Esa khalu mohe,

Esa khalu māre,

Esa khalu pīrae.

158. Hearing from Bhagavān Mahāvīra Himself or from the monks, one comes to know—

It (i. e. causing violence to the beings of air-body),
in fact, is the knot of bondage,
it, in fact, is the delusion,
it, in fact, is the death,
it, in fact, is the hell.

१५९. इच्छत्थं गदिए लोए ।

159. Iccattham gaḍhie loe.

159. (Nevertheless) man, impelled by the aforesaid motives, becomes engrossed in (the acts of inflicting injury to the beings of air-body).

१६०. जमिणं विरुवरुवेहिं सत्थेहिं वाउकम्म-समारभेणं वाउ-सत्थं
समारभमाणे अप्णे वणेगरुवे पाणे विहिंसति ।

160. Jamiṇaṁ virūvarūvehiṁ satthehiṁ vāukamma-samāraṁbhemaṁ vāu - sattham samāraṁbhamāṇe appe vaṇegarūve pāṇe vihiṁsati.

160. He, employing various kinds of weapons indulges in actions involving air, (thereby) causing violence to the beings of air-body. (He causes violence not only to the beings of air-body, but also) to different kinds of other beings.

वाउकाइयाणं जीवत्त-वेदणाबोध-पदं

१६१. से बेमि—अप्पेगे अंघमब्भे, अप्पेगे अंघमच्छे ।

Vāukāiyāṇaṁ jīvatta - vedanābodha-padaṁ

161. Se bemi—appege aṁdhamabbhe, appege aṁdhamacche.

Air Beings : Their Animation and Experience of Pain

161. I say —

(Just as consciousness of a man born without any sense-organs (i. e. one who is blind, deaf, dumb, crippled etc. from birth) is not manifest, the consciousness of the beings of air-body is also not manifest). (Nevertheless) such a man (the one born organless) (experiences pain) when struck or cut with a weapon, (so do the beings of air-body).

१६२. अप्पेगे पायमब्बे, अप्पेगे पायमच्चे ।^१

162. Appege payamabbhe, appege payamacche¹.

162. (On simultaneously) cutting and severing with weapons, (all the following thirty-two anatomical features of a man, he suffers excruciating pain though he would not be able to express it):

Foot, ankle, leg, knee, thigh, waist, belly, stomach, flank, back, bosom, heart, breast, shoulder, arm, hand, finger, nail, neck, chin, lip, tooth, tongue, palate, throat, temple, ear, nose, eye, brow, forehead, and head.

(So is the case with the beings of air-body).

१६३. अप्पेगे संपमारए, अप्पेगे उद्दवए ।

163. Appege sampamārae, appege uddavae.

163. Man (experiences pain) when forced into unconsciousness or when he is deprived of life. (so do the beings of air-body).

हिंसाविवेक-पदं

१६४. से भेति—संति संपादमा पाणा, अहञ्च संपयंति य ।

फरिसं च खलु पुट्ठा, एगे संघायमावज्जंति ॥

जे तत्थं संघायमावज्जंति, ते तत्थं परियावज्जंति,

जे तत्थं परियावज्जंति, ते तत्थं उद्दायंति ॥

Himsāvivēga-padam

164. Se bemi-Santi sampāimā pānā, ahacca sampayamānti ya.

Pharisaṃ cā khalu puṭṭhā, ege saṅghāyamāvajjānti
Je tatthaṃ saṅghāyamāvajjānti, te tattha pariya-vajjānti.

1. For the complete text, see, 1/29.

Je tattna pariāvajjanti, te tattha uddāyanti.

Forswearing of Violence

164. I say —

There are also beings (insects) which fly in the air and drop down from there. All these beings shrivel up on coming in contact with (the current of) the air. Those beings which shrivel up on coming in contact with the (current of air), faint by this (contact), and those which faint (thus) die there and then.

१६४. एतत् सत्त्वं समारंभमाणस्स इज्जेते आरंभा अपरिण्णया भवति ।

165. Ettha sattham samārambhamāṇassa iccete ārambhā aparīṇṇāyā bhavaṃti.

165. He who uses a weapon on the beings of air-body has neither comprehended nor forsworn actions (causing violence to the beings of air-body and other beings residing in the air.).

१६५. एतत् असमारंभमाणस्स इज्जेते आरंभा परिण्णया भवति ।

166. Ettha sattham asamārambhamāṇassa iccete ārambhā parīṇṇāyā bhavaṃti.

166. (On the contrary) he who does not use any weapon on the beings of air-body, has comprehended and forsworn action (causing violence to the beings of air-body and other beings residing in it.)

१६७. तं परिण्णाय मेहावी जेव सयं वाउ-सत्त्वं समारंभेज्जा, जेवण्णेहि वाउ-सत्त्वं समारंभावेज्जा, जेवण्णे वाउ-सत्त्वं समारंभते समणुज्जाणेज्जा ।

167. Taṃ parīṇṇāyā mehāvī jeva sayam vāusattham samārambhējā, jevappehū vāu-sattham samārambhāvejā, jevaṇṇe vāu-sattham samārambhante samaṇujāṇējā.

167. Having discerned this, a sage should neither use any weapon causing violence to the beings of air-body, nor cause others to use it, nor approve of others using it.

१६८ जस्सेते वाङ्ग-सत्त्व-समारंभा परिण्णया भवति, से ह्मु मुणी
परिण्णाय-कम्मे ति बेमि ।

168. Jassete vāu-sattham-samārambhā parinṇāyā bhavamti, se hu muṇi parinṇāya-kamme ti bemi.

168. He who discerns (i. e. comprehends and forswears)
the actions that cause violence to the beings of air-body can be regarded as a (true) ascetic, (for a true ascetic is he) who has discerningly forsworn actions.

मुनि-संबोध-पदं

१६९. एत्थं पि जाणे उवादीयमाणा ।

Muṇi-sambodha-padam

169. Ettham pi jāṇe uvādiyamāṇā.

Admonition to Ascetics

169. In this context you should know: (There are some as-cetics) who are fettered (by craving for ease and comfort).

१७०. जे आचारे न रमन्ति ।

170. Je āyāre na ramamti.

170. Only those (aspirants) who do not rejoice in the practice of the ethical code (get fettered by craving for ease and comfort).

१७१. आरंभमाणा विणयं वयन्ति ।

171. Ārambhamaṇā viṇayam vayanmī.

171. Those (who do not rejoice in the practice of the ethical code), while indulging in violence, preach (to others) the ethical code.

१७२. उन्वोवणीया अज्झीववण्णा ।

172. Chāṇḍovāṇīyā ajjhovavaṇṇā-

172. Such (ascetics) are self-indulgent and licentious.

१७३. आरंभसत्ता पकरेति संगं ।

173. Āraṁbhasattā pakareṃti saṅgaṃ.

173. Those (who are self-indulgent and licentious), having been attached to violence, engender fresh attachments, (and subsequently new bondages).

ANNOTATION 173: There are Sādhakas who do not stick to the prescribed code of conduct and are also full of lust, but they advise others to observe the code of conduct.

१७४ से वसुमं सव्व-समन्नागय-पण्णाणेणं अप्पाणेण अकरणिज्ज
पावं कम्म ।

174. Se vasumam savva-samannāgaya-paṇṇāṇeṇaṃ appāṇeṇaṃ akaraṇijjaṃ pāvaṃ kammaṃ.

174. One who is rich in the enlightenment (i. e. one who practices non-violence) should not indulge in any sinful action (i. e. causing violence and self-indulgence) through his conscience, (guided) by the intellect, fully illumined with Truth.

ANNOTATION 174: All actions flow from man's conscience which is controlled by his intellect. The intellect, in its turn is triggered off by delusion or non-delusion, which respectively makes it untruthful or truthful—vicious or righteous. One whose intellect is illumined by Truth is straightforward in action, speech and thought, and acts with consistency. Only a conscience guided by the intellect fully illumined with Truth can abstain from violence and sensuality. Any sādhaka cannot refrain from violence and sensuality only by external conduct. Only through conscience, guided by the intellect, fully illumined with Truth can one do so.

१७५. तं णो अप्पेसि ।

175. Taṃ ṇo appesim.

175. (Since the sinful actions are worthy to be shunned, one who observes non-violence) should not seek them.

हिंसाविवेग-पदं

१७६. तं परिणाय मेहावी जेव सय छज्जीव-णिकाय-सत्थं समारंभेज्जा,
जेवण्णेहिं छज्जीव-णिकाय-सत्थं समारंभावेज्जा, जेवण्णे
छज्जीव-णिकाय-सत्थं समारंभते समणुज्जाणेज्जा ।

Himsāvivega-padam

176. Tam pariṇāya mehāvi neva sayam chajjīva-ṇikāya-sattham samāraṁbhejjā, nevaṇṇehiṁ chajjīva-ṇikāya-sattham samāraṁbhāvejjā, nevaṇṇe chajjīva-ṇikāya-sattham samāraṁbhamte samanujāṇejjā.

Forswearing of Violence

176. Having discerned this, a sage should neither indulge himself in the use of weapons causing violence to the six systems of living beings, nor cause others to do so, nor approve of others doing so.

१७७. जस्सेते छज्जीव-णिकाय-सत्थ-समारंभा परिणया भवति, से ण्णु मुणी परिणाय-कम्मे ।

— त्ति वेमि ।

177. Jassete chajjīva-ṇikāya-sattha-samāraṁbhā pariṇāya bhavanti, se hu muṇi pariṇāya-kamme.

— Tti bemi.

177. Only he who discerns (comprehends and forswears) indulging in actions causing violence to the six systems of living beings can be regarded as an ascetic (in the true sense of the word, for an ascetic is he) who has discerningly forsworn actions.

— I say so.

CHAPTER II

SUBJUGATION OF THE WORLD

(OF PASSIONS)

बीअं अज्झयणं

लोगविजओ

BĪAṂ AJJHAYAṆAṂ

LOGAVIJAO

SECTION I

पदमो उद्देशो

Paḍhamo Uddeso

आसत्ति-पदं

१. जे गुणे से मूलद्वारे, जे मूलद्वारे से गुणे ।

Āsatti-padam-

1. Je guṇe se mūlaṭṭhāṇe, je mūlaṭṭhāṇe se guṇe.

Attachment

1. Carnality¹ is (nothing but) mundane existence²;
(and) mundane existence is (nothing but) carnality.

ANNOTATION 1: Sensual qualities may be either pleasing or displeasing. By having attachment to the former and aversion to the latter, passions are intensified, which in their turn extend the cycle of transmigration. Thus the root cause of mundane existence is sensual qualities. Hence, the author identifies carnality with the cycles of birth and death.

1. The word guṇa literally means quality. Here the qualities indicated are the five sense-data viz. sound, colour, taste, smell and tangibility. Ultimately, therefore, guṇa denotes carnal pleasures.

2. The term mūlaṭṭhāṇa stands for saṃsāra i. e. the cycles of birth and death; in other words, the mundane existence of the soul.

२ इति से गुणद्वी महता परियावेणं वसे पमत्ते—माया मे, पिया मे, भाया मे, भइणी मे, भज्जा मे, पुत्ता मे, बूया मे, सुण्हा मे, सहि-सयण-संगंथ-सथुया मे, विवित्तोवगरण-परियट्ठण-भोयण-अच्छायण मे, इच्चत्थं गद्धिए लोए—वसे पमत्ते ।

2. Iti se guṇaṭṭhī mahatā pariyāvenam vase pamatte —māyā me, piyā me, bhāyā me, bhaini me, bhajjā me, puttā me, bhūyā me, suṇhā me, sahi-sayana-saṅgatha-samthuyā me, vivittovagarana-pariyaṭṭana-bhoyana-acchāyanaṁ me, iccattham gaddhie loe—vase pamatte.

2. Hence, stupefied by the acute torments (caused by tempting passions,) a sensual person dwells (in mundane existence, uttering) 'my mother', 'my father', 'my brother', 'my sister', 'my wife', 'my son', 'my daughter', 'my daughter-in-law', 'my friend', 'my kith and kin', 'vast number of my utensils and means of transactions, food, and clothes'. Infatuated by deep attachments to these, he dwells with them.

ANNOTATION 2: Two things get the upper hand in a self-indulgent man: attachment and infatuation. Overwhelmed by these, he becomes money-minded.

अहो य राओ य परितप्पमाणे, कालाकालसमुत्थाई,
संजोगात्थी अट्ठालोभी, आलुप्पे सहसक्कारे,
विणिविट्ठचित्ते एत्थ सत्थे पुणो-पुणो ।

3. Aho ya rāo ya paritappamāṇe, kālākālasamuṭṭhāī, saṁjogaṭṭhī aṭṭhālobhi, ālumpe sahasakkāre, viṇivittḥacitte ettha satthe puṇo-puṇo.

3. He lives constantly tormented by avidity; he endeavours (to amass wealth) in season and out of season; being desirous of sensual pleasures, he is avid for money, (so much so that) he becomes out and out a rogue committing theft or robbery. His mind is always engrossed in (amassing wealth). (Such) a man repeatedly becomes a killer (lit. weapon) of living-beings).

असरणाणुपेहापुव्वं अप्यमाद-पदं

४. अयं च खलु मादं इहमेगेसि माणवाण, स जहा—
 सोय-परिण्णाणेहि परिहायमाणेहि,
 चक्खु-परिण्णाणेहि परिहायमाणेहि,
 घ्राण-परिण्णाणेहि परिहायमाणेहि,
 रस-परिण्णाणेहि परिहायमाणेहि,
 फास-परिण्णाणेहि परिहायमाणेहि ।

Asaraṇāṇupehāpuvvaṃ appamāda-padam

4. Appam ca khalu āum ihamegesim mānavāpaṇi, tam jaha —
 soya-parippāṇehum parihāyamāṇehum, cakkhu-parinnāṇehum parihāyamāṇehum,
 ghāṇa-parinnāṇehum parihāyamāṇehum,
 rasa-parippāṇehum parihāyamāṇehum,
 phāsa-parippāṇehum parihāyamāṇehum.

Wakefulness by Contemplation of Being Unprotected

4. In this (world), some people have a short life-span. Premature degeneration of the auditory faculty, premature degeneration of the optical faculty, premature degeneration of the olfactory faculty, premature degeneration of the palatal faculty, premature degeneration of the tactual faculty, (causes them to die young).

५. अभिक्कंति च खलु वयं सपेहाए ।

5. Abhikkamtaṇ ca khalu vāyam sampehāe.

5. Noticing that life is creeping (towards old age), (one gets worried).

ANNOTATION 5: The normal span of human life is about a hundred years. It can be divided into ten stages, each lasting for ten years. Till the end of the fourth stage (i. e. age of 40), his vigour and luster continue to increase, and are in full bloom. After that, deterioration sets in.

At fifty, the signs of decrepitude begin to appear. The eyesight begins to be affected. The power of the other sense-organs also begins to degenerate.

Senility then sets in, and vigour and lusture are replaced by infirmities. The vital organs then become progressively incapable of carrying out their functions; replacement of worn tissues is entirely stopped, and in the end, Death takes him away.

६. तबो से एगया मूढभाव जणयति ।

6. Tao se egaya mūḍhabhāvam janayanti.

6. Then some day (towards the fag-end of life),(his sense-organs) are overwhelmed by senility (i. e. the faculties of audition, vision, etc. cease to function).

ANNOTATION 6: The word 'mūḍha-bhāvam' (lit. senility) has two meanings:

- (1) Deterioration of the sense-organs e.g. incapacity to hear or to get hard of hearing.
- (2) Infatuation—As the sense-organs deteriorate, sensuality increases.

Thus, an old man becomes senile as well as more lustful than before.

७. जेहि वा सदि संवसति ते वा न एगया नियगा त पुब्बिं
परिवयति, सो वा ते नियगे पच्छा परिवएज्जा ।

7. Jehiṃ vā saddhiṃ saṃvasati te vā naṃ egayā ṇiyagā taṃ puṇṇaṃ parivayaṃti, so vā te ṇiyage pacchā parivaejjā.
7. Some day (on the attainment of old age), he begins to be reprimanded by the members of his own family; and later on he also starts reprimanding them.

८ नालं ते तव ताणाए वा, सरणाए वा ।
तुम पि तेसि नाल ताणाए वा, सरणाए वा ।

8. Nālaṃ te tava tāṇāe vā, saraṇāe vā.
Tumaṃ pi tesuṃ nālaṃ tāṇāe vā, saraṇāe vā.
8. (O old man!) They (the members of your family) are not capable, to protect you or to give refuge to you; nor are you in a position to protect them or give them refuge.

९ से ण हत्साए, ण किङ्काए, ण रतीए, ण विभूसाए ।

9. Se ṇa hassāe, ṇa kiḍḍāe, ṇa ratīe, ṇa vibhūsāe.
9. He (an old man) is not fit enough for either light-hearted raillery, or frolick, or sexual intercourse, or adornment of himself.

१० इच्चेव समुट्ठिए अहोविहाराए ।

10. Icevaṃ samutthie ahovihārāe.
10. Hence, (apprehending the repercussions flowing from old age,) one should rise to exert oneself in the practice of self-discipline (or asceticism).

ANNOTATION 10: Generally people lead their life by indulging in violence and amassing wealth. They have a strong conviction that worldly life is not possible without doing so. Such conviction is responsible for leading a life lacking in self-discipline.

Against such a conviction, the spiritualist ideology puts before men the ideals of non-violence and non-acquisitiveness, and establishes that life is possible even without perpetrating violence and acquiring wealth. Self-discipline in the form of ascetic life is the outcome of this doctrine. Asceticism (i. e. leading a life of self-discipline) is a subject of great surprise for those who lead a life lacking in self-discipline. Hence in the term of spiritualist ideology, "ahoviḥāra" is used for "asceticism".

११ अतर च खलु इम सपेहाए—धीरे मुहुत्तमवि णो पमायए ।

11. Am̐taraṃ ca khalu imaṃ saṃpehāe—dhīre muhutta- mavi ṇo pamāyae.

11. Having deliberated over the opportunity (in hand), the wise should not relax (in the practice of asceticism) even for a while.

१२. वयो अच्चेइ जोव्वणं व ।

12. Vayo accei jovvaṇaṃ va.

12. Years are passing by,
and youth is fading away.

१३. जीविए इह जे पमत्ता ।

13. Jīvie iha je pamattā.

13. But, one who is not alive to the mission of life (cannot realize this).

१४ से हता छेत्ता भेत्ता लुपित्ता विलुपित्ता उद्धित्ता उत्तासइत्ता ।

14. Se haṃtā chettā bhattā lumpittā vilumpittā udda- vittā uttāsattā.

14. (That is why) he indulges in (the acts of violence such as) striking, mutilating, cutting, stealing, pillaging, killing and torturing.

१५ अकहं करिस्सामिति मण्णयाणे ।

15. Akāḥaṃ karissāmitti maṇṇamāṇe.

15. Believing that he can do what others have never been able to do, (he perpetrates acts of violence).

१६ जेहि वा सद्धिं संवसति ते वा न एगया णियगा तं पुब्बिं पोसेत्ति, सो वा ते नियगे पच्छा पोसेज्जा ।

16. Jēhūṃ vā saddhūṃ saṃvasati te vā ṇaṃ egayā ṇiyagā taṃ puvvīṃ poseṃti, so vā te niyage pacchā posejjā.

16. Sometimes (in childhood or adversity) he was looked after by the members of his own family; later on he takes upon himself to look after them.

१७ नालं ते तव ताणाए वा, सरणाए वा ।

तुमपि तेसिं नालं ताणाए वा, सरणाए वा ।

17. Nālaṃ te tava tāṇāe vā, saraṇāe vā.
tumaṃpi tesīṃ nālaṃ tāṇāe vā, saraṇāe vā.

17. (Even so,) O man! neither are they competent to give you protection or refuge, nor are you so competent.

१८ उवाइय-सेसेण वा. सन्निहि-सन्निकमो कज्जइ, इहमेगेसि असंजयाणं भोयणाए ।

18. Uvāiya-seseṇa vā sannihī-sannicāo kajjai, ihamegesīṃ asaṃjayaṇaṃ bhoyaṇāe.

18. After providing for himself, he utilizes his savings to stock (dairy products) and hoard (food supplies) for entertaining some householders (like his friends and relatives).

१९ तवो से एगया रोग-समुप्पाया समुप्पज्जति ।

19. Tao se egayā roga-samuppāyā samuppajjanti.

19. Even after (accumulation of wealth), sometime (during the period of enjoyment) he falls a victim to various diseases. (So even during the period of his affluence, he cannot enjoy the pleasures of affluence).

२०. जेहि वा सद्धि संवसति ते वा णं एगया णियगा तं पुब्बि परिहरंति, सो वा ते णियगे पच्छा परिहरेज्जा ।

20. Jehim vā saddhim saṁvasati te vā ṇaṁ egayā nīyagā taṁ puvaṁ pariharaṁti, so vā te nīyage pacchā, pariharejjā.

20. Those relatives with whom he resides, take the initiative to ostracise him (if he is affected by a disease like leprosy); later on he deserts them (on the slightest pretext).

२१ नालं ते तव ताणाए वा, सरणाए वा ।
तुमपि तेसि नालं ताणाए वा, सरणाए वा ।

21. Nālaṁ te tava tāṇāe vā, saraṇāe vā, tumampi tesuṁ nālaṁ tāṇāe vā, 'saraṇāe vā.

21. (Even if they do not do so out of love for you,) O man! neither are they competent to give you protection or refuge, nor are you so competent.

✓ २२ जाणित्तु दुक्ख पत्तेयं साय ।

22. Jāṇittu dukkhaṁ patteyaṁ sāyaṁ.

22. Realising that pleasure and pain are personal affairs,

२३ अनभिवक्तं च खलु वयं सपेहाए ।

23. Anabhikkamātaṁ ca khalu vayaṁ saṁpehāe.

23. (and) seeing that youth and strength have not yet declined (i. e. you are still young and strong), —

(२४ खणं जानाहि पण्डी !

24. Khanam jānāhi paṇḍī!

24. O wise man! know Time.

२५. जाव सोय-पण्णाणा अपरिहीणा,
जाव नेत्त-पण्णाणा अपरिहीणा,
जाव घाण-पण्णाणा अपरिहीणा,
जाव जीह-पण्णाणा अपरिहीणा,
जाव फास-पण्णाणा अपरिहीणा ।

25. Jāva soya-paṇṇāṇā aparihīṇā -
Jāva netta-paṇṇāṇā aparihīṇā,
Jāva ghāṇa-paṇṇāṇā aparihīṇā,
Jāva jīha-paṇṇāṇā aparihīṇā,
Jāva phāsa-paṇṇāṇā aparihīṇā.

25. So long as the aural sense is perfect, so long as the visual sense is perfect,
so long as the olfactory sense is perfect,
so long as the palatal sense is perfect,
so long as the tactile sense is perfect; —

२६. इच्चेतेहि विरुवरुवेहि पण्णाणेहि अपरिहीणेहि आयदुठ सम्म समणुवासिज्जासि ।

—ति बेमि ।

26. Iccetehim virūvarūveham paṇṇāṇehim aparihīṇehim āyatṭham sammam samanuvāsijjāsi.

— Tt bemi.

26. while the above senses of man are in perfect condition, one should rightly pursue the way (of self-discipline) for one's own good.

— I say so.✓

SECTION II

नीओं उद्देशो

Bīo Uddeso

अरति-निव्वत्तण-पदं

२७. अरत्तं आउट्टे से मेहावी ।

Arati-nivvattana-padam

27. Araṁ āutte se mehāvī.

Dispelling Ennui

27. The sage is one who dispels the feeling of being sick of ascetic life.

ANNOTATION 27: Feeling of happiness in practising self-discipline and detachment from sensual pleasures result in development of the Self and bliss. The feeling of being sick in asceticism and hankering after sensuality result in degradation of the Self as well as loss of bliss. Hence, a sādhaka is advised to avert his mind from such feeling of sickness.

२८. खणंसि मुक्के ।

28. Khaṇāṁsi mukke.

28. Such a sādhaka becomes instantly free (from the shackles of lust).

२९. अणाणाए पुट्ठा वि एगे णियट्ठंति ।

29. Aṇāṇāe puṭṭhā vi ege ṇiyattānti.

29. (In contrast to this), some sādhakas who are led astray (i. e. those following the path outside the instruction), being driven by (desire), go back to the household life.

३०. ममांश मोहेण पाउडा ।

30. Mamāṁśa mōheṇa pāuḍā.

30. The foolish are thickly enveloped by delusion.

✓ ३१. "अपरिगृहा सविस्तारो" समुत्थाय, लद्धे कामेहिगाहंति ।

31. "Apariggahā bhaviṣṣāmo" samutthāye, laddhe kāmehi-gāhanti.

31. Though they get initiated into asceticism (resolving that) they would lead a life of absolute non-possession, they indulge in sensuality at the first opportunity.

३२. अणाणाए मुणिणो पडिलेहंति ।

32. Aṇāṇāe muṇiṇo paḍilehaṁti.

32. The sādhakas led astray seek (sensual pleasures).

३३. एत्थ मोहे पुणो-पुणो सण्णा ।

33. Ettha mōhe puṇo-puṇo saṇṇā.

33. Once they get enamoured of sensuality, they get bogged down in it again and again. (The more they do so, the more they get attached to it and so on. And this vicious circle keeps going on.)

३४. णो हव्वाए णी पाराए ।

34. Ño havvāe ño pārāe.

34. They can neither reach this shore nor the other one.

ANNOTATIONS 31-34: The plight of an indulgent sādhaka is comparable to that of a thirsty elephant who once entered a lake to quench his thirst. It got bogged down in the marshy lake. The more it tried to extricate itself from the quagmire, the more he got bogged down in it, and ultimately met with its doom. Similarly a self-indulgent sādhaka, who enters the marshy lake of sensuality to quench his thirst of lust, would also get embogged in the quagmire of attachment and get more and more engulfed in it, ultimately to meet with his moral death. But he may not be bold enough to give up monastic robes owing either to shame or pride or compulsion. Such a person may not be a householder by dress but would certainly not be a muni or an ascetic by his conduct.

३५. विमुक्का हु ते जना, जे जना पारंगमिणो ।

35. Vimukkā hu te janā, je janā pārāgāmiṇo.

35. (But) those who transcend (dissipation) get emancipated.

अणगर-पदं

३६. लोभं अलोभेण दुगंछमाणे, लद्धे कामे नाभिगाहइ ।

Aṇagāra-padaṁ

36. Lobham alobheṇa dugaṁchamāṇe, laddhe kāme nābhigāhai.

The (True) Monk

36. One who defeats lust with lustlessness no more indulges in the pleasures that offer themselves.

३७. विणइत्तु लोभं निक्खम्म, एस अकम्मे जाणति-पासति ।

37. Viṇaittu lobham nikkhamma, esa akamme jāṇati-pāsati.

37. A sādhaka, who renounces the world by subjugating his desires, frees himself from action (i. e. gets himself absorbed in actionless meditation or becomes free from the veils of the karma) and begins to perceive and cognize things (in their true perspective).

ANNOTATIONS 35-37. To defeat lust with lustlessness is the principle based on creating opposite force. Just as anger is destroyed by tranquility, conceit by humility, and deceit by guilelessness, so also lust is overcome by lustlessness. Just as fasting acts as a remedy for the person afflicted by fever, so also forswearing of lust acts as a remedy for one who is afflicted with the disease of "discontentment" —

*Yathāhārāparityāgaḥ, jvaratasyausadham tathā /
Lobhasyativāṁ parityāgaḥ, asaṁtosasya bhaisajyaṁ॥*

Sometimes it happens that some persons get initiated into asceticism without giving up 'lust'. But if they try to conquer lust with lustlessness, they are true sādhakas. Those who are initiated into asceticism without lust, become cogniser and perceiver like Bharat, the sovereign king, through meditation by removing the veils of karma, obstructing knowledge and perception.

३८ पडिलेहाए नावकंखति ।

38. Padilehāe nāvakaṁkhati.

38. He who discerns (what is beneficial to him and what is detrimental) does not long for (sensuality).

३९ एस अणगारेत्ति पवुच्चत्ति ।

39. Esa aṇagāreṭṭi pavuccati.

39. He (who is not desirous of any worldly pleasures) is called an aṇagara (i. e. a monk who has renounced household life).

ईह-समादान-पदं

४०. अहो य राजो न परितप्यमाणे, कात्ताकालसमुद्गर्ह,
संजोगट्टी अट्टालोभी, आलुपे सहसक्कारे,
विणिविट्टचित्ते, एत्थ सत्थे पुणो-पुणो ।

Damda-samādāṇa-padam

40. *Aho ya rāo ya paritappamāṇe kālākālasamutṭhāi, saṃjogattṭhi aṭṭhīlobhi, ālumbe sahasakkāre,
Vinivittṭhacatte, ettha satthe puṇo puṇo.*

Use of Violence

40. (A stupefied person) lives constantly tormented (by avidity); he endeavours (to amass wealth) in season and out of season; being desirous of sensual pleasures, he is avid for money, (so much so that) he becomes out and out a rogue committing theft or robbery. His mind is always engrossed in (amassing wealth). (Such) a man repeatedly becomes a killer (lit. weapon) (of living beings).

४१ से आय-बले, से णाह-बले, से मित्त-बले, से पेच्च-बले, से देव-बले, से राय-बले, से चोर-बले, से अतिहि-बले, से किवण-बले, से समण-बले ।

41. Se āya-bale, se ṇāi-bale, se mittā-bale, se pecca bale, se deva-bale, se rāya-bale, se cora-bale, se atihī-bale, se kivāṇa-bale, se samana-bale.
1. He (amasses) physical power, power of kith and kin, power of allies, supra-mundane-power, deity-power, royal-power, thief-power, guest-power, pauper-power, śramaṇa-power (ascetic power).

ANNOTATION 41: There are certain sources of power. By acquiring them a man wishes to achieve such things as enjoyment, happiness, victory, wealth, fame and religion.

- (1) Physical strength: For gaining bodily strength, one drinks wine and eats meat.
- (2) Power of kith and kin: In order to remain undefeated, one seeks power of one's kith and kin.

- (3) Ally power: For acquiring wealth and mental peace, one seeks power of his friends.
- (4) & (5) Supra-mundane power, Deity-Power: In order to secure happiness in the next life and to use deity-power, one propitiates deities by performing sacrifice, etc.
- (6) Royal power: In order to earn his livelihood, one serves the king.
- (7) Thief-power: In order to get a share in theft, one befriends thieves.
- (8), (9) & (10): Guest-Power, Pauper-Power, Śramaṇa-Power: Aspiring for wealth, fame and merit, one entertains guests, gives alms to the crippled paupers and ascetics.

४२ इच्छेतेहि विरूपस्वेहि कज्जेहि दण्ड-समायाणं ।

42. Iccetehim virūvarūvehim kajjehim daṇḍa-samāyāṇaṁ.

42. (To accomplish) these various tasks, he uses violence.

४३ सपेहाए भया कज्जति ।

43. Sapehāe bhayā kajjati.

43. Some person (uses violence) of his own accord and some other person (does so) out of fear.

४४ पाव-मोक्खोत्ति मण्णमाणे ।

44. Pāva-mokkhotti maṇṇamāṇe.

44. Considering (that performance of sacrifices results in) atonement of his sins, some person takes recourse to violence.

४५ अदुवा भाससाए ।

45. Aduvā āsaṁsāe.

45. Or some other (commits violence) in the hope (of obtaining the unobtained).

हिंसाविबेग-पदं

४६. तं परिण्णाय मेहावी जेव सयं एएहि कज्जेहि दंढं समारभेज्जा,
जेवण्णं एएहि कज्जेहि दंढं समारभावेज्जा, जेवण्णं एएहि
कज्जेहि दंढं समारभंतं समणुज्जाणेज्जा ।

Himsāvivēga-padam

46. Taṁ pariṇṇāya mehāvī jeva sāyaṁ eehiṁ kajjehiṁ daṁḍaṁ samāraṁbhejjā, jevaṇṇaṁ eehiṁ kajjehiṁ daṁḍaṁ samāraṁbhāvejjā, jevaṇṇaṁ eehiṁ kajjehiṁ daṁḍaṁ samāraṁbhamtaṁ saṁaṇujāṇejjā.

Forswearing of Violence

46. Having comprehended this, a wise man ought not to indulge himself in violence for the aforesaid motives, nor should he cause others to do so, nor should he approve of such indulgence.

अणसत्ति-पदं

४७ एस मग्गे भारिएहि पवेइए ।

Aṇāsatti-padam

47. Esa magge āriehiṁ paveie.

Unattachment

47. The Tīrthaṅkaras have expounded this path (leading to the conquest of one's inner-world), —

४८ जहेत्य कुसले णोवलिपिज्जासि ।

—त्ति बेमि ।

48. Jahettha kusale novalimpijjāsī.

— Tti bemi

48. so that no person adept (in the path of asceticism), gets attachment to these (carnal pleasures).

— I say so.

SECTION III

तइओ उहेसो

Taio Uddeso

समत-पदं

४९. से असइ उच्चागोए, असइ नीयागोए ।
 गो हीणे, गो अइरित्ते, गो पीहए ।

Samatta padam

49. Se asaim uccāgoe, asaim nīyāgoe.
 No hīṇe, no aṛitte, no pīhae.

Equality

49. This soul has many a time taken birth in higher clans (or castes) as well as in lower ones. Therefore, no being is low or high. (Hence, one should not crave for a higher clan).

५०. इति सखाय के गोयावादी ? के माणावादी ? कसि वा एगे
 गिज्जे ?

50. Iti saṁkhāya ke geyāvādī ? ke māṇāvādī ?
 kamsi vā ege giṇṇhe ?

50. In the wake of the knowledge (that this soul has many a time taken birth in higher clans as well as in lower ones), who will believe in the dogma of casteism, or egotism ? Or who will hanker after a particular rank ?

५१. सम्हा पहिए गो हरित्ते, गो कुज्जे ।

51. Tamhā paṁdie ṇo harise, ṇo kujjhe.

51. Therefore, a wise man should not feel exalted (on taking birth in a higher clan) nor should he feel piqued (on taking birth in a lower clan).

५२ झएहं जाण पडिलेहं सत्तं ।

52. Bhūeham jāna paḍileha sātām.

52. Know (the bondage and consequences of karma experienced) by beings and see their happiness (and sufferings)¹.

५३ समित्ते एयाणुपस्सि ।

53. Samite eyāṇupassi.

53. One with the right perception realises these (consequences of good and evil karmas).

५४ त जहा—अधत्तं बहिरत्तं मूयत्तं काणत्तं कुटत्तं खुज्जत्तं वडसत्तं
सामत्तं सबलत्तं ।

54. Tam jahā—amdhattam bahirattam mūyattam kānattam kuṁtattam khujjattam vaḍabhattam sāmattam sabalattam.

54. Such as blindness, deafness, dumbness, one-eyedness, lameness, hunch-backedness, dwarfishness, leprosy and variegatedness.

५५ सहपमाणं अणेगरूवाओ जोणीओ संघाति, विरूवरूवे फासे
पडिसवेदेइ ।

55. Sahapamāṇam anegarūvāo joṇiō saṁghāti, virūva-rūve phāse paḍisamvedei.

55. Owing to his own infatuation, one gets born in different genera and suffers from onslaughts of various kinds.

1. Cf. 3/27.

५६. से अबुज्जमाणे हतोवहते जाइ-मरण अनुपरियट्टमाणे ।

56. Se abujjhamāṇe hatovahate jāi-maranam anupari-yattamāṇe.

56. He (i. e. the infatuated person), not knowing the consequence of good and evil karmas, is afflicted (with disease) and feels hurt (by affronts). (Nevertheless) he (due to his egotism piles up karmas) and undergoes births and deaths again and again.

परिग्रह-तद्दोष-पदं

५७ जीविय पुढो पियं इहमेगेसि माणवाणं, खेत्त-वत्थु ममायमाणानं ।

Pariggaḥa-laddosa-padam

57. Jīviyaṃ puḍho piyaṃ ihamegesin mānavāṇaṃ khetta-vatthu mamāyamāṇāṇaṃ.

Acquisitiveness and its Evils

57. Attached to (their) land and home, some (unenlightened) persons love (to lead) a highly (prosperous) life.

५८ आरत्त विरत्त मणिकुडल सह हिरण्णेण, इत्थियाओ परिगिज्ज
तत्थेव रत्ता ।

58. Āratam virattam manikumḍalaṃ saha hiraṇṇeṇa, itthiyāo parigijjha tattheva rattā.

58. They accumulate colourful precious stones, earrings, gold and (beautiful) women and get infatuated by them.

५९ ण एत्थ तवो वा, दमो वा, नियमो वा दिस्सति ।

59. Na ettha tavo vā, damo vā, niyamo vā dissati.

59. Austerity, or the curbing of passions, or self-control is not seen in an acquisitive person.

६०. सपुण्ण वाले जीविउकामे लालप्पमाणे मूढे विप्परियासुवेइ ।

60. Sampunṇam bāle jīviukāme lālapamāṇe mūḍhe vippariyāsuvei.

60. The ignorant one craves for a life of (luxury) and repeatedly hankers¹ after pleasures). (Haunted by his own desires) he gets benumbed and is rewarded by the converse i. e. though he desires pleasures, he is rewarded with sufferings only².

६१. इणमेव णावकंछंति, जे जणा धुवचारिणो ।

जाती-मरणं परिणाय, चरे संकमणे बडे ॥

61. Ṭṇameva ṇāvakaṃkhaṃti, je jaṇā dhuvacārino.
Jāli-maraṇaṃ parinnāya, care saṃkamaṇe daḍhe

61. Those who are progressing towards salvation do not long for leading such (a self-contradictory life). Comprehending births and deaths (of those who lead such a self-contradictory life), they should unwaveringly tread' on the Bridge of Salvation.

६२. अतिथ कालस्स जागमो ।

62. Naṭṭhi kālassa nāgamo.

62. For death no moment is inopportune — (it can occur at any moment).

६३. सब्बे पाणा पियाडया सुहसाया दुक्खपडिक्ख्वा अप्पियंबहा
पियजीविणो जीविउकामा ।

63. Savve pāṇā piyāḍuyā suhasāyā dukkhapadikūlā appi- yavahā piyajīvino jīviukāmā.

63. All beings love life. They wish to relish pleasures. They loathe pain. They abhor being killed — they are attached to this mortal coil. They want to hang on to life.

1. See 2/51 foot note.

2. Cf. 2/150.

ANNOTATION 63: The truth that "Happiness is loved and sufferings loathed" has been discussed here in the context of acquisitiveness. One who amasses wealth endeavours to get rid of his miseries and acquire happiness. While doing so, he does not care if he ruins the happiness of others. He forgets the fact that just as he likes happiness and loathes sufferings, others also do so. In the field of commerce and trade, dishonesty and exploitation practised in society are nothing but the results of losing sight of the above fact. Bhagavān Mahāvira has repeatedly stressed this point and admonished that conduct should be based on the precept of self-equality.

६४. सम्बेसि जीवियं पियं ।

64. Savvesim jīviyaṃ piyaṃ.

64. Life is dear to all beings.

६५. त परिगिज्झ दुपयं अउप्पय अभिजुजियाण ससिच्चियाण तिविहेणं
जा वि से तत्थ मत्ता भवइ—अप्पा वा बहुगा वा ।

65. Tam parigijjha dupayaṃ cauppayaṃ abhijumjīyāṇaṃ samsimciyāṇaṃ tivihenaṃ jā vi se tattha mattā bhavaṃ—appā vā bahugā vā.

65. In order that he may live, man owns and employs bipeds (servants) and quadrupeds (animals). Through these he multiplies (his) wealth. Through threefold efforts (i. e. his own, that of others, and of both), a little or great amount of wealth comes in his possession.

६६. से तत्थ गड्ढि चिट्ठइ, भोयणाए ।

66. Se tattha gadḍhi ciṭṭhai, bhoyanāe.

66. He remains attached to that wealth and (protects it) for the enjoyment of sensual pleasures.

६७. तमो से एगया विपरिसिट्ठ सभूय महोवगर्ण भवइ ।

67. Tao se egayā viparisitṭham sabbhūyaṃ mahovagaraṇaṃ bhavaṃ.

67. Abundant wealth, left over after his enjoyment provides him with ample luxuries.

६८ तपि से एगया दायाया विभवति, अदत्तहारो वा से अवहरति,
रायाणो वा से विलुपति, णस्सति वा से, विणस्सति वा से,
अगारदाहेण वा से डज्झइ ।

68. Tam pi se egayā dāyāyā vibhavarati, adattahāro vā se avaharati, rāyāṇo vā se viluṇṇamti, ṇassati vā se, viṇṇassati vā se, agāradāheṇa vā se oajjhaī.

68. There comes a time when heirs share that (huge amount of wealth and property which he had earned and saved for himself); or the thieves deprive him of it; or the king takes it away from him; or it gets destroyed or razed; or it is reduced to ashes (in case of his house catching fire).

६९ इति से परस्स अट्ठाए कूराइ कम्माइ वाले पकुब्बमाणे तेण
दुक्खेण मूढे विप्परियासुवेइ ।

69. Iti se parassa atthāe kūrāṇe kammāṇe bāle pakuvamāṇe tena dukkheṇa mūḍhe vippariyāsuvei.

69. Thus an ignorant man indulging in atrocities for the sake of others (i. e. his heirs, etc.) (earns grief). Benumbed by griefs he becomes a victim of paradoxes i. e. he desires pleasures, but is rewarded with sufferings.

ANNOTATION 69. Just as the fruit of the mango is called mango, the seed of the mango is also called mango. Similarly, just as adverse feelings are called sufferings, the karmas which are the cause of such adverse circumstances are also called sufferings. Those philosophers who see no causal relationship between cause and effect can never eradicate the root cause of unhappiness. Consequently it perpetually recurs resulting in stupification.

७०. मुणिणा हु एय पवेइय ।

70. Muṇiṇā hu eyam paveiyam.

70. The Muṇi (Bhagavān Mahāvīra) has said so.

ANNOTATION 70. One who perpetrates atrocities is stupefied and one who is stupefied becomes a victim of paradoxes — this is the chain of cause and effect.

७१. अणोहंतरा एते, नो य ओहं तरित्तए ।

अतीरंगमा एते, नो य तीरं गमित्तए ।

अपारंगमा एते, नो य पारं गमित्तए ॥

71. Anohantārā ete, no ya ohaṃ tarittāe.
Atīraṅgamā ete, no ya tīraṃ gamittāe.
Apāraṅgamā ete, no ya pāraṃ gamittāe.

71. Such people (victims of paradox) do not swim across rapids of recurrent transmigration, nor are they capable of swimming across rapids of recurrent transmigration.

They do not reach banks, nor are they capable of reaching the banks.

They do not cross the rapids, nor are they capable of crossing the rapids.

७२. आयाणिज्जं न आयाय, तम्मि ठाणे न चिट्ठह ।

वितहं पप्प खेयण्णे, तम्मि ठाणम्मि चिट्ठह ॥

72. Āyāṇijjaṃ ca āyāya, tammi thāṇe na ciṭṭhai.
Vitaham pappā kheyanne, tammi thāṇammi ciṭṭhai.

72. One who has no knowledge of the Soul, though initiated in the path of Truth, does not adhere to it. (On the contrary), initiated in the path of un-truth, he sticks to it.

७३. उद्देशो पासगस्स नत्थि ।

73. Uddeso pāsagassa natthi.

73. A seer needs no guidance.

७४ बाले पुण निहे कामसमणुण्णे असमियदुक्खे दुक्खी दुक्खानमेव आवट्ट अणुपरियट्टइ ।

—त्ति बेमि ।

74. Bāle puṇa nihe kāmasamaṇuṇṇe asamiya dukkhe dukkhi dukkhānameva āvattaṃ anupariyaṭṭai.

— Tti bemi

74. The benighted one is incompetent to assuage sufferings, because he is attached to desires and is lecherous. Oppressed (by physical and mental pain), he keeps rotating in the whirl-pool of agony.

— I say so.

✓
SECTION IV

चउत्थो उद्देसो

Cauttho Uddeso

भोग-भोगि-दोस-पदं

७५ ततो से एगया रोग-समुप्पाया समुप्पज्जति ।

Bhoga-bhogi-dosa-padam

75. Tao se egayā roga-samuppāyā samuppajjanti.

Evils of Sensuality and Self-indulgent Persons

75. Even after (the accumulation of wealth,) sometime (during the period of enjoyment) man falls a victim to various diseases. (So even during the period of his affluence, he cannot enjoy the pleasures of splendour).

७६. जेहि वा सद्धिं सवसति ते वा ण एगया णियया पुब्बिं परिवयति, सो वा ते णियगे पच्छा परिवएज्जा ।

76. Jēhūṃ vā saddhūṃ samvasati te vā ṇaṃ egayā ṇiyayā puvvīṃ parivayaṃti, so vā te ṇiyage paṇchā parivaejjā.

76. Those relatives with whom he resides take the initiative to ostracise him (if he is affected by a disease like leprosy), later on he deserts them (on the slightest pretext).

७७. नालं ते तय हाणाए वा, सरणाए वा ।
तुमपि तेसि नालं हाणाए वा, सरणाए वा ।

77. Nālam te tava tāṇhē vā, saraṇāe vā, tumaṃpī tesuṃ nālam tāṇhē vā, saraṇāe vā.
77. (Even if they do not do so out of love for you,) o man!
neither are they competent to give you protection or refuge, nor are you so competent.

७८ जाणिस्स दुक्खं पत्तेयं सायं ।

78. Jāṇittu dukkham paṭṭeyam sāyam.
78. Realising that pleasure and pain are personal affairs,
(one should subjugate his mind and senses).

७९ भोगमेव अनुसोयंति ।

79. Bhogāmeva anusoyanti.
79. (Persons who have no control over their senses) continuously go on thinking of fulfilment of desires.

८० इहमेवेति माणवान् ।

80. Ihamegesu mānavānam.
80. Only those (who are not aware of the consequences of indulging in sensuality) do so.

८१ तिविहेण जावि से तत्थ मत्ता भवइ—अप्पा वा बहुगा वा ।

81. Tivihena jāvi se tattha mattā bhavaṃ—appā vā bahugā vā.
81. Through threefold efforts (i. e. his own, that of others and of both), a little or great amount of wealth comes in his possession.

८२ से तत्थ गहिणं विट्ठति, भोयणाए ।

82. Se tattha gaḍhiṃ ciṭṭhati, bhoyaṇāe.
82. He remains attached to that wealth and (protects it) for the enjoyment of sensual pleasures.

८३. ततो से एगया विपरिसिद्धं संभूयं महोवगरणं भवति ।

83. Tato se egayā viparisiṭṭhaṁ sambhūyaṁ mahovagaranāṁ bhavati.

83. Abundant wealth, left over after his enjoyment, provides him with ample luxuries.

८४. तं पि से एगया दायया विभयति, अदत्तहारो वा से अवहरति,
रायाणो वा से विलुपति, णस्सइ वा से, विणस्सइ वा से,
अगारदाहेण वा ङ्गज्झइ ।

84. Taṁ pi se egayā dāyāyā vibhayaṁti, adattahāro vā se avaharati, rāyaṇo vā se viluṇṇapaṁti, ṇassai vā se, viṇassai vā se, agāradāheṇa vā ḍaḍḍhai.

84. There comes a time when heirs share that (huge amount of wealth and property which he had earned and saved for himself); or the thieves deprive him of it; or the king takes it away from him or it gets destroyed or razed; or it is reduced to ashes (in case of his house catching fire.)

८५. इति से परस्स अट्ठाए कूराइं कम्माइं बाले पकुवमाणे तेण
दुक्खेण मूढे विप्परियासुवेइ ।

85. Iti se parassa aṭṭhāe kūrāiṁ kammāiṁ bāle pakkuvamaṇe teṇa dukkheṇa mūḍhe vippariyāsuvei.

85. Thus an ignorant man, indulging in atrocities for the sake of others (i. e. his heirs, etc.), (earns grief.) Benumbed by griefs he becomes a victim of paradoxes i. e. he desires pleasures, but is rewarded with sufferings.

८६. आसं च छंदं च विणिच धीरे ।

86. Āsaṁ ca chaṇḍaṁ ca viṇicā dhīre.

86. O Serene One! Abandon lust and servility to desire.

८७ तुम चैव तं सल्लमाहट्ठु ।

87. Tumam ceva tam sallamāhaṭṭu.

87. (O man!) it is you who has implanted (in your own heart) this thorn (of lust and servility to desire).

८८ जेण सिया तेण णो सिया ।

88. Jēṇa siyā teṇa ṇo siyā.

88. That which brings happiness may even fail to do so.

८९ इगमेव जावबुज्झंति, जे जणा मोहपाउडा ।

89. Ḥameva javabujjhamti, je jaṇā mohapāudā.

89. Completely engulfed by delusion, people cannot comprehend this (fact i. e. paradoxical nature of the means of material happiness).

✓ ९० मीमि लोए पव्वहिए ।

90. Thūmhi loe pavvahiē.

90. This world has been vanquished by the fair sex.

९१ ते भो वयमंति—एयाइ आयतणाइ ।

91. Te bho vayamti—eyāim āyatapām.

91. O man! those (who are vanquished by women) say that they (women) are dens (of pleasure).

९२ से दुक्खाए मोहाए माराए नरगाए नरग-तिरिक्खाए ।

92. Se dukkhāē mohāē mārāē naragāē naraga-tirikkhāē.

92. (Man's subservience to sensual pleasures engenders) misery, delusion, death, hell and post-infernal sub-human life for him.

९३ सतत मूढे घम्म जाभिजाणइ ।

93. Satataṃ mūḍhe dhammaṃ pābhijāpai.

93. One who is perpetually infatuated cannot comprehend righteousness.

९४ उदाहु वीरे—अप्पमादो महासोहे ।

94. Udāhu vīre—appamādo mahāmohe.

94. Bhagavān Mahāvīra said, ("A sādhaka) should be vigilant against incontinence."

९५ अलं कुसलस्स पमाएणं ।

95. Alaṃ kusalassa pamāṇaṃ.

95. A wise man has nothing more to do with infatuation.

९६ संति-मरणं संपेहाए, भेउरधम्मं संपेहाए ।

96. Saṃti-maraṇaṃ saṃpehāe, bheuraḍhammaṃ saṃpehāe.

96. "(Infatuation) is (nothing but) death and (lack of it) is serenity." — (How can) one who perceives this (indulge in wanton behaviour?) (How can) one who observes that (the human frame) is fragile (indulge in wanton behaviour?).

९७. णालं पास ।

97. Nālaṃ pāsa.

97. (O man!) realize that (these sensual pleasures) cannot (quench the flames of discontentment).

९८. अलं ते एएहि ।

98. Alaṃ te eehiṃ.

98. What use are these (pleasures which fan the flames of discontentment) to you?

९९. एयं पास मुणी ! महब्भयं ।

99. Eyaṃ pāsa muṇi ! mahabbhayaṃ.

99. O ascetic! realise, these pleasures are perilous.

१००. नाइवाएज्ज कंघणं ।

100. Nāivāeja kaṁcanaṁ.

100. One must not deprive any being of its life.

ANNOTATION 100. Self-indulgence and violence have close correspondence. There hardly exists a voluptuous person who could indulge in sensual pleasures without resorting to violence. However, where there is violence, there may or may not be enjoyment. But, self-indulgence is invariably associated with violence. That is why, one of the most valuable sermons in the context of liberation from self-indulgence is that on non-violence.

१०१. एतं वीरे पसंसिए, जे न णिविज्जति आदाणाए ।

101. Esa vīre pasamsīe, je na ñivijjati ādāṇāe.

101. Praiseworthy is the dauntless one, who does not get fed up with self-disciplined life.

१०२. न मे देति न कुप्पिज्जा, थोवं लद्धुं न खिसिए ।

पडिसेहिओ परिणमिज्जा ।

102. Na me deti na kuppijja, thovaṁ laddhuṁ na khimsae. Paḍisehio paripamijja.

102. (Thinking that) "he is not giving alms to me", (a monk) should not frown upon a person, nor should he criticise him on not receiving enough. If the owner of the house refuses, he should immediately leave.

ANNOTATION 102. Food is essential for sustaining of life. The monk obtains his food from householders. Taking food can become both indulgence and renunciation depending on whether it has been obtained and consumed with feelings of attachment or aversion or without such feelings. The monk practising self-discipline or renunciation should not, at the time of obtaining food, behave in an agitated manner.

He should not frown upon nor should he criticize the donor.
He should remain calm and equanimous.

१०३. एयं मोणं समणुवासेज्जासि ।

—सि बेमि ।

103. Eyaṃ monaṃ samaṇuvāsejjāsi.

— Tti bemi.

103. An ascetic should meticulously put into practice this knowledge¹.

— I say so./

1. The word muṇī denotes one who has attained knowledge.
Hence, the word mona would stand for 'knowledge'.

SECTION V

पंचमो उद्देशो

Pañcama Uddeso

आहारस्स अणासत्ति-पदं

१०४. जमिणं विरूवरूवेहिं सत्येहिं लोगस्स कम्म-समारंभा कज्जंति
 तं जहा—अप्पणो से पुत्ताणं धूयाणं सुण्हणं णातीणं द्वातीणं
 राईणं दासाणं दासीणं कम्मकराणं कम्मकरीणं आएसाए, पुढो
 पहेणाए, सामासाए, पायरासाए ।

Āhārassa aṇāsatti-padam

104. Jamiṇaṃ virūvarūvehiṃ satthehiṃ logassa kamma-samāraṃbhā kajjanti taṃ jahā — appaṇo se puttāṇaṃ dhūyāṇaṃ suṇhaṇaṃ nātiṇaṃ dhaṭiṇaṃ rāiṇaṃ dāsaṇaṃ dāsīṇaṃ kammakaraṇaṃ kammakariṇaṃ āesāe, puḍho paheṇāe, sāmāsāe, pāyaraśāe.

Non-attachment to Food

104. Householders employing various kinds of weapons indulge in actions (of violence) causing the influx of karma particles for the sake of their bodies, their sons and daughters, daughters-in-law, relatives, maids, kings, slaves (both male and female), servants and maid-servants, guests, various sorts of gifts, lunch and dinner.

१०५. सन्निहि-सन्निकाओ कज्जइ इहमेगेसि माणवानं भोयणाए ।

105. Sannihu-sannicao kajjai ehamegesim māṇavāṇaṃ bhoyaṇāe.

105. They stock (dairy products) and hoard (food supplies) for entertaining some householders (like their friends and relatives)¹.

१०६. समुत्ति ए अणगारे आरिए आरियपण्णे आरियदंसी 'अय सच्च'ति अदक्खु ।

106. Samuṭṭhi e anagāre ārie āriyapaṇṇe āriyadaṃsī 'ayam samdhi' ti adakkhu.

106. Realising that it is meal time, a monk who is noble, of noble intellect, of noble perception and diligent in self-discipline, should go out for begging food.

१०७. से णाइए, णाइआवए, ण समणुज्जाणइ ।

107. Se ṇāe, ṇāiāvae, ṇa samaṇujāṇai,

107. He should neither himself accept (things which are taboo) for him, nor cause other people to do so, nor approve of those who do so.

१०८. सव्वामगंघं परिण्णाय, निरामगंघो परिव्वए ।

108. Savvāmagamāṇhaṃ parinṇāya, nirāmagamāṇho parivvae.

108. He should avoid all food which is not permissible. Confining himself only to the permissible kind of food, he should lead a self-disciplined life.

१०९. अदिस्समाणे कय-विककएसु । से ण किणे, ण किणावए, किणंतं
ण समणुज्जाणइ ।

109. Adissamaṇe kaya-vikkhesu. Se ṇa kiṇe, ṇa kiṇāvae, kiṇāntaṃ ṇa samaṇujāṇai.

109. He should not engage himself in buying and selling — he should neither himself buy nor cause to do so nor approve of other doing so.

1. Cf. 2/18

११० से भिक्षू कालण्णे बलण्णे मायण्णे खेयण्णे खणयण्णे विणयण्णे
समयण्णे भावण्णे, परिग्गहं अममायमाणे, कालेणुट्ठाई,
अपडिण्णे । —

110. Se bhikkhū kālaṇṇe balaṇṇe māyaṇṇe kheyāṇṇe khaṇayaṇṇe viṇayaṇṇe samayaṇṇe bhāvaṇṇe, pariggahaṃ amamāyamāṇe, kāleṇuttḥāi apadīṇṇe.

110. A monk should possess wisdom in respect of —
The (right) time (for begging food), the physical strength (for wandering about for begging alms),
the measure (of warranted food),
the region (apt for begging food from),
the opportune moment (for begging food),
the code of conduct (the manner of begging food),
the Doctrines (laid down in the scriptures), the intensions of the giver (i. e. whether he likes or dislikes giving food).
He should have no attachment to possessions.
He should carry out religious duties at the right moment and should be free from likes and dislikes for particular kinds of food.

१११. दुहो चेट्ता नियाइ ।

111. Duhao chettā miyāi.

111. He (leads a disciplined life) after having broken the (shackles of attachment and aversion).

११२. वत्थं पडिग्गहं, कंबलं पायपुंछणं, उग्गहं च कड्ढासणं ।
एतेसु चेव जाएज्जा ।

112. Vattham paḍiggahaṃ, kaṃbalaṃ pāyapuñchaṇaṃ, uggahaṃ ca kaḍḍasaṇaṃ. Etesu ceva jāejjā.

112. He should beg only for such articles as clothes, bowls, blankets, flapper (or broom), room and straw-mats which have been made for the householders.

११३. लद्धे आहारं अणगारं मायं जाणेज्जा, से जहेयं भगवया पवेइय ।

113. Laddhe āhāre aṇagāre māyaṃ jāṇejjā, se jaheyaṃ bhagavayā paveiyaṃ.

113. At the time of receiving food, a monk should know the right quantum that Bhagavān Mahāvīra has prescribed.

ANNOTATION 113. It is not possible to lay down the exact quantum of food. It depends upon one's appetite. Neither do all persons have the same appetite nor do they take the same quantum of food. Even then, Bhagavān Mahāvīra has indicated the average quantum of food as thirty-two morsels and has admonished the monks to take a little less than that.

११४. लभो ति न मज्जेज्जा ।

114. Lābho tti na majjejjā.

114. On gaining the desired object (food, etc.), he should not feel elated.

११५. अलभो ति न सोयए ।

115. Alābho tti na soyaē.

115. On not receiving the desired object, he should not feel dejected.

११६. बहुं पि लद्धुं न निहे ।

116. Bahuṃ pi laddhuṃ na nīhe.

116. In case of obtaining anything in excess, he should not hoard it up.

११७. परिगहाओ अप्पाणं अवसक्केज्जा ।

117. Fariggahāo appāṇaṃ avasakkejja.

117. He should abstain from acquisitiveness.

✓ ANNOTATION 117. Even while acquiring food, clothing etc. the monk should abstain from acquisitiveness. The thought "I will use this food and clothing for myself only and will not share it with others," is also acquisitiveness. "This, what I have obtained, does not belong to me, but belongs to the Preceptor and to the order" — thinking thus, he should avoid falling a prey to acquisitiveness. Not to take unacceptable food, clothing etc., not to get attached to and not to hoard acceptable food, clothing etc. duly obtained — all these are necessary to cultivate non-acquisitiveness.

Even for leading an ascetic life certain minimum utilities are necessary. They have to be obtained. Even then, he should keep in mind that just as a voyager does not get attached to a boat which is essential to him for crossing the sea, so also a monk should not become attached to the utilities which otherwise are necessary merely for sustaining life. /

११८. अण्णां नं पासए परिहरेज्जा ।

118. Aṇṇāṃ naṃ pāsae pariharejjā.

118. A seer (of reality) should consume (things) in a manner different (from that of a layman).

ANNOTATION 118. Things are either consumed or renounced. In practice, however, renunciation has certain limits. To keep body and soul together, one has to use and consume things. A seer of reality uses and consumes them, so does a common man. But there is a world of difference between their objects, feelings and the ways in which they utilise and consume them:

| | Object | Feeling | Way |
|------------|---|-------------------|------------------|
| Common man | Material pleasure | of attachment | non-disciplined |
| Seer | Sustaining the body for spiritual development | of non-attachment | self-disciplined |

११९ एस मग्गे आरिण्हि पवेहे ।

119. Esa magge āriṇhiṃ pavēhe.

119. This truth (the path of non-attachment) has been prescribed by the Tīrthāṅkaras ,—

११०. जहेत्थ कुसले णोवलंपिज्जासि त्ति बेमि ।

120. Jahettha kusale ṇovalimpijjāsi tti bemi.

120. lest the adept should become deeply attached to it (i. e. acquisitiveness).

काम-अणासत्ति-पदं

१२१. कामा दुरतिक्रमा ।

Kāma-aṇāsatti-padam

121. Kāmā duratikkamā.

Non-attachment to Desire

121. It is a Herculean task to transcend desire.

१२२. जीवियं दुप्पट्ठिवहणं ।

122. Jīviyaṃ duppaṭṭivahaṇaṃ.

122. Life cannot be prolonged — (the thread of life, once severed, cannot be retied).

१२३. कामकामी खलु अयं पुरिसे ।

123. Kāmakāmī khalu ayaṃ purise.

123. (Nevertheless) man is a sensualist — he craves for sensual pleasures.

१२४. से सोयति जूरति तिप्पति पिड्ढति परितप्पति ।

124. Se soyati jūrati tippati piḍḍati paritappati.

124. (Non-fulfilment of desire) cause a sensualist to grieve, (on not gaining objects of his desires or on separation from the loved ones,) he gets emaciated, sheds tears, and experiences pain and remorse.

✓ १२५. आयतचक्खू लोम-विपस्सी लोमस्स अहो भाग जाणइ, उद्द
भाग जाणइ, तिरिय भाग जाणइ ।

125. Āyatacakkhū loga-vipassī logassa aho bhāgam jāṇai
uddham bhāgam jāṇai, tīriyam bhāgam jāṇai.

125. A person with 'wide-open eyes' meditates on the loka (universe): He knows the lower portion, upper portion and middle portion of the loka (world).

ANNOTATION 125: The first medium of disinfecting the mind from voluptuousness is the meditation on loka (universe):

(1) The term loka (universe) means objects of pleasure. One such object is the body. Therefore, the term loka here stands for 'body'. It has three sections, viz.

- (a) The lower one — below the navel;
- (b) The upper one — above the navel;
- (c) The middle one — the navel itself.

Put in another way, these are:

- (a) The lower one — the socket of the eyes, thyroid cartilage, the middle of the face (cheekbones).
- (b) The upper one — knees, chest, forehead: these are the protruding parts.
- (c) The middle one — the plain region.

A sādhaka should visualise that there are outlets everywhere viz. in the lower, the upper and the middle sections. (see, 4/118).

The meditational technique of visualising the body in its totality has been very significant. The present sūtra is a pointer to it. The reader is referred to the sixth chapter of the Viśuddhimagga, part I, pp. 160-75.

Bhagavān Mahāvīra used to go in trance by meditating upon the upper, lower, and middle worlds (vide, Āyāro, 9/4/14).

Three methods of meditation are indicated by this, viz.

- (1) Concentration of perception on the vault of Heaven.
- (2) Fixing the eyes on the vertical or slanting wall.
- (3) Concentration of perception on the interior of the earth.

Through the above three methods of meditation, Bhagavān Mahāvīra contemplated over the corresponding elements present in the three worlds respectively.

Thus, contemplation of the world has been prescribed as a medium of meditation.

Concentration of the mind on the objects present in the upper, lower and the middle world is the medium through which enthusiasm, boldness and perseverance are respectively nourished. (Cf. Namaskāra Svādhyāya, p. 249).

- (4) The second interpretation of the Sūtra is: a farsighted sādhaka notices that the lower world is afflicted with misery owing to attachments to sexual pleasure. So are the upper and the middle worlds.

- (5) The third interpretation of this aphorism is as follows:

Bhagavān Mahāvīra used to go in trance by meditating.

A sādhaka with vision knows full well the thought processes contributory to the elevation, degradation and medialization.

- (6) The fourth interpretation can be in terms of trāṭaka. Concentrating on a point with dilated and unblinking eyes is called trāṭaka. By accomplishment of this sādhana (of trāṭaka) one can perceive all the three worlds viz. upper, lower and middle.

१२६ गदिए अणुपरियट्टमाणे ।

126. Gaḍhie anupariyaṭṭamāṇe.

126. A lascivious person is caught into the vicious circle of the objects of desire.

ANNOTATION 126: Comprehension of the endless recurrence of sensuality is the second buttress of emancipation of the mind from lust.

The enjoyment of sex can never appease the desire for it. That is why an amorous person keeps dodging it. The only way to alleviate desire is desirelessness (temperance). One who is conversant with the principle of the endless recurrence of cupidity is awakened to the realization that lust enslaves. And ultimately, he is redeemed of it.

✓
१२७ सधं विदित्ता इह मच्चिएहि ।

127. Saṁdham vidittā iha macciehim.

127. Comprehending the joints of mortal human (body), (one should liberate oneself from attachment to desire).

ANNOTATION 127: The third means of banishing sensuality from the mind is the perception of the joints of the body. This means to realize that the body is mortal and just a conglomeration of various joints. The body is believed to have a hundred and eighty joints in all, out of which fourteen are called "great joints". These are: three joints in the right hand — shoulder, elbow and wrist, three in the left hand, three on the right side below the trunk — hip joint, knee, ankle, three on the left side below the trunk, one in the neck and sacrolumbar joint. (Cf. Visuddhimagga, part I, 165).

१२८ एस वीरे पसंसिए, जे बद्धे पडिमोयए ।

128. Esa vīre pasamsie, je baddhe paḍimoyae.

128. Only that sādhaka is worthy of praise, who disentangles those who are fettered by sensuality.

✓ १२९. जहा अंतो तहा बाहिं, जहा बाहिं तहा अंतो ।

129. Jahā aṁto tahā bāhīm, jahā bāhīm tahā aṁto.

129. (The human body) is equally vitiated by both internal and external impurities.

ANNOTATION 129: The alternate translation of this aphorism is as follows:

There should be complete harmony between the internal self and the external behaviour of a sādhaka.

Some philosophers stressed on the purity of the internal self, while others that of the external behaviour. Bhagavān Mahāvira did not accept either of these views. He viewed them together, and said: It is not enough to have the purity of the inner self only. The external conduct should also be pure, because it is the reflection of the inner self. It is not also enough to have purity of the external behaviour only. Without the purity of the inner self, it will be repression. That is why the inner self also should be pure. Confluence of the purity of the inner self as well as the external behaviour leads one to perfection of religious life.

१३०. अंतो अंतो^{प्रति} देहतराणि पासति पुढोवि सबंताहं ।

130. Aṁto aṁto dehaṁtarāṇi pāsati puḍhovi savamtaim.

130. A sādhaka should (penetrate into) the innermost penetralia of the filthy body and observe (the functions of various essential ingredients) and fluids (humours) and their outlets.

ANNOTATIONS 129-130: The fourth agency of freeing the mind from sexuality is the cognizance of the foulness of the human body. It can be compared to a pitcher filled with filth which is trickling out from it. Thus it is dirty from within as well as from without. Similarly, this bodily claypot is internally replete with foul matter. This comes out through the various outlets making the exterior also foul.

"Here is blood; there is flesh;
Here is fat; there is bone;
Here again is marrow; there again is semen."

The sādhaka thus looks into these and contemplates thoroughly over them.

The interior of the body means the pits and holes which the sādhaka sees in the body. He perceives the navel — the pit in the stomach, the hole in the ear, the armpits in the right and the left sides, the pores and other holes in the body. Thus, his desires are pacified.

The Buddhist monks also made such repugnant things the object of meditation (Cf. Viśuddhimagga part I, pp. 164-65). /

१३१. पंडिते पण्डितेहाए ।

131. Paṇḍīte paṇḍītehāe.

131. A wise man should meditate on the repercussions of indulgence in sex and filthiness of the human body.

१३२. से महमं परिणाय, मा य हु लालं पच्चासी ।

132. Se maimaṁ pariṇāya, mā ya hu lālaṁ paccāsī.

132. He who comprehends (the real nature of the body and sex) and forswears indulging in them, should not lick back his own spittle (i. e. should not go back upon his wise decision of forswearing indulgence).

१३३. मा तेसु तिरिच्छमप्पणमावताए ।

133. Mā tesu tiriṣṣhamappāṇamāvātae.

133. He should not get himself embogged in them (i. e. lust).

१३४. कासकसे खलु अयं पुरिसे, बहुमाई,
कडेण मूढे पुणो तं करेइ लोभं ।

134. Kāsaṁkase khalu ayaṁ purise, bahumāi, kaḍeṇa mūḍhe puṇo taṁ kareī lobhaṁ.

134. (A self-indulgent) person remains engrossed in (such memory and fantasy as) "I did this or I shall do that". He is excessively deceitful. Stupefied by his own actions, he, once again, yearns for (acquiring means of sensual enjoyments).

ANNOTATION 134: A stupefied person is he who has become nonplussed due to his over-busyness (i. e. mental worry to do this or that). Such a stupefied person begets sufferings when he longs for happiness. Due to excitement, he cannot do things like sleeping, bathing and eating at the right time. He remains lost in reveries. So deeply does he get entangled in imaginary problems, that he utterly loses sight of the real ones, like the proverbial flying Dutchman (the eternal day-dreamer).

१३५. वेरं वद्धेति अप्पणो ।

135. Veraṁ vaddheti appaṇo.

135. (Indulging in deceit and greed,) he incurs the enmity (of all and sundry)¹.

१३६. जमिणं परिकह्मिज्जइ, इमस्स चेव पडिवूहणयाए ।

136. Jamiṇaṁ parikahijjai, imassa ceva paḍivūhaṇayāe.

136. Whatever I have said (viz. that a voluptuous person indulges in deceits and increases enmity) means (he does so) for nourishment of this (human body).

ANNOTATION 136: Sex and hunger—these are two natural instincts. In order to satiate them, one wants to exercise authority over others. Canons of materialism prescribe the means of satiating them, while those of spiritualism prescribe the means of forbearing them. In the words of a spiritualist, the means are —

*"Sisnodara-kṛte pāṭha!
Pṛthivīm jetumicchasi,*

1. Cf. Suyagadaṅga, 1/9/2, 3.

*Jaya śiśnodaram pāṛtha!
Tataste pṛthivī jītā".*

"O king! You desire to conquer the world in order to satiate sex and hunger. Conquer sex and hunger themselves. The world would then be at your feet."

Bhagavān Mahāvīra said—those desirous of exercising authority over others in order to satiate their sex and hunger, generate a chain reaction of vengeance."

१३७ अमरायइ महासद्धी ।

137. Amarāyay mahāsaddhī.

137. He who is deeply devoted to (sensuality and wealth which is instrumental for it) behaves as if leading an immortal life.

ANNOTATION 137: A dancing girl named Magadhasenā lived in the city of Rājagṛha. There came the owner of a caravan, called Dhana. He was very rich. Being attracted by his good looks, youth and riches, Magadhasenā accosted him. But he was preoccupied with accounts of his income and expenses. He did not even care to cast a glance upon her. She was hurt and became very sad.

She at once left his place and went to the palace. There Jarāsandha, the king of Magadha, inquired of her, "What made you so dejected? Who made you unhappy?"

"A self-styled "immortal" man had done so", quipped back the dancing girl.

"What do you mean by "immortal" person?"

"Dhana, the owner of the caravan. I wonder how a person who is always obsessed with riches, and who did not even notice my presence, can ever visualise the presence of Death?"

It is true that an avid person cannot feel the presence of Death and the person who feels the presence of Death cannot be avid.

१३८ अट्टमेतं पेहाए ।

138. Aṭṭametam pehāe.

138. See! (one who behaves as if he is immortal while engaged in acquiring wealth) is afflicted.

१३९. अपरिण्णाए कंदति ।

139. Aparinnāe kaṇḍati.

139. The person who cannot give up (amassing of wealth) laments.

ANNOTATION 139: The person with a tendency for accumulation keeps bemoaning due to hankering after the wealth that he cannot acquire or due to grief caused by loss of wealth.

तिगिच्छा-पदं

१४०. से तं जाणह जमहं बेमि ।

Tigicchā-padam

140. Se taṁ jāṇaha jamaḥaṁ bemi.

Remedy of the Maladies

140. Comprehend what I say.

१४१. तेइच्छं पंडिते पवयमाणे ।

141. Teicchaṁ paṇḍite pavayamaṇe.

141. An expert physician is keeping himself occupied in his job.

१४२. से हता छेत्ता भेत्ता लुपइत्ता विलुपइत्ता उदवइत्ता ।

142. Se haṇṭā chettā bhetṭā lumṭaitṭā vilumṭaitṭā uddavaṭṭā.

142. (For the sake of medical treatment), he injures, cuts, pierces, anatomizes and kills various living beings.

१४३. अकडं करिस्सामित्ति मण्णमाणे ।

143. Akadam karissāmitti maṇṇamāṇe.

143. "I shall do unprecedented work (in the field of medicine)"—with this belief (he indulges in causing injury etc. to the living beings).

१४४. जस्स वि य णं करेइ ।

144. Jassa vi ya ṇaṁ kareī.

144. A person, whom he treats, (is also a party to this violence).

१४५. अलं बालस्स संगेण ।

145. Alaṁ bālassa saṅgeṇaṁ.

145. What benefit can be derived by an immature sādhaka (out of such a care of his body) (the treatment of which involves violence)?

१४६. जे वा से कारेइ बाले ।

146. Je vā se kareī bāle.

146. A sādhaka who takes such a treatment is puerile.

१४७. ण एव अणगारस्स जायति ।

—ति बेमि ।

147. Na evaṁ aṇagārassa jāyati.

— Tti bemi.

147. A monk ought not to take any such treatment.

— I say so.

ANNOTATIONS 140-147: There were two classes of ascetics — munis who were members of an order and those who were independent.

1. The alternate translation of this aphorism is as follows:
 - a) Such (killing involved in medical treatment) is enough to put into the bondage (of Karma particles) the ignorant sādhaka.
 - b) What benefit can one derive from acquaintance with an ignorant person?

The former used to take care of their bodies, while the latter did not. The latter did not take medical treatment, even when they suffered from diseases. It seems that this difference in practices came about in the post-Mahāvīra era. In the beginning Bhagavān Mahāvīra prescribed that munis should not undergo medical treatment. This was possibly because of two reasons — non-violence and non-attachment to the body.

In medical treatment many an occasion arises when causing of violence becomes necessary. A medical practitioner causes violence as a part of treatment and this has been clearly brought out in aphorism 142. There is no denying that use of certain medicines will cause violence to worms etc.

Attachment to the body is also a form of acquisitiveness. A sādhaka practising non-acquisitiveness should be non-attached even to his own body. One who has given up attachment to his body and is completely indifferent to it, and who is in complete union with his own soul, does not desire medical treatment. He leaves bodily affliction to take its own natural course. He endures it considering it as a result of his karma. He looks at life and death with equanimity and as such does not struggle for life nor try to avoid death. That is why, he never thinks about medical treatment.

There was a change in this line of thought during the post-Mahāvīra era. At that time, two categories of sādhana came about. In the first one, a medical treatment, in which no violence was caused by the medical practitioner, was permissible.

SECTION VI

छद्दो उद्देशो

Chattho Uddeso

परिगह-परिच्चाय-पदं

१४८. से त संबुज्जमाणे, आयाणीयं समुत्थाए ।

Pariggaha-pariccāya-padam

148. Se taṃ sambujjhamāṇe, āyāṇīyaṃ samuṭṭhāe.

Renunciation of Acquisitiveness

148. He (i. e. a self-disciplined sādhaka,) properly comprehending this (i. e. consequence of acquisitiveness) becomes vigilant over the practice of self-discipline.

१४९. तम्हा पावं कम्मं, नेव कुज्जा न कारवे ।

149. Taṃhā pāvaṃ kammaṃ, neva kujjā na kārave.

149. Hence, he should neither himself indulge in sinful activities (i. e. accumulation) nor should he cause others to do so.

✓ १५०. सिया से एगयर विप्परामुसइ, छसु अण्णयरंसि कप्पति ।

150. Siyā se egayaraṃ vipparāmusai, chasu aṇṇayaraṃsi kappati.

150. It is probable that one who allows himself the slightest infringement of a single vow may infringe any one of the six vows (viz. non-violence, truth, non-stealing, celibacy, non-acquisitiveness and not taking food after sunset, (i. e. he infringes all the six vows).

ANNOTATION 150: Violence, untruth, stealing, non-celebracy, acquisitiveness and post-sunset dinner — these are six avratas (i. e. infringement of the six vows). Is it possible that anybody practising anyone of these six infringements can save himself from the non-observance of the other vows? Can any one who is acquisitive save himself from causing violence? Can anyone practising violence save himself from acquisitiveness? In reply to all these questions Bhagavān Mahāvīra laid down the following principle — There are two fundamental evils — attachment and aversion. Violence, acquisitiveness etc. are nothing but their modifications. Motivated by attachment and aversion, if anyone practises acquisitiveness, he also commits violence etc. Complete forswearing of all the six avratas can be done jointly only and not separately. It is not possible that a muni may practise non-violence but not non-acquisitiveness or may practise non-acquisitiveness without practising non-violence. These great vows (i. e. mahāvratas) are practised simultaneously or violated simultaneously. They are acquired when pratyākhyānāvarena-kasāya (which is one type of passion) has subsided, while they are violated when it comes into force. The mahāvratas cannot be observed or violated in any number less than six. Therefore the above principle can be enunciated in the context of acquisitiveness as follows:

One who violates the vow of non-acquisitiveness also violates other Mahāvratas, namely, non-violence etc.

Another interpretation of this aphorism is as follows:

It is possible that one who causes violence to any one (system of living beings) can cause violence to anyone of the six systems of living beings (i. e. he causes violence to all the six systems).

For a sādhaka, violence to all living beings is prohibited. This total prohibition creates the right temperament towards non-violence. If the killing of a particular system of beings is allowed and that of another system or systems of beings is prohibited, the right attitude towards non-violence cannot be friendly towards other systems of beings. In the epoch of Bhagavān Mahāvīra some friars used to justify themselves by saying that they killed no other living being except beings of water-body. Some ascetics, belonging to the Śramaṇa tradition, used to profess, "We perpetrate violence only for food and for no other purpose."

When Bhagavān Mahāvīra's disciples used to pass through the paths of the jungle, there was a derth of 'inanimate water' (cf. 1/54-55). In many cases monks died of thirst. It is probable that a question might have been raised as to what harm might accrue from drinking animate water under those dire circumstances.

Bhagavān Mahāvīra, after weighing the pros and cons of the issue, observed that an aspirant whose mind was filled with a dormant feeling of violence even towards a single system of beings could not stride the path of absolute non-violence.

१५१. सुखी लालप्पमाणे सएण दुक्खेण मूढे विप्परियासमुदेति ।

151. Suḥaṭṭhī lālappamāṇe saṇa dukkheṇa mūḍhe vippariyā-samuveti.

151. Actuated by the desire for pleasure, one (indulges in acquisitiveness). He repeatedly hankers after (pleasure). Consequently haunted by his desires, he gets benumbed and earns sorrows, although yearning for pleasure.

१५२. सएण विप्पमाएण, पुढो वयं पकुव्वति ।

152. Saṇa vipamāṇa puḍho vayaṃ pakuvvati.

152. It is his own excessive stupor that engenders the cycle¹ of birth and death.

१५३. जसिमे पाणा पव्वहिया । पडिलेहाए णो निकरणाए ।

153. Jaṃsime pāṇa pavvahiya. Paḍilehāe ṇo nikaraṇāe.

1. In the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa we find the term 'vaya' used in the sense of gati —

"Vayaḥ suvarṇā upasedurindra mityuttamayā paridadhāti." Sāyaṇācārya also has used vaya to mean gati in his bhāṣya —
"Veterdhātorgatīarthasya vaya iti rūpaṃ" (Aitareya Brāhmaṇa, Adhyāya 12, Khaṇḍa 8.)

153. (Accumulation is the process) in which the beings undergo sufferings. Observing this one should not set one's mind upon it.

१५४. एस परिण्णा पवुच्चइ ।

154. Esa parinṇa pavuccai.

154. This (forswearing of attachment) is called Parijñā (discernment).

१५५. कम्मोवसंती ।

155. Kammovasaṃti.

155. This parijñā produces the subsidence of karma.

ANNOTATION 155: Man performs actions (karma). Actions in themselves have no motives. They are performed for fulfilling certain aims. There are certain necessities of life, the fulfilling of which requires actions. It is one thing to act in order to fulfil certain necessities and it is quite another thing to search for a necessity in order to act. When the mind is full of attachment, we create artificial necessities. By this, our problems multiply. The actions of one who is free from attachment get reduced to bare necessities. Simultaneously, the bondages of karma particles which are caused by actions also subside.

१५६. जे ममाइय-मति जहाति, से जहाति ममाइयं ।

156. Je mamāiya-matim jahāti, se jahāti mamāiyam.

156. Only he who forswears the instinct of acquisitiveness is competent to renounce his possessions.

१५७. से हू दिट्ठपाहे मुणी, जस्स जत्थि ममाइयं ।

157. Se hu ditṭhapahe munī, jassa jatthi mamāiyam.

157. That ascetic alone who has renounced possession, has seen the path.

१५८. तं परिण्णाय सेहावी ।

158. Taṃ parimāya mehāvī.

158. A sage should be conversant with it (i. e. with the evils of acquisitiveness) and renounce it.

१५९. विदित्ता लोगं, वन्ता लोगसङ्गं, से मतियं परक्कमेज्जसि
त्ति बेमि ।

159. Vidittā logaṃ, vaṃtā logasannaṃ, se matimaṃ parakkamejjāsī tti bemi.

159. After comprehending (the consequences of venturing in) the realm (of acquisitiveness) and disgorging mammonism, a wise person should diligently practise (self-restraint).

— I say so.

✓ अणासत्तस्स ववहार-पदं

१६०. नारति सहते वीरे, वीरे णो सहते रति ।
जम्हा अवियणे वीरे, तम्हा वीरे न रज्जति ॥

Aṇāsattassa vavahāra-padam

160. *Nāratīṃ sahate vīre, vīre ṇo sahate ratīṃ.
Jaṃhā avimaṇe vīre, taṃhā vīre na rajjati.*

Conduct of the Unattached One

160. A bold one does not tolerate ennui (created during the practice of self-restraint) (— he ousts it from his mind then and there through meditation). He does not tolerate delights (of intemperance) (— he instantly purges his mind of them through meditation); because he does not become discomposed (by pleasant and unpleasant sensory objects (— he remains equanimous). Therefore he does not get attached.

ANNOTATION 160. One should not tolerate apathy to subdual — this is the secret of the development of one's will-power. Deliberate meditation, i. e., canalisation of thought-processes, on subjects in which men are not normally interested is helpful in the development of will-power. Sense-organs are a slave to sensuality, rather than indifferent to it. Therefore, sometimes a sādhaka gets attracted to what 'the flesh is heir to! Hence he becomes apathetic to the practice of self-discipline. His determination begins to slacken. A sādhaka who cannot tolerate laxity, canalizes his thought-process in the direction of self-control. Thus, developing his will-power, he gains mastery over self-discipline.

The path prescribed by Bhagavān Mahāvīra, for the achievement of self-realization comprises the practice of constant vigilance and perseverance. In case a sādhaka is infatuated even momentarily by sensual delights, meditation once does away with his stupor. Consequently, he escapes from the indelible impress of the pent up sensual impulses.

If wantonness is not purged away, the mind begins to contract passion. One cannot, then, get rid of carnality. Therefore, the author has exhorted the aspirant to be very careful in this regard.

१६१. सद्दे य फासे अहियासमाण ।

161. Sadde ya phāse ahiyāsamāṇa.

Behaviour of a Recluse

161. An aspirant after non-attachment brooks the onslaught of sound, colour, taste, smell and touch — (he does not develop attachment or aversion towards them).

१६२. निर्विन्द नमिं इह जीवियस्स ।

162. Nivvinda namim̐ iha jīviyassa

162. O man! withdraw yourself from the allurements caused by the enjoyment of (undisciplined) life.

१६३. मुणी मोणं समादाय, धुणे कम्म-सरीरमं ।

163. Muṇī moṇaṁ samādāya, dhūṇe kamma-sarīraṁ.

163. After gaining knowledge¹, a muṇī should shake to its roots his karma body (to cast off karma particles).

१६४. पतं लूहं सेवन्ति वीरा समतदंसिणो ।

164. Paṇṭaṁ lūhaṁ sevanti vīrā samattadaṁsiṇo.

164. The heroic one practising equanimity² should take tasteless and coarse food.

१६५. एष ओघन्तरे मुणो, तिण्णे मुत्ते विरते, वियाहिते त्ति बेमि ।

165. Esa oghantare muṇi ttiṇṇe mutte virate, viyāhite tti bemi.

165. Such a muṇī who has crossed the ocean of life and death, is called successful, liberated, and devoid of passion. I say so.

१६६. दुव्वसु मुणो अणाणाए ।

166. Duvvasu muṇi aṇāṇāe.

The Richly Disciplined and the Poorly Disciplined

166. A muṇī who violates these injunctions becomes poor (by losing wealth of self-discipline).

1. Cf. foot-note on 2/103.

2. The author of the Vṛtti has interpreted sammattadaṁsiṇo as saṁatvadarśi in the first instance and as an alternative as saṁyaktvadarśi. Probably the text before him was "sammattadaṁsiṇo". The interpretation 'saṁatvadarśi' seems to be more consistent, because a saṁatvadarśi i. e. one who practises equanimity alone can eat unsavoury food with equanimity. The Dasaveyāliyaṁ (5/1/97) corroborates this contention.

"Tittagaṁ va kaḍuyaṁ va kaṣāyaṁ, aṁbilaṁ va mahuraṁ lavanaṁ vā.

Eya laddhamamaṁtṭha-paṭṭaṁ, mahu-ghayaṁ va bhumjjeja samjāe."

The self-disciplined muni should eat food prepared for a householder and offered to him of whatever taste it may be as if he were eating honey and butter.

१६७. तुच्छए गिलाइ वसए ।

167. Tucchae gilāi vattae.

167. One who is devoid of sādhana, fights shy of expounding (righteousness).

१६८. एस वीरे पसंसिए ।

168. Esa vīre pasamsie.

168. (On the contrary), a heroic one (who carries out these injunctions) becomes praiseworthy.

ANNOTATION 168. A muni who commands the wealth of self-discipline is called a suvasu muni. He lives contentedly in sādhana and is competent enough to attain liberation. He is never unwilling to expound the path of sādhana.

१६९. अच्चेइ लोयसंजोयं ।

169. Accei loyasamjoyam.

169. He circumvents the worldly bondages (such as money, family, attachment and aversion).

१७०. एस णाए पवुच्चइ ।

170. Esa ñāe pavuccai.

170. He is known as the 'Leader' (i. e. one who leads people towards liberation).

बंध-मोक्ष-पदं

१७१. ज दुक्ख पवेदितं इह माणवाणं, तस्स दुक्खस्स कुसला परिण-मुदाहरति ।

Baṁdha-mokkha-padam

171. Jaṁ dukkhaṁ paveditaṁ iha māṇavāṇaṁ, tassa dukkhassa kusalā pariṇṇamudāharamti.

Liberation from Bondage

171. The sufferings of human beings in this world are well-known. The enlightened ones (i. e. Tīrthāṅkaras) have instructed us on judicious liberation from misery.

ANNOTATION 171. In common language, the experience which one does not like is referred to as sufferings. In the language of religion, the cause of sufferings is also called suffering. The bondage of karmas is the cause of sufferings. Bhagavān Mahāvīra admonished the people thus —

There is bondage and there is cause of bondage.
There is liberation and there is cause of liberation.

१७२. इति कम्म परिण्णाय सव्वसो ।

172. Iti kamma parinnāya savvaso.

172. (In order to emancipate himself from sufferings) one should discernfully get rid of (i. e. comprehend and forswear) karmas.

✓ १७३. जे अणण्णदंसी, से अणण्णारामे,
जे अणण्णारामे, से अणण्णदंसी ।

173. Je aṇaṇṇadaṃsī, se aṇaṇṇārāme,
Je aṇaṇṇārāme, se aṇaṇṇadaṃsī.

173. He who looks inwardly at the Self revels in the Self;
One who revels in the Self looks inwardly at the Self.

ANNOTATION 173. The fundamental mainstay of Bhagavān Mahāvīra's asceticism is apramāda (i. e. complete lack of inertia, or constant vigilance). The first principle of this is close introspection.

The Bhagavān said, "Perceive the Self through the Self." ¹ Not being an extrovert implies being an introvert. Hence, the aphorism. Thus the processes of introspection and revelry in the Self continue to follow each other.

Passions (e. g. the Id-impulses, indignation, conceit, deceit and avidity) are not the properties of the soul; and, therefore, a true introvert does not delight in them.

1. Dasaveyāliyaṃ, Cūlikā, 2/11.

Knowing the Self is the Right Knowledge.
 Perceiving the Self is the Right Perception.
 Revelling in the Self is the Right Conduct.
 This alone is the path to salvation.

The second principle of apramāda is — to live in the present, i. e. to identify oneself with the current activity. One who is absorbed in the present activity does not pay heed to any other activities. One who remains lost in the reminiscences of the past and imaginations of the future cannot live in the present. A person who is engaged in one activity while his mind is occupied with another cannot remain alive to the exigencies of the present concentration. /

धम्मकहा-पदं

१७४. जहा पुण्णस्स कत्थइ, तहा तुच्छस्स कत्थइ ।

जहा तुच्छस्स कत्थइ, तहा पुण्णस्स कत्थइ ॥

Dhammakahā-padam

174. Jahā puṇṇassa katthai, tahā tucchassa katthai,
Jahā tucchassa katthai, tahā puṇṇassa katthai.

On Preaching Sermons

174. (A preacher) preaches to the haves and have-nots alike.

१७५. अवि य हणे अणादियमाणे ।

175. Avi ya hane anādiyamāṇe.

175. Inadvertent insult (to a particular dogma or an ideal hero of one of the audience during a religious discourse) may lead someone to come to blows with him.

१७६. एत्थंमि जाण, सेयंमि नत्थि ।

176. Ethaṃpi jāṇa, seyaṃmi natthi.

176. Know that — No good accrues from the religious discourse (of a preacher who is ignorant of the decorum of a religious discourse).

ANNOTATION 176. A widely read preacher can expatiate upon topics, both on philosophy and asceticism. On the other hand, a poorly read one cannot do so. All the same he can talk about renunciation, he should never enter into polemics. For, he may make a beginning, but he would not be able to round it off. That is why his discourse on philosophy would not be of any benefit.

१७७. के यं पुरिसे ? कं च णए ?

177. Ke yaṃ purise ? Kaṃ ca ṇae ?

177. (A spiritual discourser must feel the pulse of everyone of his audience —) What sort of person is he (addressing) and what creed does he belong to ?

१७८. एस वीरे पसंसिए, जे बढे पडिमोयए ।

178. Esa vīre pasamsie, je baddhe padimoyae.

178. Only that heroic person who liberates people from fetters (through his right and proper sermons) deserves commendation.

१७९. उड्डं अहं तिरियं दिसासु, से सव्वतो सव्वपरिणकारी ।

179. Uddhaṃ ahaṃ tiriyaṃ disāsu, se savvato savva-pariṇacārī.

179. Fully discerning everything, he moves in all directions — upward, downward and sideways.

१८०. ण लिप्पई छणपएण वीरे ।

180. Na lippai chaṇapaṇa vīre

180. The heroic one does not get involved in the affairs of violence.

१८१. से मेहावी अणुग्घायणस्स खेयण्णे, जे य बंधप्पमोक्खमाम्भेसी ।

181. Se mehāvī aṇugghāyaṇassa kheyanne, je ya baṇḍhappamokkhamam̐esī.

181. He, who investigates ways and means of attaining liberation from bondage, absorbs the quintessence (core) of non-violence.

१८२. कुसले पुण णो बद्धे, णो मुक्के ।

182. Kusale puṇa ṇo baddhe, no mukke.

182. The wise one is above freedom and bondage.

ANNOTATION 182. By wise one (kusalo) is meant a person endowed with knowledge. A muni who is proficient in religious discourse, erudite in various schools of philosophy, practicing what he professes, conqueror of sleep, sense-organs and hardships of sādhana and conversant with the limitations of time and space, is called "kusala" i. e. a Wise One).

Tīrthaṅkara is also referred to as "Kusālā".

१८३. से जं च आरभे, जं च नारभे, अणारद्धं च नारभे ।

183. Se jaṃ ca ārabhe, jaṃ ca nārabhe, aṇāraddhaṃ ca nārabhe.

183. He (i. e. a Kusala) does certain things and does not do certain other things. The muni should not undertake that which has not been undertaken by the Wise One.

१८४. छजं छजं परिणाय, लोएसणं च सव्वसो ।

184. Chaṇaṃ chaṇaṃ parimāya, logasaṇṇaṃ ca savvaso.

184. He should first comprehend and then forswear each of those planes on which violence is perpetrated. Similarly, he should thoroughly comprehend the mundane pleasures and forswear them.

१८५. उद्देशो पासगस्स णत्थि ।

185. Uddeso pāsagassa ṇatthi.

185. A seer (of truth) needs no directives.

१८६. बाले पुण णिहे कामसमणुण्णे असमियदुक्खे दुक्खी दुक्खानमेव आवट्ठं अणुपरियट्ठइ ।

—त्ति बेमि ।

186. Bāle puṇa ṇihe kāmasamaṇuṇṇe asamiyadukkhe dukkhī dukkhāṇameva āvattam anupariyattai.

— Tti bemi.

186. The benighted one is incompetent to assuage sufferings, because he is attached to desires and is lecherous. Oppressed (by physical and mental pains), he keeps rotating in the whirlpool of agony.

— I say so.

147

CHAPTER III

THE SHIFTING SANDS OF LIFE

तइयं अज्झयणं
सीओसणिज्जं

TAIYAM̐ AJJHAYANAṂ̐

SĪOSAṆIJJAM̐

✓
SECTION I

पदमो उद्देसो

Paḍhamo Uddeso

सुप्त-जागर-पदं

१. सुप्ता अमुणी सया, मुणिणो सया जागरंति ।

Sutta-jāgara-padam

1. Suttā amunī sayā, muṇiṇo sayā jāgaranti.

The Torpid and the Wide-awake

1. The unwise keep sleeping; the wise are ever awake.

ANNOTATION 1. At any time a person's body or his soul can be in any one of the three planes — asleep, half-awake and awake. The Degree of the development of consciousness (i. e. soul) determines the plane in which it resides.

| Development of consciousness | | |
|------------------------------|------------------------------|---------------------------|
| Nadir of self-discipline | Mid-point of self-discipline | Zenith of self-discipline |
| Sleep | Half-awakenness | awakenness |

In the terminology of religious philosophy the indisciplined is called unwise and the disciplined is called wise.

२. लोयंसि जाण अहिंयाय दुक्कमं ।

2. Loyaṃsi jāṇa ahiyāya dukkham.

2. Know that ignorance¹ in this world is baneful.

३. समयं लोगस्स जाणित्ता, एत्थ सत्थोवरए ।

3. Samayaṃ logassa jāṇittā, ettha satthovarae.

3. "All souls are equal".—One should perceive this : abstain from violence to the entire animate world;

४ जस्सिमे सद्दा य रुवा य गघा य रसा य फासा य अभिसमन्ना-
गया भवति, से आयव नाणव वेयव धम्मव बभव ।

4. Jassime saddā ya rūvā ya gandhā ya rasā ya phāsā ya abhisamannāgayā bhavaṃti, se āyavaṃ nāṇavaṃ veyvaṃ dhammavaṃ bambhavaṃ.

4. One who thoroughly knows these — sound, colour, smell, taste, and touch — (i. e. does not have attachment or aversion to them) is one who is in possession of the Self, Knowledge, Scriptures, Piety and Supreme Reality.

ANNOTATION 4. According to the Cūṛṇi, this aphorism is translated thus: "One who thoroughly knows these sound, colour, smell, taste, and touch (i. e., does not have attachment or aversion to them) is one who knows the Self, Knowledge, Scriptures, Piety and the Supreme Reality.

Attachment to sound, colour, taste, smell and touch obstructs the realisation of the soul. One attached to them is the same as one who does not possess the soul while one who is not attached to them is the same as one who is in possession of the soul. One who is in possession of the Self gains possession of Knowledge, Scripture, Piety as well as the Supreme Reality — is in possession of everything. One who knows the soul knows knowledge, scriptures, piety as well as the Supreme Reality — knows everything.

1. Ignorance is the translation of the word dukkham which literally means misery or suffering. As ignorance is the cause of misery, the author has used the word misery in lieu of ignorance. According to the Cūṛṇi the cause of misery is kamma. That is why he has interpreted dukkham as kamma. But ignorance is due to the Jīṇavarana kamma (i. e. the kamma, obscuring knowledge). Hence, in the present context dukkham can be translated as ignorance.

५ पण्णाणेहं परियाणइ लोयं, मुणोति वच्चे, धम्मविउत्ति अज्जू ।

5. Paṇṇāṇehiṃ pariyāṇai loyaṃ, muṇiṭi vacce, dhammaviutti añjū.

5. One who comprehends the loka (universe) through his own wisdom is called a muṇi.¹ He is conversant with the *dharma*² and is simple and straightforward in his behaviour.

६ आवट्टसोए संगमभिजाणति ।

6. Āvattaso e saṅgamabhijāṇati.

6. (A self-knowing muṇi) perceives attachment as a whirl-pool).

७ सीओसिणच्चाई से निगगये अरइ-रइ-सहे फहसिय जो वेदेति ।

7. Sīosinaccāi se niggaṃthe arai-rai-sahe pharusiyaṃ no vedeti.

7. A Jain ascetic (Nirgrantha) endures extremities of weather and does not fall a prey either to the ennui (created in the practice of self-restraint) or to the delights (produced by self-indulgence). He is unmindful of the pain.

ANNOTATION 7. Every person is destined to suffer adversities in this world. More so is a sādhaka who leads a life of non-violence and non-acquisitiveness. An ignorant person feels the pain of adversities, while a wise one is aware of adversities, but he does not allow them to make him suffer. His endurance is so much developed that he does not tag pain to his knowledge of it.

1. The word muṇi means a wise man. It comes from the root muṇ meaning 'to know'. According to the commentator, the word muṇi is explained as follows

"Manute ranpate vā jagataḥ trikālāvasthān muṇi"
i.e.—one who knows past, present and future states of the universe.

2. Dharma means nature. Hence dhammavī means one who is conversant with the nature of Reality or that of the Soul in the context of sādhana.

८. जागर-वेरोवराए वीरे ।

8. Jāgara-verovarae vīre.

8. A bold one is he who is wide-awake and above enmity.

९. एवं दुक्खा पमोक्खसि ।

9. Evam dukkhā pamoḁḁhasi.

9. O bold one! it (is) thus (i. e. through the practice of prudence, non-attachment, tolerance, awakening and friendliness) that you will get rid of suffering.

१०. जरामच्चुवसोवणीए नरे, सययं मूढे धम्मं नाभिजाणति ।

10. Jarāmacchuvasoṇīe nare, sayayaṁ mūḁhe dhammaṁ nābhijāṇati.

10. A person, who is enslaved by birth and death and is perpetually stupefied by delusion, does not comprehend Dharma.

११. पासिय आउरे पाणे अप्पमत्तो परिव्वए ।

11. Pāsiya āure pāṇe appamatto parivvāe.

11. Seeing torpid beings tormented, one should be ever vigilant.

ANNOTATION 11. Consciousness and unconsciousness are relative terms. When one is conscious of the external world, he is unconscious of the Inner Self. Conversely when one is conscious of the Inner Self, he is unconscious of the external world. One who is conscious of the external world throws the Inner Self into oblivion; that is why he becomes unwatchful. Thus unwatchfulness means sinking into oblivion. One who is conscious of the Inner Self is constantly alive to it. Hence, he remains ever vigilant. Thus watchfulness means constant consciousness. Constant consciousness means to be heedful and to throw into oblivion the causes which make one heedless.

१२. मंता एयं न्हनं ! पास ।

12. Mantā eyaṃ maimaṃ! pāsa.

12. O wise one! contemplate and realize this.

१३. आरंभजं दुक्खमिणं ति णच्चा ।

13. Ārambhajaṃ dukkhamiṇaṃ ti naccā.

13. Suffering is the offspring of violence — realising this, (try to be ever vigilant).

१४. माई पमाई पुणरेइ गबभं ।

14. Māi pamāi puṇarei gabbhaṃ.

14. A deceitful and unwatchful person is born again and again.

१५. उवेहमाणो सद्द-रूवेसु अंजू, मारासिसंकी मरणा पमुच्चति ।

15. Uvehamāṇo sadda-rūvesu aṃjū, mārāsisan̄kī maraṇā pamuccati.

15. One who is indifferent to colour (form) and sound is ingenuous (i. e. self-disciplined).
One who expects death¹ at any moment, transcends its limitations.

१६. अप्पमत्तो कामेहिं, उवरतो पावकम्महिं, वीरे आयगुत्ते जे खेयण्णे ।

16. Appamatto kamehiṃ, uvarato pāvakammehiṃ, vīre āyagutte je kheyanne.

16. One who is vigilant against desires and ceases from delinquent behaviour is bold and self-secured. (Such a person) knows the essence of things.

१७ जे पज्जवजाय-सत्थस्स खेयण्णे, से असत्थस्स खेयण्णे,
जे असत्थस्स खेयण्णे, से पज्जवजाय-सत्थस्स खेयण्णे ।

1. The alternate translation of this aphorism is as follows

One who is apprehensive of sensuality transcends Death.

17. Je pajjavajāya-satthassa kheyanne, se asatthassa kheyanne,
Je asatthassa kheyanne, se pajjavajāya-satthassa kheyanne.
17. One who is conversant with the core of attachment to various phases (of sensual objects) knows the core of detachment.
One who is conversant with the core of detachment knows the core of attachment to various phases (of sensual objects).

१८ अकम्मस्स ववहारो न विज्जइ ।

18. Akammassa vavahāro na vijjai.

18. For him who is free from karmas (i. e. who is pure) there is no appellation — he is not designated by name or clan.

१९. कम्मणो उवाही जायइ ।

19. Kammunā uvāhī jāyai.

19. It is because of karmas that the soul becomes conditioned by extraneous impositions.

ANNOTATIONS 18-19. Body, form, colour, name, clan, experience of pleasure and pain, births in various genera — all these are responsible for causing distinctions amongst souls. The ultimate cause of all these distinctions is karma. That is why a soul bound by karmas has various sorts of appellations and extraneous impositions. On the contrary, a soul free from bondages has neither any appellation nor any extraneous imposition.

२०. कम्मं च पडिलेहाए ।

20. Kammam ca paḍilehāe.

20. See (in meditation) karma (and strive to cast it off).

२१. कम्ममूलं च जं छणं ।

21. Kammamūlaṃ ca jaṃ chaṇaṃ

21. The root of karma is violence¹.

२२ पडिलेहिय सव्व समायाय ।

22. Padilehiya savvam samāyāya.

22. After having seen (in meditation) the karma, one ought to embrace perfect self-discipline.

२३ दोहिं अतेहिं अदिस्समाणे ।

23. Dohiṃ amtehiṃ adissamāṇe.

23. One should keep oneself away from the twin end-points (of attachment and aversion).

ANNOTATION 23. While a person possessed of attachment is exposed to attachment and a person possessed of aversion is exposed to aversion, a person devoid of all sorts of passions is exposed to neither.

२४ तं परिणाय मेहावी ।

24. Taṃ parināya mehāvi.

24. A sage should comprehend (attachment and aversion) and forswear them.

२५. विदित्ता लोग, वता लोगसण्ण से मइम परक्कमेज्जासि ।

—त्ति वेमि ।

25. Vidittā logaṃ, vataṃ logasaṇṇaṃ se maimam parakkamejjāsī.

— Tti bemi

25. After comprehending (the consequences of venturing in) the realm (of sensuality) and disgorging attachment to sensuality, a sage should diligently practise (self-restraint).

—I say so.

¹ Alternate translation of this aphorism is as follows:
The root of violence is kaṃma

SECTION II

बीओ उद्देसो

Bīo Uddeso

परमबोध-पदं

२६. जातिं च शुद्धिं च ब्रह्मज्ज ! पसे ।

*Paramabodha -padam*26. Jātim ca vuddhim ca brahmacariyaṃ! pāse.Knowledge of the Supreme Reality

26. O Noble One! See (in meditation) birth and growth.

ANNOTATION 26. To see birth means to observe the chain of births. One, who observes birth by diving deep into his own mind, regains memory of a number of his previous births through further observation. We easily remember events which had taken place ten or twenty years back. Similarly, the last birth also should be in our memory. But usually it is not so. The reason for this is stupefaction caused by extreme pain felt at the time of birth and death.

*Jātamāṇassa jaṃ dukkhaṃ maramāṇassa jaṃtuno/
Teṇa dukkheṇa sammūḍho, jātim na sarati appaṇo//*

By observing birth — by concentrating on it — the stupefaction is overcome and the memory of the past births is regained.

२७. भूतेहि जाणे पडिलेह सातं ।

27. Bhūtehi jāṇe paḍileha sātāṃ.

27. Know (the bondage and consequences of karma experienced by) beings and see their happiness (and sufferings)¹.

ANNOTATION 27. According to the author of the Cūrṇi, the purport of this aphorism is:

You should not do that which is disliked by others.

२८. तन्हा त्विज्जो परमंति णच्चा, समत्तदंसी ण करेति पावं ।

28. Tamhā tviṃṇo paramamti ṇaccā, samattadaṃsī ṇa
kareti pāvaṃ.

28. That is why a *Trividyā*² (i. e. a person knowing three sciences), after having comprehended the Supreme³ Reality (becomes equanimous)⁴. The equanimous person does not commit sin (such as indulging in violence, etc.).

1. The alternate translation of this aphorism is as follows

Treat all beings as you do yourself. Realize the significance (of the truth) that (just as you like) pleasure (and dislike pain, so do others).

2. The Author of the Cūrṇi interprets this term in two forms (i) tiviṃṇa, and (ii) ativijja

He states "Vijjatti ke vidvan' ahavā ativijjā "

The author of the ṽṛtti, however, interprets it as ativijja. It seems that the erosion of the tradition of the interpretation of the term tiviṃṇa is the cause of resorting to separation of the conjunction between tanhā and ativijja. But according to one view, the text should be tiviṃṇa. The Buddhist literature has retained the tradition of its meaning in its original form. (See the annotation above)

3. The word parama (i. e. Supreme Reality) stands for truth or nirvāṇa. The trinity — Right Knowledge, Right Perception and Right Conduct being the means of achieving parama — is also termed as parama.
4. The variant of sammatta (samṛta) is sammatta (saṃyaktva). In the Āvaśyaka Niryukti saṃyaktva and sammatta have been shown to be synonyms.

Samayā sammatta pasattha saṃti siva hia suṇaṃ anindam ca
Aduṇamehāmagarahaṃ aṇavaṃ me'vī egaṭṭhā.

(— Āvaśyaka Niryukti, verse 1046 with Malyagiri's ṽṛtti, page 575.) If the variant sammattadaṃsī is accepted, the translation of this aphorism would be —

ANNOTATION 28. The three sciences are:

1. The science of memory of past births.
2. The science of knowing the animal kingdom.
3. The science of critically analysing their (animals'), pleasures and sufferings.

One who has mastered these three sciences is called a trividyā. According to the Buddhist tradition, trivijja is three types of knowledge:

1. Knowledge of the past births.
2. Knowledge of birth and death (of beings).
3. Knowledge of purging of defilements of consciousness.

Attachment and aversion are two ultimate causes of Karma. They are the twin causes of loss of equanimity. One affected with attachment and aversion is too stupefied to retain equanimity or realise the intrinsic equality of all animals. One who fails to realise this equality, commits sin by being attached to one or becoming averse to other. On the other hand, an equanimous person has neither attachment to anyone nor aversion to any other; that is why, he does not commit sin.

२६. उम्मुंच पासं इह मच्चिएहि ।

29. Ummumca pāsaṃ iha macciehuṃ.

.... That is why a trividyā, having comprehended the Supreme Reality (becomes samyaktvaadarśi i.e. one possessing Right Perception). A samyaktvaadarśi does not commit sin (i.e., indulging in violence, etc.) 'That a samyaktvaadarśi never commits sin' is an aphorism pregnant with mysticism. One who realizes the true nature of sin is incapable of committing any sin. Conversely, it is only he who does not know or realise its true nature, that commits sin.

Jānāmi dharam, ra ca me pravṛttiḥ, Jānāmi adharmaṃ, na ca me nivṛttiḥ,

— 'I know the righteous way of life, yet I do not follow it. I know what is unrighteous and yet I do not refrain from it.' This is merely a superficial reflection. The right knowledge gained from profundity of consciousness does save one from indulging in unrighteous action

29. Cut across the shackles (of attachment) that bind to the mortals.

३०. आरंभजीवी उ भयाणुपस्सी ।

30. Ārambhajīwī u bhayaṇupassī.

30. Fears haunt him who lives by the sword.

ANNOTATION 30. By 'ārambha' is meant hitting, cutting and killing. One perpetrates ārambha to gain worldly possessions. Thieves, bandits and the like who indulge in violence and acquisitiveness on a large scale are incessantly bedevilled with the fear of incarceration, apprehension, decapitation, etc.

३१. कामेसु गिद्धा णिचयं करंति, संसिच्चमाणा पुणरंति गम्भं ।

31. Kāmesu giddhā ṇicayaṃ karenti, samsiccamāṇā puṇareṃti gabbhaṃ.

31. Sensualists pile up acquisitions. Nourished (with attachment to possessions), they are born again and again.

ANNOTATION 31. In the quartet (i.e. righteousness, wealth, desires, and salvation) of the principal objects of life, desire is the end and wealth the means. The present apothegm elucidates the truism that attachment to desire impels one to amass riches.

३२. अवि से हासमासज्ज, हंता णंदीति मन्नति ।

अलं बालस्स संगेणं, वेरं वड्ढेति अप्पणो ।

32. Avi se hāsamāsajja, haṃtā ṇaṃdīti marnati.
Alaṃ bālassa saṃgeṇaṃ, veraṃ vaddhetī appaṇo.

32. A pleasure-seeker derives a sadistic delight from killing other beings.

What benefit does an ignorant one derive from such sadism? He incurs more and more enmity (of other beings) by this.¹

ANNOTATION 32. Just as some people derive pleasure out of killings, so do others out of telling a lie, committing thefts, debauchery, and accumulating wealth. All of them augment enmity.

३३. तम्हा तिविज्जो परमंति णच्चा, आयंकदंसी ण करेति पावं ।

33. Tamhā tiwijjo paramam̐ti ṇaccā, āyāṇkandaṁsī ṇa kareṇi pāvaṁ.

33. That is why a trīvidya having comprehended the Supreme Reality, (perceives terror in act of violence, etc.). He who perceives terror in (act of violence, etc.) does not commit sin (viz., indulging in violence etc.²).

३४. अगं च मूलं च विगिञ्च धीरे ।

34. Aggaṁ ca mūlaṁ ca vigim̐ca dhīre.

34. O sober one! cast off the root and the ramifications (of sorrow).

ANNOTATION 34. Some philosophers believe in analysing only the effects (or ramifications) and as such they never get to the root-cause of a phenomenon. They cannot fathom the depths of the problem. Bhagavān Mahāvīra concentrated more on the cause of the problem rather than on its effect. The root of all sufferings according to him is moha (delusion). The rest are its ramifications.

1. The alternate translation of this aphorism may be done as follows

This (sadistic killing) is enough for an ignorant one to be bound by karmas He incurs more and more enmity.

2. Lord Buddha once exhorted his disciples: "O Mendicants! It is to be hoped that a person who perceives the element of terror in a vice would be redeemed of all vices in the world."

(— Anguttara Nikāya, Part I, page 51)

३५. पलिच्छिदिया णं णिक्कम्मदंसी ।

35. Palicchindiyā ṇaṃ nikkammadaṃsī

35. Man achieves self-realization through extirpation (of attachment and aversion by practising self-restraint and penance).

ANNOTATION 35: The soul does exist, but it is not visible. Passions — attachment and aversion — are impediments in preceiving it. They spread a shroud of karmas upon the soul, making it difficult to perceive itself. When the passions are weeded out, the soul becomes niṣkarma (i. e. free from the veils of karmas).

Niṣkarmadaṃsī can be interpreted as one who has attained

1. Self-realisation,
2. Salvation,
3. Omniscience, or
4. Non-action.

The fundamental basis of Mahāvīra's technique of sādhana is non-action. Reality is only that in which there is action. The natural activity of soul is action of consciousness. Any activity apart from this is not a natural one. To cease from un-natural activity is the secret of attaining natural activity. The moment the natural activity is attained, activities of attachment and aversion cease. Cf. 4/50.

३६. एस मरणा पमुच्चह ।

36. Esa maraṇā pamuccai

36. He (i. e. one who has attained self-realization) transcends Death.

३७. से ह्व दिट्ठपहे मुणी ।

37. Se hu diṭṭhapāhe munī

37. Only, a munī who has attained self-realization has perceived the path (leading to salvation).

३८. लोयंसी परमदंसी विवित्तजीवी उवसंते, समिते सहिते सया जए कालकंखी परिव्वए ।

38. Loyamsī paramadaṁsī vivittajīvī uvasante,
Samite sahite sayā jaye kālakamkhī parivvāe.

38. One who perceives the Supreme Reality in the *loka*¹ leads a life of recluse and pursues asceticism unto his last breath, subduing his passions, conducting himself upright, equipping himself with (knowledge, etc.) and remaining ever vigilant.

ANNOTATIONS 38. Bhagavān Mahāvīra has prescribed a life-long course of monkhood. A person who has practised asceticism in the true sense of the word, cannot retrace his steps. That is why, this prescription is not superimposed but is natural.

३९. बहं च खलु पाव-कम्मं पगडं ।

39. Baḥm ca khalu pāva-kammaṁ pagaḍaṁ.

39. (This soul) has committed many a sin (in the past).

४०. सच्चंसि धित्तिं कुव्वह ।

40. Saccaṁsī dhitim kuvvaha.

40. Be steadfast in Truth².

४१. एत्थोवरए मेहावी सव्वं पाव-कम्म ज्ञोसेति ।

41. Etthovarāe mehāvī savvaṁ pāva-kammaṁ jhoṣeti.

41. The wise one who is immersed in Truth causes all karmas to wither away.

1. Cf. 2./125.

2. That is to say, stay in Truth, experience ecstasy in Truth, do not depart from Truth.

अणेगचित्त-पदं

४२ अणेगचित्ते खलु अयं पुरिसे, से केयणं अरिहए पुरइत्तए ।

Aṇegacitta-padam

42. Aṇegacitte khalu ayaṃ purise, se keyaṇaṃ arihae pūraittae.

Manifold Desires of Man

42. Man has many desires; he wants to fill up a sieve.

ANNOTATION 42. The author has compared desire with a sieve. Desire is impossible of fulfilment, just as a sieve is. The author of the Cūṛṇi here quotes a verse —

*Na śayāno jayennidrām, na bhūṭhāno jayet kṣudhām /
Na kāmamānaḥ kāmānām, lābheneha praśāmyati //*

One cannot conquer sleeplessness by sleep; hunger by food and desire by gain.

४३ से अण्णवहाए अण्णपरियावाए अण्णपरिग्गहाए, जणवयवहाए
जणवयपरियावाए जणवयपरिग्गहाए ।

43. Se aṇṇavahāe aṇṇapariyāvāe aṇṇapariggahāe, jaṇavayavahāe jaṇavayapariyāvāe jaṇavayapariggahāe.

43. (A man afflicted with desire indulges in actions) in order to kill, torture and subjugate others, and in order to perpetrate genocide, tyranny and imperialism.

संजमाचरण-पदं

४४. आसेवित्ता एतमदुद्धं इच्चेवेगे समुद्धिया, तम्हात विइयं नो सेवए ।

Samjamācarana-padam

44. Āsevuttā etamaddhaṃ iccevege samuḍḍhiyā, tamhā taṃ buyaṃ no sevae.

Practice of Self-discipline

44. Some people first indulge in the aforesaid activities and then take to the practice of self-discipline. Therefore, they do not again indulge in these actions (viz. sensual pleasures, violence, etc.).

४५. निस्सारं पासिय णाणी, उववायं चवणं गच्चा । अणणं चर माहणे !

45. Nissāraṃ pāsīya nāṇī, uvavāyaṃ cavaṇaṃ gaccā, aṇaṇaṃ cara māhaṇe !

45. O wise one! see that sensual objects are worthless. Know that birth and death (are inevitable). Hence, O māhana (i. e. practitioner of non-violence) ! follow the unique (path of continence or salvation).

४६. से ण छणे ण छावाए, छणतं णाणुजाणइ ।

46. Se ṇa chaṇe ṇa chaṇāvae, chaṇantaṃ nāṇujāṇai.

46. He (the māhana) should neither himself cause violence to beings, nor get others to do so, nor should he approve of others doing it.

४७. निव्विदं नंदिं अरते पयासु ।

47. Ñivvinda ṇaṇḍiṃ arate payāsu.

47. Always give a cold shoulder to enjoyment (of sensual pleasures). Do not get enamoured of women.

४८. अणोमदसी णिसन्ने पावेहिं कम्महिं ।

48. Aṇomaḍasī ṇisaṇṇe pāvehiṃ kammahiṃ.

48. One who perceives the Supreme Reality has no regard for sins.

४९. कोहाइमाणं हणिया य वीरे, लोभस्स पासे निरयं महंतं ।
तम्हा हि वीरे विरते वहाओ, छिदेज्ज सोयं लहुसूय-गामी ॥

49. Kohāimāṇaṁ haṇiyā ya vīre, lobhassa pāse nīrayaṁ mahantaṁ.

Tamhā hi vīre virate vahaō, chindejja soyaṁ lahūsūya-gāmi..

49. The dauntless one should lay axe to anger and pride which are the vanguards of passions (kaṣāya) and should look upon avidity as a great hell. (Avidity is hell); that is why a dauntless one who moves unimpeded like a breeze, ceasing from killing (other beings), should destroy desires.

५०. गंयं परिण्णाय इहज्जेव वीरे, सोयं परिण्णाय चरेज्ज दंते ।
उम्मग्ग लद्धं, इह माणवेहि, णो पाणिणं पाणे समारभेज्जासि ॥
—त्ति वेमि ।

50. Gaṁthaṁ pariṇṇāya iha jjeva vīre, soyaṁ pariṇṇāya carejja daṇṭe.

Ummagga laddhum iha māpavehiṁ, no paṇiṇaṁ paṇe samārabhejjāsi..

— Tti bemi.

50. A heroic subjugator of senses should move about, having instantly forsworn acquisitiveness and desire.

One can emerge out from the ocean of mundane existence in this very life of a human being. A maṇi should not indulge in violence after having obtained it (i. e. birth as a human being).

— I say so.

SECTION III

तद्वञ्जो उद्देशो

Tao Uddeso

अज्झत्थ-पदं

५१. संघि लोगस्स जाणिता ।

*Ajjhattha-padam*51. Samāhim logassa janitta.Spiritual World

51. Having comprehended the nature of the Self, a muni ought not to (wallow in stupor).

ANNOTATION 51. Consciousness is the innate characteristic of the Self. To be conscious of it means to be vigilant. Infatuation is not possible unless one is not enlivened by consciousness. Knowing that there is a loophole in the walls of the prison, it is not in the interests of the captive to wallow in stupor. Similarly it is not in the interest of a sādhaka to wallow in stupor when he comes to know that there is a way out of the prison of delusion.

५२. आयञ्जो बहिया पास ।

52. Āyao bahiyā pāsa.

52. Perceive other living beings as equal to your Self.

५३. तम्हा ण हता ण विघायए ।

53. Tamhā ṇa haṁtā ṇa vighāyae.

53. (All beings like pleasure and dislike suffering;) therefore, a muni should neither himself kill other beings nor get others to do so.

५४ जमिणं अणमण्णावतिगिच्छाए पडिलेहाए ण करेइ पाव कम्मं, किं तत्थ मुणी कारणं सिया ?

54. Jamiṇaṃ aṇṇamaṇṇāvatigicchāe paḍilehāe ṇa kareḥ pavāṃ kammaṃ, kiṃ tattha muṇi kāranaṃ siyā ?

54. One does not commit sinful actions out of mutual apprehension or in others' presence. Is this an act befitting a sage ?

ANNOTATION 54. It is spiritual knowledge which induces one not to commit sin. A true spiritualist does not commit sin either in the presence of others or otherwise. However, the pragmatist does not commit sin in public, while he does so in privacy.

A disciple inquired of his preceptor, "O Venerable One! Would it be a true renunciation if one does not commit sin just because of fear, apprehension or shyness of others?"

The preceptor replied, "It is not true renunciation. One whose conscience is not induced to forswear sinful karmas is certainly not a sage. He is a sage only in name."

५५. समयं तत्थुवेहाए, अप्पानं विप्पसायए ।

55. Samayaṃ tatthuvehāe, appānaṃ vip̐pasāyae.

55. By practising equanimity in life one should gratify one's Self.

ANNOTATION 55. Equanimity means not to commit sinful action both in privacy and in public. Only that sādhaka can remain in a blissful state of mind (i. e. pure), whose conduct is uniform both publicly and privately. The conscience of a person, who keeps committing sins privately cannot remain really gratified — it becomes defiled.

५६. अणणपरमं नाणी, णो पमाए कयाइ वि ।

आयगुत्ते सया वीरे, जायामायाए जावए ॥

56. Aṇaṇṇaparamaṃ nāṇī, ño pa māe kayāi vi.

Āyagutte sayā vīre, jāyāmāyāe jāvae.

56 A munī (sage) should not be slack even for a single moment in the effort to achieve the Supreme Truth (i. e. self-realization). He should perpetually subdue his sense and be bold. He should live on a limited diet.

५७. विरागं रुवेहिं गच्छेज्जा, महया खुड्ढएहि वा ।

57. Virāgaṃ rūwehiṃ gacchejjā, mahayā khuddāe hi vā.

57. One should develop indifference to all kinds of forms (substances) — both trivial and grand.

५८. आगतिं गतिं परिण्णाय, दोहिं वि अंतेहिं अदिस्समाणे ।

से ण छिज्जइ ण भिज्जइ ण डज्झइ, ण हम्मइ कंचणं सव्वलोए ॥

58. Āgatiṃ gatiṃ parinṇāya, dohiṃ vi antehiṃ adis-
sa māṇe,

Se ṇa chijjai ṇa bhijjai ṇa dajjai, ṇa hammai kaṃcaṇaṃ savvaloe..

58. Comprehending the (phenomenon of) departure (from one life) and arrival (into another life) (i. e. recurrent transmigration), one remains unexposed to the twin end-points (of attachment and aversion). In no part of the world, does he meet with mutilation, vulnerability, incineration or decapitation.

ANNOTATION 58. Yasya hastau ca pādau ca, jihvāgram
ca susaṃyatam/

Indriyāṇi ca guptāni, rājā tasya karoti kim?//

Even a king cannot inflict any harm on a person who has all his senses i. e. hands, feet and the tip of the tongue in full control.

५६. अवरेण पुच्वं ण सरंति एगे, किमस्सतीतं ? किं भागमिस्सं ?

भासंति एगे इह माणवा उ, जमस्सतीतं आगमिस्सं ॥

59. *Avareṇa puṇṇam na saraṇti ege, kimassatītaṃ ?
kim vāgamiṣsaṃ ?*

Bhāsaṇti ege iha māṇavā u, jamaṣṣatītaṃ āgamiṣsaṃ.

59. Some people do not contemplate the Past and the Future — what was the Past of this? What will be the Future of this? Some persons assert that which was the Past of the soul will be its Future.

६०. णातीतमद्वं ण य आगमिस्सं, मद्वं नियच्छंति तहागया उ ।

विधूत-कप्पे एयाणुपस्सी, निज्जोसइत्ता खवगे महेसी ॥

60. Nātītamattṭhaṃ na ya āgamiṣsaṃ, attṭhaṃ niyacchaṇṭi tahaḡaya u /

Vidhūta-kappe eyāṇuṇpassī, ṇijjhosattā khvage maheṣī //

60. Tathāgatas are indifferent to the things of Past and Future.

The great seers who observe the *Dhuta*¹ code of conduct, annihilate (the karma-body) by attenuating it through becoming observer of the Present.

ANNOTATIONS 59-60. These aphorisms can be explained from both points of view, viz. philosophical point of view and view-point of sādhana.

The philosophical interpretation is as follows:

Some philosophers do not believe in the law of causality with respect to the past and future of a soul.

Some other philosophers, on the other hand, contend that what the past of soul was will be its future also.

The Tathāgatas do not recognise the past and the future of a thing.

A great Seer scrutinizes all these schools of thought. Doing so, he observes the higher conduct prescribed as dhuta (to be described in the chapter VI). Thereby attenuating the karma body, he ultimately gets rid of it.

1. See 6/24.

From the point of view of sādhana, these aphorisms can be interpreted thus:

There are some sādhakas who neither give heed to the memory of the sensual pleasures of the past nor desire for future pleasures. Some other sādhakas assert that the past was not satiated with self-indulgence, and therefore, it follows that the future also would not be satiated with it.

It is the memory of the past pleasures and the desires for the future ones that breed attachment, aversion and delusion. That is why, the Tathāgatas (i.e. the aspirants who strive for the attainment of the state of Perfect Equanimity) do not heed the matters of the Past and Future—they do not allow such state of mind to be created as is filled with attachment and aversion.

One whose conduct is such as to pacify or get rid of attachment, aversion and delusion is called as a "vidhūta-kalpa" of "one observing the dhuta code of conduct".

One who is tathāgata and vidhūta-kalpa is eyāṇupassī, which can be interpreted in three ways:

1. Etadanupaśyī — One who observes the realities happening in the present only.

2. Ekānupaśyī — One who observes the soul as 'solitary'.

3. Ejānupasyī — One who observes the vibrations (of the karma body) or transformations taking place on account of the observance of the dhuta code of conduct.

Such a sādhaka annihilates the karma body by remaining free from attachment and aversion.

६१. का अरई ? के आणंदे ? एत्थं पि अगहे चरे ।

सर्वं हासं परिच्चज्ज, आलीण-गुत्तो परिव्वए ॥

61. Kā araī ? Ke āṇande ? Etthaṃ pi aggahe care /

Savvaṃ hāsaṃ pariccajja, ālīṇa-gutto parivvāe //

61. (To a sādhaka) what is ennui? And what is pleasure? He should not respond to either of these alternatives.

Abandoning all kinds of (frivolities such as) laughter, etc. and subjugating the senses and disciplining the mind speech and body, he should lead the life of an ascetic.

६२. पुरिस्ता ! तुममेव तुमं मित्तं, किं बहिया मित्तमिच्छसि ?

62. Purisa! tumameva tumam mittam, kim bahiyā muttamicchasi ?

62. O man! You are your own friend. (Then) why seek¹ one outside?

६३. जं जाणेज्जा उच्चासइयं, तं जाणेज्जा दूरालइयं ।

जं जाणेज्जा दूरालइयं, तं जाणेज्जा उच्चासइयं ॥

63. Jam jāṇejaṃ uccāsaṃ, taṃ jāṇejaṃ dūralaṃ /

Jam jāṇejaṃ dūralaṃ, taṃ jāṇejaṃ uccāsaṃ //

63. One, whom you consider to be devoted to the Supreme Reality, know him to be devoted to that which is quite remote from (lust).

And one, whom you consider to be devoted to that which is quite remote from (lust), know him to be devoted to the Supreme Reality².

६४. पुरिस्ता ! अत्ताणमेव अभिणिगिज्झ, एवं दुक्खा पमोक्खसि ।

64. Purisa! attāṇameva abhinigijjha, evaṃ dukkhā pamokkhasi.

64. O man! grasp the Soul. This is how you will be emancipated from sufferings.

1. The alternate translation of this aphorism can be done as follows:

You are your own friend, then ~~why~~ long for external friend?

2. The alternate translation of this aphorism can be done as follows

One, whom you consider to be devoted to the Supreme Reality — know him to be devoted to the Highest (aim) and vice-versa.

ANNOTATION 64. The word soul is used here for consciousness, mind and body. The meaning of the word abhinigraha is — to go near and grasp. One who goes near his mind, grasps it, knows it and observes it, gets rid of all his miseries. To know intimately is to grasp. Effort to control generates a reaction. It does not lead to control. Knowledge cannot be achieved by it. In the matter of religion, nigraha is nothing but to know the Truth.

६५. पुरिसा ! सच्चमेव समभिजाणाहि ।

65. Purisā! saccameva samabhijāṇāhi.

65. O Self! follow the Truth and Truth alone.

६६. सच्चस्स आणाए उवट्ठिए से मेहावी मार तरति ।

66. Saccassa āṇāe uvatthiye se mehāvī mārāṃ tarati.

66. A wise person who is always at the beck and call of Truth transcends Death (or sensualities).

६७. सहिए धम्ममादाय, सेयं समणुपस्सति ।

67. Sahiye dhammamādāya, seyaṃ samāṇupassati.

67. An aspirant after Truth realizes beatitude after espousing righteousness.

६८. दुहो जीवियस्स, परिवदण-माणण-पूयणाए, जसि एगे पमादेति ।

68. Duhao jīviyassa, parivaṃdāṇa-māṇaṇa-pūyaṇāe, jaṃsi ege pamādeṃti.

68. Being overwhelmed by attachment and aversion, man (struggles) for present life and for fame, honour and self-glorification. Even some sādhakas are stupefied by them¹.

1. The alternate translation of this aphorism can be done as follows:

Man (indulges in actions) in order to achieve fame, honour and self-glorification both in this world as well as in the one beyond. Even some sādhakas are stupefied by them.

SECTION IV

चउत्थो उद्देसो

Cauttho Uddeso

कसायविरह-पदं

७१ से वता कोहं च, माणं च, मायं च, लोभं च ।

Kasāyavirai-padam

71. Se vaṁtā kohaṁ ca, māṇaṁ ca, māyaṁ ca, lobhaṁ ca.

Riddance of Kaṣāya

71. A sādhaka is he who disgorges anger, pride, deceit and greed from himself.

७२. एयं पासगस्स दंसणं उवरयसत्थस्स पलियतकरस्स ।

72. Eyaṁ pāsagassa daṁsaṇaṁ uvarayasatthassa paliyamtakarassa.

72. This is the philosophy of a true abstainer from violence and a seer who has removed the veils (of the karmas obscuring the perspicacity).

७३. आयाण [निसिद्धा ?] सगदब्धि ।

73. Āyāṇaṁ (nīśiddhā ?) sagaḍabbhi.

73. Only he who obstructs the ultimate causes of the (karmas) (viz. attachment and aversion), is able to smash his own (karmas).

७४ जे एगं जाणइ, से सव्वं जाणइ,
जे सव्वं जाणइ, से एगं जाणइ ।

74. Je egaṃ jāṇai, se savvaṃ jāṇai,
Je savvaṃ jāṇai, se egaṃ jāṇai.

74. One who cognizes one cognizes all.
One who cognizes all cognizes one.

ANNOTATION 74. So developed is the knowledge of a person who has cognized the tri-temporal modes of one substance that he is capable of cognizing all substances and vice-versa.

The substances have two kinds of modes:

- (1) inherent and
- (2) externally derived.

Unless both of these are fully comprehended, even a single entity cannot be fully known. The comprehension of one entity through both kinds of modes leads one to the comprehension of all entities.

The spiritual significance of this sūtra can be expressed thus:

One who knows the soul knows everything, and vice-versa.

७५ सव्वतो पमत्तस्स भय, सव्वतो अप्पमत्तस्स नत्थि भयं ।

75. Savvato pamattassa bhayaṃ, savvato appamattassa natthi bhayaṃ.

75. An infatuated one feels apprehensions from all directions, while a self-possessed one has no apprehension from any direction.

७६ जे एगं नामे, से बहु नामे,
जे बहु नामे, से एगं नामे ।

76. Je egaṃ nāme, se bahuṃ nāme,
Je bahuṃ nāme, se egaṃ nāme.

76. He who vanquishes one vanquishes many;
And he who vanquishes many, vanquishes one¹.

७७. दुक्खं लोयस्स जाणित्ता ।

77. Dukkham loyassa jānittā.

77. Having comprehended the nature of misery of the world, (one should lay axe to its very roots viz. kaṣāya (passions)).

७८. वन्ता लोयस्स संजोग, जंति वीरा महाजाणं ।

परेण परं जंति, नावकंखंति जीवियं ॥

78. Vantā logassa samjogam, janti virā mahājāṇam.
Parēṇa param janti, nāvakaṁkhamti jīviyam.

78. The undaunted sādhakas who (cheerfully) turn their back upon worldly associations attain the Great Path (salvation or the Path to salvation). They continue to make progress. They do not crave for (intemperate) life any more.

७९ एग विगिच्चमाणे पुढो विगिच्चइ,
पुढो विगिच्चमाणे एग विगिच्चइ ।

79. Egaṁ vigimcamāṇe puḍho vigimcaī,
Puḍho vigimcamāṇe egaṁ vigimcaī.

79. One who forswears one forswears many;
One who forswears many forswears one.

ANNOTATIONS 76-79. These two aphorisms can be interpreted in several ways from different points of views.

८०. सद्धी अण्णए मेहावी ।

80. Saddhī añṇe mehāvi.

1. The alternate translation of this aphorism can be done as follows

One who is single-natured is many-natured and vice-versa.

80. He who reposes his (entire) faith in the instruction (of the Tīrthaṅkaras) is a (really) wise one.

८१. लोगं च आणाए अभिसमेच्चा अकुतोभय ।

81. Logaṃ ca āṇāe abhisameccā akutobhayaṃ.

81. One having known the world (of passions) through the instruction (of the Tīrthaṅkaras) becomes intrepid (i. e. he has no apprehension from any direction).

८२. अत्थि सत्थं परेण परं, णत्थि असत्थं परेण परं ।

82. Atthi sattham̐ pareṇa param̐, ṇatthi asattham̐ pareṇa param̐.

82. There is (always) a weapon mightier than another one; whereas there is no weapon mightier than the state of disarmament.

ANNOTATION 82. Malice, hatred, wrath, etc. are various weapons, whereas friendliness, forgiveness, tolerance, etc. are means of disarmament. Different weapons have different degrees of destructiveness. As for example, X is less inimical to A, more inimical to B, still more inimical to C and so on and so forth. Thus does the intensity of enmity of X towards other persons vary. This shows that the edges of weapons have different degrees of bluntness or sharpness.

Violence is not only committed by the use of weapons but it itself is a sort of weapon. Violence means lack of self-discipline. One whose senses and mind are not under his control is a weapon to every living being. Abstinence from violence is a non-weapon i. e. a means of disarmament. One's own restraint towards all living beings is non-violence. One whose senses and mind are under his control does not act as a 'weapon' to all living beings.

८३. जे कोहदंसी से माणदंसी जे माणदंसी से मायदंसी ।
जे मायदंसी से लोभदंसी, जे लोभदंसी से पेज्जदंसी ।
जे पेज्जदंसी से दोसदंसी, जे दोसदंसी से मोहदंसी ।

जे मोहदंती से गम्भदंती, जे गम्भदंती से जम्मदंती ।
 जे जम्मदंती से मारदंती, जे मारदंती से निरयदंती ।
 जे निरयदंती से तिरियदंती, जे तिरियदंती से दुक्खदंती ।

83. Je kohadaṃsī se mānadaṃsī, je mānadaṃsī se māyadaṃsī.

Je māyadaṃsī se lobhadaṃsī, je lobhadaṃsī se pejjadaṃsī.

Je pejjadaṃsī se dosadaṃsī, je dosadaṃsī se mohadaṃsī.

Je mohadaṃsī se gabbhadaṃsī, je gabbhadaṃsī se jammadaṃsī.

Je jammadaṃsī se māradaṃsī, je māradaṃsī se nirayadaṃsī.

Je nirayadaṃsī se tiriyaḍaṃsī, je tiriyaḍaṃsī se dukkhaḍaṃsī.

83. One who harbours anger harbours conceit;
 one who harbours conceit harbours deceit;
 one who harbours deceit harbours avidity;
 one who harbours avidity harbours attachment;
 one who harbours attachment harbours aversion;
 one who harbours aversion harbours delusion;
 one who harbours delusion is conceived in the womb;
 one who is conceived in the womb is born;
 one who is born dies;
 one who dies enters into the Inferno;
 one who enters into the Inferno enters into the animal existence;
 one who enters into the animal existence suffers agony.

८४. से मेहावी अभिनिवट्टेज्जा कोह च, माण च, माय च, लोह च,
 पेज्ज च, दोस च, मोहं च, गम्भं च, जम्म च, मार च, नरग च,
 तिरिय च, दुक्ख च ।

84. Se mehāvī abhinivattejjā kohaṃ ca, mānaṃ ca, māyaṃ ca, lohaṃ ca, pejjaṃ ca, dosaṃ ca, mohaṃ ca, gabbhaṃ ca, jammaṃ ca, māraṃ ca, naragaṃ ca, tiriyaṃ ca, dukkhaṃ ca.
84. A wise one should get rid of anger, conceit, deceit, avidity, attachment, aversion, delusion, existence in the womb, birth, death, the Inferno, animal existence and agony.

८५ एय पासगस्स दसण उवरयसत्थस्स पलियत्तकरस्स ।

85. Eyaṃ pāsagassa dāsaṇaṃ uvarayasatthassa paliyaṃtakarassa.
85. This is the philosophy of a true abstainer from violence and a seer who has removed the veils (of the karmas obscuring the perspicacity).

८६ आयाण णिसिद्धा सगडब्धि ।

86. Āyāṇaṃ nisiddhā sagadabbhi.
86. Only he who obstructs the ultimate causes (of the karmas) (viz. attachment and aversion) is able to smash his own (karmas).

८७ किमत्थि उवाही पासगस्स ण विज्जइ ?

णत्थि ।

— ति वेमि ।

87. Kimatthi uvāhī pāsagassa ṇa vijjai ?
Natthi.

— Tti bemi

87. Does a seer (of Truth) ever has any extraneous impositions ?
No (he has) none.

— I say so.

JAIN VISHVA BHARATI
LONDON [RA.]

CHAPTER IV

THE TRUTH

चउत्थं अज्झयणं

सम्मत्तं

CAUTTHAM AJJHAYANAM

SAMMATTAM

SECTION I

पढमो उद्देशो

Padhamo Uddeso

सम्मावाए अहिंसा-पदं

- १ से वेमि—जे अईया, जे य पडुप्पन्ना, जे य आगमेस्सा अरहता भगवतो ते सव्वे एवमाइक्खति, एव भासति, एव पण्णवेति, एवं परुवेति—सव्वे पाणा सव्वे भूता सव्वे जीवा सव्वे सत्ता ण हतव्वा, ण अज्जावेयव्वा, ण परिषेतव्वा, ण परितावेयव्वा, ण उद्देवयव्वा ।

Sammāvāe ahimsā-padam

1. Se bemi—je aiyā, je ya paḍuppanṇā, je ya āgamessa arahamṭā bhagavanto te savve evemaikkhamṭi, evaṃ bhāsamṭi, evaṃ paṇṇaveṃṭi, evaṃ parūveṃṭi,—savve pāṇā savve bhūtā savve jīvā savve sattā na haṃtavvā, na ajjāveyavvā, na parighetavvā, na paritāveyavvā, na uddaveyavvā.

The True Doctrine: Non-violence

1. I say —

The Arhats (Venerable Ones) of the past, those of the present and the future narrate thus, discourse thus, proclaim thus, and asseverate thus—

One should not injure, subjugate, enslave, torture or kill any animal, living being, organism or sentient being.

२. एस धम्मो सुद्धे णिइए सासए समिच्च लोयं खेयण्हि पवेइए ।

2. Esa dhamme suddhe ñiḥe sāsaḥ samicca loyaṃ kheyannehiṇṇa paveiḥ.

2. This Doctrine of Non-violence (viz. Ahimsā-dharma) is immaculate, immutable and eternal.

The Self-realised Arhats, having comprehended the world (of living beings), have propounded this (Doctrine).

- ३ तं जहा—उट्ठिएसु वा, अणुट्ठिएसु वा ।
उवट्ठिएसु वा, अणुवट्ठिएसु वा ।
उवरयदडेसु वा, अणुवरयदडेसु वा ।
सोवहिएसु वा, अणोवहिएसु वा ।
संजोगरएसु वा, असंजोगरएसु वा ।

3. Tam jahā—utthiesu vā, aṇuṭṭhiesu vā;
uvatthiesu vā, anuvatthiesu vā;
uvarayadaṁḍesu vā, anuvarayadaṁḍesu vā;
sovahiesu vā, anovahiesu vā;
saṁjogaraesu vā, asaṁjogaraesu vā.

3. (The Arhats have propounded the Doctrine of Non-violence for one and all, equally for) those who are intent on practising it and those who are not;
those who are desirous to practise it and those who are not,
those who have eschewed violence and those who have not;
those who are acquisitive and those who are not;
those who are deeply engrossed in worldly ties and those who are not.

४. तच्च चेयं तथा चेयं, अस्मि चेयं पवुच्चइ ।

4. Taccam ceyam tathā ceyam, assim ceyam pavuccai

4. This Doctrine of Ahimsā is Truth. It is truly axiomatic. It is rightly enunciated here (i.e. in the Teachings of the Arhats).

५. तं आइइत्तु ण जिहे ण निक्खिवे, जाणित्तु धम्मं जहा तथा ।

5. Tam āiittu ṇa ṇihe ṇa nikkhivē, jāñittu dhammam jahā tathā.

5. Having accepted this (Great vow of Non-violence), one should neither vitiate it nor forsake it.

Comprehending the true spirit of the Doctrine, (one should practise it till one's last breath).

६ दिट्ठेहि निव्वेयं गच्छेज्जा ।

6. Diṭṭhehuṃ nīvveyaṃ gacchejja.

6. He should be dispassionate towards sensual objects.

७. नो लोगस्सेसणं चरे ।

7. No logassesanaṃ care.

7. He should refrain from worldly desires.

ANNOTATION 7. The three main worldly desires are — craving for son, wealth and longevity. A sādhaka should not cherish these as well as such other worldly desires.

८. जस्स जत्थि इमा नाई, अण्णा तस्स कओ सिया ?

8. Jassa jatthi imā nāī, aṇṇā tassaṃ kao siyā?

8. How can one who is bereft of the knowledge of this (Doctrine of Ahimsā), have the knowledge of other (Doctrines)?

९ दिट्ठं सुयं मयं विण्णायं, जमेयं परिकहिज्जइ ।

9. Diṭṭhaṃ suyaṃ mayaṃ viññāyaṃ, jameyaṃ parikahijjai.

9. This (Doctrine of Non-violence) which is being expounded has been perceived, heard, deliberated upon and thoroughly understood.

ANNOTATION 9. Bhagavān Mahāvīra has asserted that everyone is endowed with the faculty of independent reasoning. On the basis of this principle he said — "Search for the truth yourself."

He did not insist that the Doctrine of Non-violence should be practised because it has been enunciated by him. He averred; "Whatever I say about the doctrine has been directly perceived by the Seers, heard from the preceptors, thrashed out by profound reasoning and thoroughly comprehended through contemplation."

The process of the development of the knowledge consists not in accepting what is propounded by the Seers through direct perception by faith alone, but in hearing, profound reasoning and thorough comprehension.

१०. समेमाणा पलेमाणा, पुणो-पुणो जार्ति पक्खेति ।

10. Samemāṇā palemāṇā, puno-puno jātim pakappemti.

10. Those who resort to and remain engrossed in violence suffer (the miseries of) transmigration again and again.

११. अहो य राजो य जयमाणे, वीरे सया आगयपण्णाणे ।

पमत्ते बहिया पास, अप्पमत्ते सया परक्कमेज्जासि ।

—त्ति बेमि ।

11. Aho ya rāo ya jayamāṇe, vīre sayā āgayapaṇṇāṇe; Pamatte bahiyā pāsa, appamatte sayā parakkamejjāsi.

— Tti bemī .

11. O Sādhaka! You, who are endeavouring day and night; discern that those who are stupefied are outside the sphere of the Doctrine (of Non-violence). You should, therefore, be alert and always sedulous.

—I say so.

SECTION II

बीओ उद्देशो

Bīo Uddeso

सम्मानाणे अहिंसापरिक्षा-पदं

१२. जे आसवा ते परिस्सवा,
 जे परिस्सवा ते आसवा,
 जे अणासवा ते अपरिस्सवा,
 जे अपरिस्सवा ते अणासवा—
 एए पए सबुज्झमाणे, लोय च आणाए अभिसमेच्चा पुढो पवेइयं ।

Sammānāṇe ahiṃsāparikkhā-badam

12. Je āsavā te parissavā,
 Je parissavā te āsavā,
 Je anāsavā te aparissavā,
 Je aparissavā te anāsavā — ee pae saṃbujjhamāṇe,
 loyam ca añāe abhisameceā puḍho paveiyam.

The Knowledge Critique of the Doctrine of Ahimsā

12. Āśravas (i. e. the causes of the influx of karmas) are themselves pariśravas (i. e. the causes of the efflux of karmas).

Pariśravas are themselves āśravas.

Anāśravas (i. e. which are not the causes of the influx of karmas) are themselves aparīśravas (i. e. which are not the causes of the efflux of karmas).
Aparīśravas are themselves anāśravas.

One who comprehends the permutations of these terms, having known the exhaustively expounded world of (sentient beings) through the teachings, (should not become susceptible to the āśravas).

ANNOTATION 12. Four different permutations obtain from the terms āśravas, pariśravas, anāśravas and apariśravas. In the original text, the first and the fourth one are dealt with. The remaining two (i.e. the second and the third ones) are as follows:

Āśravas are themselves apariśravas.

Apariśravas are themselves āśravas.

Anāśravas are themselves pariśravas.

Pariśravas are themselves anāśravas.

The present aphorism can be interpreted from various points of views:-

1. Subject (i.e. Soul): The first permutation is common. Usually every soul is open to the influx as well as the efflux of karmas.

The second permutation is void, because influx is necessarily followed by efflux.

The third permutation holds good in the case of the state of the soul which is completely devoid of any vibrations. A muni, in such a state has no influx of karmas, but has only their efflux, i.e. outflow of accumulated karmas.

The fourth permutation concerns the liberated soul. He transcends both the influx and the efflux of karmas.

II. Cause: For an unenlightened soul, all acquirements of worldly desires are the source of āśravas. For an enlightened soul, on the other hand, these things themselves lead to pariśravas. On the other hand arhat (i.e. the Venerable One) or the muni becomes the cause of pariśrava for the enlightened and that of āśrava for the unenlightened.

It follows from the above that there are as many āśravas as there are pariśravas.

To quote —

Yathā prakarā yāvantaḥ, saṃsārāveśā-hetavaḥ.

Tāvantas tad viparyāśād nirvāṇasukha-hetavaḥ.

i.e. there are as such and as many causes of bondage in this world as there are those of emancipation.

III Operation: The movements of an undisciplined person lead to āśrava, whereas those of the disciplined one lead to pariśrava.

The present aphorism underlines the non-absolutistic nature of objects (or Reality). We cannot explain things, events or concepts in absolute terms.

Ācārya Amitagatī has mentioned this in his treatise Yogasāra:

Ajñānī badhyate yatra, sevyamāne(a)kṣagocare, Tatrawa mucyate jñānī, paśyatāścaryamidṛśam.

i. e. just think how paradoxical it is that whereas the objects of sense organs put an ignoramus in fetters of karmas, they become a vehicle for the emancipation of the sages.

IV Modus Operandi of Karma: Those who attract the karmas cause their bondage;

those who cause the bondage of karmas attract karmas;
those who do not attract karmas do not cause their bondage;

those who do not cause the bondage of karmas do not attract them.

१३. आघाह्णानी इह माणवानं संसारपडिवन्नाणं संबुज्झमाणाणं
विण्णाणपत्ताणं ।

13. *Āghñī ṇānī iha mānavānaṁ saṁsārapaḍivannāṇaṁ
saṁbujjhamāṇāṇaṁ viṇṇānapattāṇaṁ.*

13. The sages preach the Religion to those people who (though) being carried away by the (current of) transmigration, (because of their obscure perception), are desirous of getting enlightenment and are possessed of knowledge.

१४. अट्ठा वि संता अदुवा पमत्ता ।

14. Aṭṭā vī saṁtā aduvā pammattā.

14. Those who are afflicted (with privation) as well as infatuated (with luxury) (do not accept the way of righteousness)¹.

१५ अहासच्चमिण ति बेमि ।

15. Ahāsaccaminam ti bemi.

15. This is the real Truth — so do I aver.

१६ नाणागमो मच्चुमुहस्स अत्थि, इच्छापणीया वंकाणिकेया ।
कालगहीआ णिच्चए णिविद्धा, पुढो-पुढो जाइं पकप्पयंति ।

16. Nāṇāgamo maccumuhassa atthi, icchāpaṇīyā vaṁ- kaṇṭhikēyā.
Kālaggahīā ṇicac nīviṭṭhā, puḍho-puḍho jāim pakappayanti.

16. Though the Death shows its (ugly) face through diverse ways to all, some people are driven by the Desire and become tabernacle of Deceit. In spite of being held in the (jaws of) Death, they continue to be engaged in amassing riches (constantly keeping their plans to act righteously in abeyance). Such people are born (and reborn) in different genera.

१७ इहमेगैसिं तत्थ-तत्थ सयवो भवति ।
अहोववाइए फासे पडिसवेदयति ।

17. Ihamegesim tattha-tattha samthavo bhavati.
Ahovavāre phāse paḍisaṁvedayanti.

17. Some people, having come into contact with diverse (heretic) faiths² (profess them, which lead them to indulge in the actions causing influx of karma). Thereby, they suffer the miseries of the nether world (i. e. hell).

1. The alternate translation will be: Those who do not abide by the Religion are either miserable or infatuated.

2. The faiths which do not consider violence as sinful.

१८. चिदं कूरेहि कम्मोहि, चिदं परिचिट्ठति ।
अचिदं कूरेहि कम्मोहि, णो चिदं परिचिट्ठति ।

18. Ciṭṭhaṃ kūrehiṃ kammehiṃ, ciṭṭhaṃ paricittṭhati.
Acittṭhaṃ kūrehiṃ kammehiṃ, ño ciṭṭhaṃ paricittṭhati

18. One who preoccupies himself with intensely cruel acts will be reborn in genera where intense pains are inflicted. One who does not preoccupy himself with intensely cruel acts will not be reborn in intensely painful genera.

१९. एगे वयंति अदुवा वि णाणी ?
णाणी वयंति अदुवा वि एगे ?

19. Ege vayanṭi aduvā vi ṇāṇi ?
Ṇāṇi vayanṭi aduvā vi ege ?

19. Is this (doctrine) averred by other philosophers¹ or by the Arhats? Is this (doctrine) averred by the Arhats or by the other philosophers too?

1. The question whether the consequences of cruelty propounded in the preceding aphorism (no. 18) is a unanimous doctrine or not is mooted in the present aphorism. The conjunction aduvā (athavā) makes the present sentence an interrogative one — Whether this doctrine is propounded only by the Arhats or others also? This query assumes two forms:

The first form of the query is:

In propounding this doctrine, do the Arhats follow other philosophers?

The second form of the query is:

Whether other philosophers imitate the Arhats?

The answer to this query is given in the succeeding aphorism.

२० आवती केआवती लोयसि समणा य माहणा य पुढो विवादं
वदति—से दिट्ठं च णे, सुयं च णे, मयं च णे, विण्णाय च णे,
उड्ढं अहं तिरियं दिसासु सव्वतो सुप्पडिलेहियं च णे—“सव्वे
पाणा सव्वे भूया सव्वे जीवा सव्वे सत्ता हतव्वा, अज्जावेयव्वा
परिषेतव्वा, परियावेयव्वा, उद्देयव्वा ।
एत्थं वि जाणहं नत्थित्थं दोसो ।”

20. *Āvaṃti keāvaṃti loyaṃsī samaṇā ya-māhaṇā ya puḍho vivādaṃ vadaṃti—se diṭṭhaṃ ca ñe, sūyaṃ ca ñe, mayaṃ ca ñe, vinṇāyaṃ ca ñe, uḍḍhaṃ ahaṃ tiriyaṃ disāsu saṃvato suppaḍilehiyaṃ ca ñe—“savve pāṇā savve bhūyā savve jīvā savve sattā haṃtāvā, ajjāveyavvā, parighetāvā, pariāveyavvā, uddaveyavvā.
Ettha vi jāṇaha natthuttha doṣo ”*

20. Some Sramaṇas and Brāhmaṇas put forth mutually contradictory doctrines in the field (of philosophy).

Some of them contend: "The following doctrine has been perceived, heard, reflected upon, thoroughly, comprehended and scrutinized in all directions — upwards, downwards and lateral:

'All animals, living beings, organisms and sentient creatures may be injured, governed, enslaved, tortured and killed.'

Know that there is no sin in committing violence".

२१ अणारियवयणमेयं ।

21. Anāriyavayanameyaṃ.

21. This (approval of violence) is the doctrine of the ignoble ones.

२२. तत्थ जे ते आरिया, ते एव वयासी—से दुट्ठिं च भे, दुस्सुयं च
भे, दुस्मयं च भे, दुव्विण्णाय च भे, उड्ढं अहं तिरियं दिसासु
सव्वतो दुप्पडिलेहियं च भे, जण्ण तुब्भे एवमाइक्खह, एव भासह,
एव परूवेह, एवं पण्णवेह—“सव्वे पाणा सव्वे भूया सव्वे जीवा
सव्वे सत्ता हतव्वा, अज्जावेयव्वा, परिषेतव्वा, परियावेयव्वा,

उद्देयव्वा ।

एत्थ वि जाणह णत्थित्थ दोसो ।”

22. Tattha je te āriyā, te evaṃ vayasī,— se duddiṭṭham ca bhe, dussuyaṃ ca bhe, dummayaṃ ca bhe, duvvinnāyaṃ ca bhe, uddhaṃ ohaṃ tiriyaṃ disāsu savvato duppadilehiyaṃ ca bhe, jannaṃ tubbhe evamāik-khaha, evaṃ bhāsaha, evaṃ parūveha, evaṃ pañṇaveha — "savve paṇā savve bhūyā savve jīvā savve sattā haṃtavvā, ajjāveyavvā, parigheṭavvā, pariyāveyavvā, uddaveyavvā,
Ettha vi jāṇaha natthiṭṭha doso."

22. Those who are Noble Ones assert thus: "O Protagonists of the doctrine of violence! Whatever you have perceived, heard, reflected upon, thoroughly comprehended and scrutinized in all directions — upwards, downwards and lateral, is fallacious, and hence, you say, speak, assert and preach: 'All animals, living beings, organisms and sentient creatures may be injured, governed, enslaved, tortured and killed; Know that there is no sin in committing violence.'

२३ वयं पुण एवमाइक्खामो, एव भासामो, एव परूवेमो, एव पण्ण-
वेमो—“सव्वे पाणा सव्वे भूया सव्वे जीवा सव्वे सत्ता ण हतव्वा, ण अज्जावेयव्वा, ण परिघेतव्वा, ण परियावेयव्वा, ण उद्देयव्वा
एत्थ वि जाणह णत्थित्थ दोसो ।”

23. Vayaṃ puna evamāikkhāmo, evaṃ bhāsāmo, evaṃ parūvemo, evaṃ paṇṇavemo— "savve paṇā savve bhūyā savve jīvā savve sattā na haṃtavvā, na ajjāveyavvā, na parigheṭavvā, na pariyāveyavvā, na uddaveyavvā,
Ettha vi jāṇaha natthiṭṭha doso."

23. "We, on the other hand, say, speak, assert and preach: 'All animals, living beings, organisms and sentient creatures should not be injured, governed, enslaved, tortured and killed.' Know that it is non-violence which is (completely) free from sin."

२४ आरियवयणमेयं ।

24. Āriyavayaṇameyaṃ.

24. This (approval of non-violence) is the doctrine of the Noble ones.

२५. पुर्वं निकाय समयं पत्तेयं पुच्छिस्सामो—हंभो पावादुया ! किं भे सायं दुक्ख उदाहु असाय ?

25. Puvvaṃ nikāya samayaṃ patteyaṃ pucchissāmo—haṃbho pāvādūyā! Kiṃ bhe sāyaṃ dukkhaṃ udāhu asāyaṃ?

25. First, we shall ask (each philosopher) to enunciate his own doctrine and then put the following question to him: "O philosophers! Is suffering pleasing to you or painful?"

२६ समिया पडिवन्ने यावि एव ब्रूया—सव्वेसि पाणाण सव्वेसि भूयाण सव्वेसि जीवाण सव्वेसि सत्ताण असाय अपरिणिब्बाण महम्मय दुक्ख । —ति बेमि ।

26. Samiyā paḍivanne yāvi evaṃ brūyā—savvesiṃ paṇāṇaṃ savvesiṃ bhūyāṇaṃ savvesiṃ jīvāṇaṃ savvesiṃ sattāṇaṃ asāyaṃ apariniḍḍhaṃ, mahabbhayaṃ dukkhaṃ.

— Tti bemi.

26. "(If you say that suffering is pleasing to you, your answer is contradictory to what is self-evident. And if you, on the other hand, say that suffering is painful to you, then) your answer is valid. Then, we want to tell you that just as suffering is painful to you, in the same way it is painful, disquieting and terrifying to all animals, living beings, organisms and sentient beings."

— I say so.

SECTION III

तइओ उद्देसो

Tao Uddeso

सम्मातव-पदं

२७. उवेह एणं बहिया य लोयं, से सच्चलोगंसि जे केइ विण्णू ।
अणुवीइ पास णित्वत्तदंडा, जे केइ सत्ता पलियं चयंति ॥

Sammālava-padaṃ

27. Uveha eṇaṃ bahiyā ya loyaṃ, se saavalogaṃsi je kei vinnū.
Aṇuvī pāsa nikkhattadaṇḍā, je kei sattā paliyaṃ cayanti.

Right Austerities

27. Turn your back on such philosophical tenets which do not accept (the doctrine of non-violence). By doing so one becomes (truly) learned in the field (of philosophy). Reflect and observe that only those who eschew violence are able to annihilate the karmas.

२८. नरा मुयच्चा धम्मविदु त्ति अंजु ।

28. Narā muyaccā dhammavīdu tti añjū.

28. Only those who are free from bodily attachment¹ can apprehend the Religion, and only those who apprehend the Religion are ingenuous.

1. Muyaccā (Mṛtārca). The word arcā has two meanings: body and anger. One who is completely indifferent to bodily adornments or one whose passions are dead is called 'mṛtārca'.

ANNOTATION 32. The author of the Cūrṇi has explained the term 'Sole contemplation of the Inner Self' in terms of 'Solitariness' and 'Separateness' as follows:

The soul indulges in actions, bears fruits, takes birth, dies and transmigrates, all in utter solitariness:

*Ekah prakurute karma, bhunkte ekaśca tatphalam.
Jātyeko mriyatyeko, eko yāti bhavāntaram.*

Separateness-oriented meditation means the soul is separate from the body.

The explanation of the above aphorism by the commentator (Vṛttikāra) is as follows:

'I' have always been solitary: 'I' belong to none else;

'I' behold no one whom I can say I belong to nor do I behold one whom I can designate as mine.

*Sadaiko(a)ham na me kaścit, nāhamanyasya kasyacit.
No taṁ paśyāmi yasyāham, nasau bhāvīti yo mama.*

The pith of worldliness is nothing but disaster. Who, whose and where are one's kith and kin? Who, whose and where are strangers? These kith and kin as well as strangers all go round in cycles of birth and death. At times, the kith and kin become strangers, and vice-versa. There comes a time when nobody remains as kith and kin and nobody a stranger.

*Samśāra evāyamanarthasārah.
Kaḥ kasya ko(a)tra svajanāḥ paro vā.
Sarve bhramantaḥ svajanāḥ pare ca,
Bhavanti bhūtvā na bhavanti bhūyaḥ.*

Ponder thus! 'I am all alone. Nobody was mine in the past, nor will ever be in the future. It is because of my karmanas that I delude myself and consider others as mine. The truth is that I was alone in the past and will ever be all alone.'

(Āyāro, 5/59). Here the term 'Appāṇam' stands for the state of soul in which it is overwhelmed by Kaṣṭha (passions).

*Vicintyametaḍ bhavatāhameko,
Na me(a)sti kaścit purato na paścāt.
Svakarmabhir bhrāntiriyam mamawa,
Aham purastādahameva paścāt .*

३३. जहा जुण्णाइं कट्ठाइं, हव्ववाहो पमत्तति, एवं अत्तसमाहिण अणिहे ।

33. Jahā juṇṇaṁ katthāṁ, havvavāho pamatthati, evaṁ attasamāhiṇe.

33. Just as fire quickly reduces the decayed wood to ashes, so does a sādhaka who is (totally) absorbed in the (inner) Self, and (completely) unattached (to all external objects) (shake to its roots, attenuate and wither away his karma-body).

ANNOTATION 33: In this metaphorical aphorism, two means of shaking or agitating the karma body are indicated:

(a) Samādhi: complete concentration of mind on the inner Self i. e., pure consciousness.

(b) Anāsakti: Complete unattachment to all external i. e. material objects including one's own body.

Indication of these two means makes it patently clear that here the term 'body' means the subtle karma-body, and not the gross audārika one. Emaciation of the latter is not in question.

A sādhaka emaciated himself by many long fasts, but his egotism remained as strong as ever. Wherever he went, he made a show of his long fasting and sought praise. An experienced and wiser ascetic advised him. "O brother! Wither away your sensuality, passions and egotism. There is no benefit in emaciating this gross body. We will never praise you because of your withered body. Mere withering of your gross body does not make you praiseworthy.

*Indiyāṇi kasūe ya, gārave ya kise kuru
No vayaṁ te paśamsāmo, kīsam sāhu sarīragāṁ.*

— Niśīthā-bhāṣya, gāthā-3758.

Bhagavān Mahāvīra has referred to the withering away of the subtle karma-body. It is of secondary importance whether the gross body is emaciated or not.

कसाय-विवेग-पदं

३४. विगिच कोहं अविकंपमाणे, इमं निरुद्धाज्यं संपेहाए ।

Kasāya-vivega-padam

34. Vigimca kohaṃ avikaṃpamāṇe, imaṃ niruddhājyaṃ saṃpehāe.

34. Realising that man's life span is limited, remain unshaken (by passions) and eschew (the passion of) anger.

ANNOTATION 34: In the present Sūtra, the truth that —

"Kāmāt krodho' bhijāyate"—(Gūṇā, 2/62) i. e.

"Sensual pleasures engender anger" has been pounded.

Loss of pleasant objects and association of unpleasant ones are the main causes of the generation of anger.

३५. दुक्खं च जाण अदुवागमेस्सं ।

35. Dukkhaṃ ca jāṇa aduwaṃgamaṃ.

35 Know (the process of) the present as well as the future miseries.

ANNOTATION 35. Anguish is caused by anger. Anger not only begets anger but also sows and fosters its seeds in the form of saṃskāras (i. e. impressions) which are the source of miseries in the future. The realisation of this fact helps an ascetic to forsake anger.

३६. पुढो फासाइं च फासे ।

36. Puḍho phāsāim ca phāse

36. An irate person suffers from various kinds of miseries and maladies.

३७. लोयं च पास विप्फंदमानं ।

37. Loyaṃ ca pāsa vipphaṇḍamaṇaṃ

37. See the loka (world) on all sides vibrating.

३८. जे णिव्वुडा पावेहिं कम्मोहिं, अणिदाणा ते वियाहिया ।

38. Je nīvvuḍā pāvehiṃ kammehiṃ, aṇidāṇā te viyāhiyā.

38. Those who subdue sinful actions (i. e. the agitations of violence, sexuality and passions) are called Anidānas (i. e. free from the causes of bondage).

३९. तम्हा तिविज्जो णो पडिसंजलिज्जासि ।

— त्ति बेमि ।

39. Taṃhā tivijjo ṇo paḍisaṃjalijjāsī.

— Tti bemi.

39. Therefore, O *trividyā*¹! Do not get burnt up by the flames of sensuality and passions.

— I say so.

1. Cf. 3/28.

SECTION IV

चउत्थो उद्देशो

Cauttho Uddeso

सम्माचरित्त-पदं

४० आवीलए पवीलए निप्पीलए जहिता पुव्वसंजोगं, हिच्चा उवसम ।

*Sammācaritta badarh*40. Āvilāe pavīlāe nippīlāe jahittā puvvasamjogam, hiccā uvasamam.Right Ascetic Discipline

40. In the first place the muni should relinquish the relations (obtaining from objects, animate and inanimate); he should then subdue his mind and senses; and finally, he should resort to mortification (of flesh) in progressively increasing intensity.

ANNOTATION 40. There are two primary conditions for practice of asceticism.

- (1) Relinquishing relationship.
- (2) Subjugation of mind and senses.

After this, the sādhaka passes through three stages of sādhana.

(a) The first stage begins with initiation and endures till the completion of studies. During this stage he practises meditation to a limited extent and undertakes the austerities essential for scriptural studies.

(b) The second stage comprises of teaching the disciples and propagating the creed. During this stage he practises deeper and longer meditation and also higher austerity (e. g. fasting for many days).

(c) The third stage pertains to forsaking of bodily attachments. Having accomplished his own amelioration as well as that of the Religious Order, the muni engages himself in the preparation of the total forsaking of bodily attachments so as to attain the ultimate equanimity during the period of fast-unto-death. During this stage he practises meditations and austerities of still longer duration (i. e. fasting for a fortnight, a month or so on and so forth).

Progressive increase in the intensity of mortification of flesh is prescribed in proportion to the propriety and capability of undertaking practice of meditation and austerities. The intensity of mortification of karma-body will also correspond to it.

These are also the three stages of the dissociation of the soul from the body.

४१. तन्हा अविमणे वीरे सारए समिए सहिते सया जए ।

41. Tamhā avimaṇe vīre sārāe samie sahite sayā jae.

41. (The karmas of one whose mind and senses have been subdued get annihilated quickly). Hence, a blissful¹, heroic and wise *muni*², engaged in what is Right, and

1. One, whose mind is free from unhappiness, fear and sorrow, is called 'Avimaṇe' (i. e. blissful).

2. The Sanskrit equivalents of the word 'Sārāe' could be 'Svarāta', 'Sahrata', 'Sāraka', and 'Śārada'.

The authors of the Cūrṇi and the Vytti have annotated the word Svarata. Svarata is one who is engrossed in austerity, righteousness, detachment, vigilance, knowledge, perception and asceticism, and disciplined deportment and self-control.

Dr Herman Jacobi has translated this term as Sāraka (i. e. a person of pith).

In the Sūtra-kṛtāṅga, we find that the word viśārada has been used in three places (1/3/50, 1/13/13, 1/14/17). In view of this, the form śārada seems to be proper — one who is expert at grasping gist is viśārada (i. e. wise one).

equipped with (knowledge, spiritual experience and ascetic discipline should constantly subdue (his mind and senses).

४२. दुरणुचरो मग्गो वीराण अणियट्ठगामीण ।

42. Duranucaro maggo vīraṇaṃ aṇiyattagāmīnaṃ.

42. The path of the heroic *muni*s who tread the road of life-long asceticism is difficult.

ANNOTATION 42. Asceticism as prescribed by Bhagavān Mahāvira is to be observed for the whole life. The perpetual renunciation of attractive objects is not a bed of roses. That is why, it has been called 'duraṇucara' (i.e. an uphill task).

४३. विमिष मंस-सोणियं ।

43. Vimiṣa maṃsa-sōṇiyam.

43. Abandon (amassing) flesh and blood (i.e. physical vigour).

ANNOTATION 43. One of the causes of engendering the sex impulses is amassing physical vigour (flesh and blood). Hence, a muni should refrain from this. But the question here arises: Why should he do so? Why should he not build up muscular strength which is necessary for a healthy body which, in its turn, is essential for practising religion? Then why should it be deliberately weakened?

The answer is attenuation of physical vigour, however, does not imply extreme emaciation, but, in reality, it means controlling the physical strength to such an extent that it does not stimulate sensuality.

Dieting (avoiding rich articles of food) does not produce excess of blood which in its turn, does not allow accumulation of flesh, fat, bone, marrow, and semen respectively in the body. Dieting, therefore, automatically constitutes the sadhana of mortification of flesh (vide, aphorism 40).

४४. एस पुरिसे दविए वीरे, आयाणिज्जे वियाहिए ।

जे धुणाइ समुस्सयं, वसित्ता बम्भचेरंसि ॥

44. *Esa purise davie vīre, āyāñijje viyāhie,
Je dhunāi samussayam, vaṣittā bambhaceraṃsi.*

44. He (who abandons amassing flesh and blood) is designated as one who is free from attachment and aversion, heroic and model (of sterling character), for others. Observing continence¹, he withers away his (gross) body as well as karma-body.

४५. नेतेहि पलिछिन्नेहि, अप्पाणसोय-गढिए बाले ।

अवोच्छिन्नबन्धणे, अणभिकन्तंसंजोए,

तमंसि अविजाणओ आणाए लम्भो गत्थि ति बेमि ।

45. *Nettehim palichimmemhim, āyāṇasoya-gaḍhie bāle.
Avvocchinnabandhane, aṇabhikkantaṃsaṃjoe,
Tamaṃsi avijāṇao āṇae laṃbho gathhi tti bemi.*

45. While practising subjugation of the senses, a sādhaka, who is easily (assailed by delusion), who gets bogged down in sensuality and who cannot cut off the family-ties and monetary fetters (on being overwhelmed by likes and dislikes), getting lost in the (darkness of attachment), loses sight (of the evil consequences of self-indulgence). Such a sādhaka cannot avail himself of the benefit of the Teachings. — I say so.

ANNOTATION 45. Knowledge (i. e. āñā or ājñā) can be interpreted in two ways:

(a) Scriptural Knowledge.

(b) Didactic Knowledge.

1. The word 'Brahmacarya' (continence) envisages three meanings:

(a) Acāra—Asceticism.

(b) Chastity i. e. abstinence from sexual activity of any sort.

(c) Staying within the monastic order.

Here, however, it has been used in the sense of asceticism. Chastity is, as a matter of fact, a part and parcel of asceticism.

The gist of both is ācāra i.e. asceticism, and the kernal of asceticism is dissolution of karmas and finally, salvation.

A sādhaka salivating for sensual pleasures cannot, even though he may be conversant with the scriptures, conduct himself with propriety, or dissipate karmas, i.e. make any advancement in the direction of salvation.

४६. जस्स नत्थि पुरा पच्छा, मज्जे तस्स कओ सिया ?

46. Jassa natthi purā pacchā, majjhe tassa kaṃ siyā?

46. How can that which has no beginning and no end, have a middle?

ANNOTATION 46. Until the impress of erotic desires is completely obliterated, it keeps rearing up its ugly head even in the midst of ascetic practice. Consequently, even a self-subdued sādhaka sometimes succumbs to the assault of sensuality. But, when through severe perseverance in sādhana, a sādhaka completely eradicates the id-impulses, they are once and for all extinguished. They do not, then, occur, either in the beginning or in the end or in the middle — in fact, never. In the event of non-existence of the past impressions, one cannot conceive the future. And in the absence of these two, one cannot think of the present.

४७. से ह्यु पण्णाममन्ते बुद्धे आरंभोवरए ।

47. Se hu paṇṇānamante buddhe ārambhovarae.

47. He alone (who has completely obliterated the impress of erotic impulses) becomes transcendently wise and enlightened, and forsakes violence.

४८. सम्ममेयन्ति पासहा ।

48. Sammameyamti pāsaha.

48. (Only on complete obliteration of sensuality, can one forsake violence) — this is the Truth. Realise it.

४९. जेण बंधं बहं घोरे, परित्तावं च दाहणं ।

49. Jena bāndham vahaṃ ghoram, paritāpam ca dāruṇam.

49. (Succumbing to erotic desires), one resorts to binding (others), gruesome beating and awful torture.

५०. पलिच्छिदिय बाहिरगं च सोयं, निक्कम्मदंसी इह भच्चिएहि ।

50. Palichimdiya bāhiragam ca soyaṃ, nikkammadaṃsī iha macciehiṃ.

50. After extirpating all outwardly oriented tendencies of the senses, realize the Immortal (niṣkarma) in this mortal world.

ANNOTATION 50. One, the tendencies of whose senses are oriented towards fleeting sensual objects, cannot realize the Immortal. In order to attain this, it is imperative that the flow of senses is made inward. One whose senses are concentrated on the realisation of the Immortal himself becomes Immortal.

The word 'nikkamma' (Skt. niṣkarma) can be interpreted in five different senses:

- (1) eternity,
- (2) immortal,
- (3) salvation,
- (4) stoppage of the influx of karma and,
- (5) the Soul.

One, who is, inclined towards karma, is bound by karmas; while one who visualizes niskarma attains niskarma. Visualisation of niskarma is an important principle of the practice of Yoga.

This can be achieved by concentrating all the tendencies of the mind on it. During such concentration, one should perceive nothing else but the soul or the means of self-realisation.

५१. कम्मणा सफलं दट्ठं, तवो निज्जाइ वेयवी ।

51. Kammuna saphalam dattam, tava nijjāi veyavī.

51. Realising the retributive nature of karmas, a wise man refrains from accumulating them.

५२. जे खलु भो ! वीरा समिता सहिता सदा जया संघडदसिणो
आतोवरया, अहा-तहा लोगमुवेहमाणा, पाईण पढीणं दाहिणं
उदीणं इति सच्चसि परिचिद्धिमु, साहिस्सामो णाणं वीराणं
समिताणं सहिताणं सदा जयाणं संघडदसिणं आतोवरयाणं अहा- तहा लोगमुवेहमाणं ।

52. Je khalu bho ! Virā samitā sahītā sadā jayā saṅghadadamśino ātovarayā, ahā-tahā logamuvēhamānā, paīṇaṁ paḍiṇaṁ dāhiṇaṁ udiṇaṁ iti saccaṁsī pari-cittūṁsu, sāhissāmo, paṇaṁ virāṇaṁ samitānaṁ sahitānaṁ sadā jayānaṁ saṅghaḍadamśinaṁ ātovarayanaṁ ahā-tahā logamuvēhamāṇaṁ.

52. O Noble Ones! We shall now elucidate the Right Knowledge possessed by the ascetic who are heroic, engaged in what is Right, equipped with (knowledge, perception and asceticism), ever self-subdued, wide awake, self-disciplined, observant of Reality in its right perspective, and who are steadfast in the Truth in all directions — West, East, South and North.

५३ किमत्थि उवाघी पासगस्स ण विज्जति ?
णत्थि ।

— त्ति बेमि ।

53. Kimatthi uvādhī pāsagassa ṇa vijjati ?
Natthi.

— Tti bemi.

53. Does a seer (of Truth) ever has any extraneous imposition?
No, (he has) none.

— I say so.

CHAPTER V

THE ESSENCE IN THE WORLD

पंचमं अज्झयणं
लोगसारो

PAṂCAMĀM AJJHAYAṆAM

LOGASĀRO

SECTION I

पदमो उद्देशो

Padhamo Uddeso

काम-यव

१ आवन्ती केआवन्ती लोयसि विप्परामुसति, अट्टाए अणट्टाए वा, एएसु चेव विप्परामुसति ।

Kāmā-padam

1. Āvaṃti keāvaṃti loyaṃsi vipparāmusati, atṭhāe aṇaṭṭhāe vā, eesu ceva vipparāmusati.

Lust

1. In this world, those who kill either with motive or without it, would not spare any being out of the six systems of beings.

ANNOTATION 1. There are three motives for violence viz. sex, money and creed. Any preoccupation for the fulfilment of a purpose either for oneself or for others, or for both, is deemed motive (atṭhāe) and without a purpose is unmotivated (aṇaṭṭhāe).

"Ātapaṇṇabhaya hetuṃ atṭhā, sesaṃ aṇaṭṭhāe. " (—Cūṇṇi).

२ गुरु से कामा ।

2. Gurū se kāmā.

2. Their desires know no bounds.

ANNOTATION 2. It is not easy to circumscribe Desire. Therefore, the term guru (i. e. colossal) has been attributed to it.

३. तबो से मारस्स अतो, जबो से मारस्स अतो, तबो से दूरे ।

3. Tao se māraṣṣa aṁto, jāo se māraṣṣa aṁto, tao se dūre.

3. One who succumbs to desire is within the reach of māra (i. e. Death), and because he is within the reach of Death, he is further removed from (the Immortal (i. e. Nirvāṇa)).

ANNOTATION 3. Being impelled by the desire for happiness one indulges in sensual pleasures. This results in many physical and mental complications. Consequently he goes farther and farther away from happiness. Thus the very purpose is defeated.

४. नेव से अंतो, नेव से दूरे ।

4. Neva se aṁto, neva se dūre.

4. One who has forsaken the desires is neither within reach of Death nor outside it — he, in fact, transcends Death¹.

५. से पासति फुसियमिवा, कुसग्गे पणुन्नं णिवत्तिं वातेरितं ।
एवं बालस्स जीवियं, मंदस्स अविजाणओ ।

5. Se pāsati phusiyaṁiva, kusagge paṇunnaṁ ṇivatitaṁ vāteritaṁ.

Evaṁ bālassa jīviyaṁ, maṁdassa avijāṇao.

5. He (i. e. the wise man) looks upon life as a mere dew drop which quivers upon the tip of the kuśā grass

1. The alternate translation of this aphorism can be done as follows:

He (who renounces the external means of sensual pleasures, but does not forsake sensuality) is neither near to (asceticism in reality) nor far from (it in appearance).

(a sort of pointed grass) (destined only) to be whisked off (or blown away) by the breeze (at any moment).

The life of an unwise, imprudent and ignorant person is also as transient (as the said dew drop). (But delusion prevents him from comprehending this transient nature of life).

६ कूराणि कम्माणि वाले पकुव्वमाणे, तेण दुक्खेण मूढे विप्परिया- सुवेइ ।

6. Kūrāṇi kammāṇi bāle pakuvvamāṇe, tena dukkheṇa mūdhe vippariyāsuvei.

6. Thus an ignorant man indulging in atrocities (for the sake of fulfilment of desires) (begets grief). Benumbed by griefs, he becomes a victim of a paradox (i. e. he desires pleasures but is rewarded with sufferings).

७. मोहेण गबभं मरणाति एति ।

7. Mohena gabbhaṃ maraṇāti eti.

7. Owing to delusion, he (again and again) passes through cycles of birth and death.

८. एत्थ मोहे पुणो-पुणो ।

8. Ettha mohe puṇo-puṇo.

8. In this (unbroken chain of births and deaths), delusion keeps cropping up again and again¹.

९. ससयं परिजाणतो, संसारे परिण्णाते भवति,
ससयं अपरिजाणतो, संसारे अपरिण्णाते भवति ।

9. Saṁsayam pari jānato, saṁsāre parinṇāte bhavati,
Saṁsayam aparī jānato, saṁsāre aparī ṇṇāte bhavati.

1. Cf. 3/83.

9. One, who becomes inquisitive, discovers (the true nature of) the phenomenon of transmigration, i.e. knows the knowable and relinquishes the reprehensible.

One who is not inquisitive cannot discover (the true nature) of the phenomenon of transmigration.

ANNOTATION 9. Inquisitiveness is the starting point of philosophy. In the present sūtra, this very truth has been expounded. One who does not speculate — does not become inquisitive — cannot realise the Truth. Even Gautama, the chief disciple of Bhagavān Mahāvīra, often had queries, and he used to get the solution by inquiring of Bhagavān Mahāvīra.

"Samśayātmaṁ vinaśyati (i.e. a person smitten by equivocation meets with doom.) — In this famous expression the word saṁśaya has been taken to mean saṁdeha (i.e. equivocation). The same truth has also been expressed in the aphorism 5/73 of the present text, viz. "A person afflicted with incertitude cannot attain saṁādhi (i.e. absolute equipoise).

"Nā saṁśayamanāruhya naro bhadrāṇi paśyati".

"(i.e. unless one resorts to inquisitiveness, one cannot attain beatitude). This half couplet echoes the gist of the present aphorism.

The word saṁsāra signifies the phenomenon of birth and death (or transmigration). Unless one wonders whether it leads to bliss or misery, there will be no end to it. To be inquisitive about it is equivalent to uprooting it.

१०. जे छेए से सागारियं न सेवए ।

10. Je chee se sāgāriyam̐ na sevae.

10. One who is wise (i.e. anticipates the repercussions of delusion) does not indulge in sex.

११. कटु एवं अविज्ञानयो, बितिया मंदस्स बालया ।

11. Kattu evaṃ avijñāno, bitiyā maṇḍassa bālayā.

11. (An unwise one who indulges in sex), but (on questioning denies it saying), "I do not know", is doubly stupid.

१२. लद्धा हुरत्था पडिलेहाए अगमित्ता आणविज्जा अणसेवणयाए
त्ति बेमि ।

12. Laddhā huratthā padilehāe āgamittā āṇavijjā aṇāsev-anayāe, tti bemi.

12. After having thoroughly analysed the available sensual pleasures, the (preceptor) should admonish his disciple to refrain from indulging in them — i. e. he should expose their adverse consequences to him. I say so.

१३. पासह एगे रुवेसु गिद्धे परिणिज्जमाणे ।

13. Pāsaha ege rūvesu giddhe parinijjamāṇe.

13. Behold! Those who are attached to the body are being enamoured of (sensuality).

१४. एत्थ फासे पुणो-पुणो ।

14. Etthā phāse puṇo-puṇo

14. (Swept away) by this (current), they suffer the misery over and over again.

१५. आवती केआवती लोयसि आरंभजीवी, एसु चेव आरंभजीवी ।

15. Āvamti keāvamti loyaṃsi āraṃbhajīvī, eesu ceva āraṃbhajīvī.

15. In this world, all those who indulge in violence¹ for survival, do so (because of attachment) to these (sensual pleasures).

1. The word āraṃbha may be interpreted in two ways:
(1) causing violence, and (2) activity.

१६. एत्थ वि बाले परिपच्चमाणे रमति पावेहिं कम्मेहिं, 'असरणे सरणं'ति मण्णमाणे ।

16. Ettha vi bāle paripaccamāṇe ramati pāvehiṃ kammehiṃ, 'asaraṇe saraṇaṃ'ti maṇṇamaṇe.

16. An ignorant one inspite of his ascetic life, writhing in unsatiated sexual desires, wallows in sinful activities, mistaking insecurity to be security.

१७. इहमेगेसि एगचरिया भवति—से बहुकोहे बहुमाणे बहुमाए बहुलोहे बहुरए बहूनडे बहुसडे बहुसकप्पे, आसवसक्की पलिउच्छन्ने, उट्ठियवायं पघयमाणे "मा मे केइ अदवखू" अण्णाण-पमाय-दोसिण, सयय मूढे धम्मं नाभिजाणइ ।

17. Ihamegesim egacariyā bhavati—se bahukohe bahu-māṇe bahumāe bahulohe bahurae bahunade bahusaḍhe bahusaṃkappe āsava-sakkī paliucchanne, uṭṭhiyavāyaṃ pavaya-māṇe "Mā me kei adakkhu" añṇāṇa-pamāya-dosa-ṇaṃ, sayayaṃ muḍhe dhammaṃ nābhijāṇai.

17. One leading a solitary ascetic life, being constantly stupefied by delusion¹ and infatuation, (despite his solitariness), does not know the Religion, because he is very wrathful, very conceited, very deceitful, very greedy and deeply attached; is changing faces like an actor, indulging in various kinds of rogueries, and much capricious; such a person adheres to the causes of the influx of karma (such as violence) and consequently is corrupted² by the karma particles, and is

1. The term Añṇāṇe (Ajñāna) is indicative of the belief-deluding (darśana mohanīya) karma and pramāda that of conduct-deluding (chāritra mohanīya) karma.

2. Paliucchanne: The author of the Cūṛṇi has interpreted the term Palīya as Pralīna; as he writes.

"Pralīnamucyate karma bhṛśaṃ līnaṃ yadātmani."

"The author of the Vṛtti, however, translates it as Palita.

bragging, "We have arisen (to act religiously)" and (is indulging in sinful activities surreptitiously with such an apprehension) as "Let no one see me".

१८. अट्टा पया माणव ! कम्मकोविया जे अणुवरया, अविज्जाए पलिमोक्खमाहु, अवट्ट अणुपरियट्टति ।

— त्ति बेमि ।

18. Attā payā māṇava ! kammakoviyaṃ je anuvarayā, avijjhē palimokkhamāhu, avattam anupariyaṭṭanti.

— Tti bemi.

18. O Mankind! All those who are writhing in unsatiated sensuality, who are adept in (worldly) activities, who have not ceased from (the cause of the influx of karma) and who profess salvation through avidyā (i. e. absence of Right Perception), keep rotating in the vortex of the saṃsāra.

— I say so.

ANNOTATION 18. The ultimate emancipation can be attained only through: Right Perception and Right Conduct (asceticism).

"Āhaṃsu vījācaraṇam pamokkham" (— Sīyagāḍo, 1/12/11).

On the other hand, avidyā (i. e. deluded perception) can never lead one to emancipation. Those preceptors, who prescribe avidyā as a means of emancipation, are swept away by the current of saṃsāra (birth-death-cycles), because they, in fact, prescribe the wrong path as the right one to emancipation.

SECTION II

बीओ उद्देशो

Bio Uddeso

अप्पमादमग्ग-पदं

१९. आवती केआवती लोयसि अणारंभजीवी, एतेसु चैव मणारभ-जीवी ।

Appamādamagga-padam

19. Āvaṃti keāvaṃti loyaṃsi aṇāraṃbhajīvī, etesu ceva maṇāraṃbhajīvī.

The Path of Vigilance

19. All those, in this world, who lead a non-violent way of life, (are able to) do so only (because they are completely unattached) to these (sensual pleasures).

२०. एत्थोवरए तं भोसमाणे 'अय सघी' ति अदक्खु ।

20. Etthovarae taṃ jhosamāṇe 'ayaṃ saṃdhi' ti adakkhu.

20. The muni, initiated in this (order of the Arhats), by disciplining his body to be motionless, and identifying the entry (or the influx) of the karma particles (i. e. the āśrava), perceives it (in meditation in order to remain vigilant).

२१ जे इमस्स विग्गहस्स अय खणेंति मन्नेसी ।

21. Je imassa viggahassa ayaṃ khanetti manneṣī.

21. (At the) present moment, this is the state of the (person) - thus one who discovers (i. e. mentally perceives in meditation the state of the body every moment), (remains ever vigilant).

ANNOTATIONS 20-21. The Sādhana propounded by Bhagavān Mahāvīra essentially consists in 'remaining vigilant moment after moment'. Out of the various techniques prescribed for remaining vigilant, the prime one is to perceive in meditation with the mind's eye the phenomena and sensations taking place in one's own body. A sādhaka who concentrates his perception on the sensations of pain and pleasure ever present in the gross body, — i. e. one who discovers the state of the body every moment — remains vigilant.

This meditational technique of concentration of perception of the body leads one to become introvert. Thus the gross body serves as a medium of turning the outwardly directed flow of consciousness inward.

The two subtle bodies — the taijas (i. e. the electrical body) and karma-body — exist in the interior of the gross one and the soul is further in the interior of these two. One who practises the concentration of the perception of the phenomena and sensations of one's gross body, gradually succeeds in perceiving the subtle bodies. By further practice of this technique of meditation and training the mind for such perception, one begins to realize the current of consciousness flowing in the gross body. As the sādhaka proceeds progressively from perception of the gross to that of the subtle, the intensity of his vigilance increases.

२२ एस मग्गे आरिएहिं पवेदिते ।

22. Esa magge āriehim pavedite.

22. This Path (of vigilance) has been shown by the Tīrthāṅkaras.

२३. उट्ठिए नो पमायए ।

23. Uṭṭhie no pamāyae.

23. One should not cease to be vigilant after having risen up (for the sādhana of vigilance).

२४. जाणित्तु दुक्खं पत्तेयं सायं ।

24. Jānittu dukkhaṃ patteyaṃ sāyaṃ

24. Happiness and unhappiness are (purely individual experiences (— knowing this fact one should not cease to be vigilant).

२५. पुढो छंदा इह माणवा, पुढो दुक्खं पवेदितं ।

25. Puḍho chaṇḍa iha māṇavā, puḍho dukkhaṃ paveditaṃ.

25. People in this world have diverse desires. Their miseries are also diverse.

२६ से अविहिंसमाणे अणवयमाणे, पुट्ठो फासे विप्पणोल्लए ।

26. Se avihimsamāṇe aṇavayamāṇe, putṭho phāse vippanollae.

26. One (who knows that experience of pleasure and pain is purely individual) should not indulge in violence (or) deny (the existence of micro-organisms)¹. One should forbear the hardships that befall him (in the path of this sādhana) with equipoise.

२७ एस समिया-परियाए वियाहिते ।

27. Esa samiyā-pariyāe viyāhite.

27. He (i. e. = sādhaka who observes non-violence and forbearance) is described as one who has perfectly comprehended² the Truth³.

1. Vide 1/38, 39, 66.

2. The author of the Vṛtti interprets the term "samiyā pariyāye" in two ways:

(a) One who practises the right form of asceticism.

(b) One who practises the tranquil form of asceticism.

3. The alternate translation of this aphorism may be done like this: He (i. e. a sādhaka who observes non-violence and forbearance) is described as one who has fully attained the Equanimity.

२८ जे असत्ता पावेहि कम्महेहि, उदाहु ते आयंका फुसति ।
इति उदाहु बीरे "ते फासे पुट्ठो हियासए" ।

28. Je asattā pāvehiṃ kammehiṃ, udāhu te āyaṃkā phu-santi.

Iti udāhu vīre "te phāse puttḥo hiyāsae".

28. Even such munis as are not addicted to vices may at times get afflicted with fatal diseases. In this regard, Bhagavān Mahāvīra instructed his disciples to bear those fatal diseases, if they were afflicted by them.

२९ से पुब्ब पेय पच्छा पेय भेउर-धम्म, विद्धंसण-धम्म, अधुव, अणितिय, असासय, चयावचइय, विपरिणाम-धम्म, पासह एय
रूव ।

29. Se puṇṇaṃ peyaṃ pacchā peyaṃ bheura-dhammaṃ, viddhaṃsana-dhammaṃ, adhuvaṃ, aṇitīyaṃ, asāsayāṃ, caṇṇavacariyaṃ, viparināma-dhammaṃ, pāsaha eyaṃ rūvaṃ.

29. Perceive this body. Sooner or later a day will come when it will have to be given up. Fragility and decay characterise it. It is transient, mortal and mutable. Anabolism and catabolism take place in it. It passes through different stages (of development and deterioration).

ANNOTATIONS 28, 29. Once upon a time some munis went to Bhagavān Mahāvīra and said rather inquisitively, "O Bhagavān Why is it that even temperate and continent ascetics are susceptible to disease?"

The Bhagavān said, "O Noble Ones! You should try to know the root causes of both continence and disease."

The disciples asked, "What are they, O Bhagavān?"

"The cause of continence is the dissolution of "cārītra-moha-karma" (i. e. the karma, which pollutes Right Conduct through delusion), and that of disease is the rise of "vedanīya karma" (i. e. the karma which brings pain in its wake). Thus, the causes of the two are different. Therefore, a conitnent sādhaka may suffer from some diseases, even a kevali (omniscient one, i. e. one who has reached the pinnacle of continence) can be so afflicted."

"O Venerable One! What should one do when a disease rears up its ugly head?"

"One should bear it with fortitude."

In this connection, Bhagavan Mahāvira exhorted them to bear in mind the sūtra which assists one in overcoming such difficulties. This is contained in the aphorism 29.

Balanced diet would build up the body, whereas unbalanced one would result in its decay.

Interpreted in a different way, this means that up to the age of forty, the body develops; later on decay sets in.

३० संधि समुपेहमाणस्स एगायतण-रयस्स इह विप्पमुक्कस्स, णत्थि मग्गे विरयस्स त्ति वेमि ।

30. Saṁdhiṁ samuppehamāṇassa egāyatana-rayassa iha vippamukkassa, natthi magge virayassa tti bemi.

30. One who perceives the entry (of the karma particles), who is centred in (the state of perfect equanimity), who is free from the worldly attachment to (the body etc.), and who has ceased from violence, is not subject to the path of (misery). I say so.

ANNOTATION 30. Birth, aging, disease and death — this quartet forms a path leading to misery. One who has ceased from violence blocks it.

परिगृह-पदं

३१ आवती केआवती लोगसि परिगृहावती—से अप्प वा, बहु वा, अणु वा, थूल वा, चित्तमत वा, अचित्तमत वा, एतेसु चैव परिगृहावती ।

Pariggaha-padam

31. Āvanti keāvanti logamsi pariggahāvanti — se appaṁ vā, bahuṁ vā, aṇuṁ vā, thūlaṁ vā cittaṁ vā, acittaṁ vā, etesu ceva pariggahāvanti.

Acquisitiveness

31. All those, in this world, who are prone to possession of things, be they few or many, subtle or gross, sentient or insentient, try to acquire and accumulate them. They are prone to possession (on account of their attachment to) these (worldly objects).

३२ एतदेवेनेमि महद्भयं भवति लोगवित्तं न न उवेहाए ।

32. . Etadevegesim mahabbhayaṃ bhavati, logavittam ca naṃ uvehāe.

32. This very acquisitiveness spells disaster for those who are attached to them. See the state of the world!

ANNOTATION 32. Just as men of the world are always worried about the safety of their possessions, so does sādhaka who is constantly attached to worldly objects.

३३ एए संगे अविजाणतो ।

33. Ee saṅge aviṇāto.

33. One who is ignorant of the attachments produced by possession (invites great agonies).

३४ से सुपडिबुद्धं सुवणीयं ति णच्चा, पुरिसा ! परमचक्खू !
विपरक्कमा ।

34. Se supadibuddhaṃ sūvaṇīyaṃ ti naṇṇā, purisā! paramcakkhū! viparakkamā.

34. (That possessiveness is the cause of great agonies) is well-observed and well-exemplified by the seers (possessed of extra-sensory perception). Therefore, O Argus-eyed one! Exert yourself (to keep possessiveness in check).

३५ एतेसु चेव बभञ्चेर ति वेमि ।

35. Etesu ceva bambhaceram ti bemi.

35. Only those who keep possessiveness in check, are self-disciplined. So do I say.

ANNOTATION 35. The word brahmacarya can be interpreted in three ways-

- (a) Control of sex organs,
- (b) Living in a religious order, and
- (c) Self-discipline.

Body is also a kind of possession. One who is attached to the body cannot control his sex organs.

One who is attached to the body and the worldly objects can neither live in a religious order nor can he follow the rules of ascetic life including non-violence.

All the three meanings stated above are applicable here, but the third meaning is more relevant.

३६. से सुयं च मे अज्जत्थियं च मे, "बन्ध-पमोक्खो तुज्झ अज्जत्थेव" ।

36. Se suyaṃ ca me ajjhatthiyaṃ ca me, "baṇḍha-pamo kkho tujjha ajjhattheva".

36. I have heard and realized that bondage and salvation are both within your Self.

३७. एत्थ विरते अणगारे, दीहरायं तितिक्खए ।

पमत्ते बहिया पास, अप्पमत्तो परिव्वए ।

37. Ettha virate aṇagāre, diharāyaṃ titikkhae Pamatte bahiya pāsa, appamatto parivvāe.

37. Having forsaken acquisitiveness, a monk should all his life forbear the hardships, (attendant upon non-possession).

See! Those who are stupefied, are far away from asceticism. Therefore, lead a life of self-discipline with vigilance.

३८ एय मोणं सम्म अणुवासिज्जासि ।

—त्ति वेमि ।

38. Eyaṃ monaṃ sammāṃ aṇuvāsijjāsi.

— Tti bemi.

38. Practise aright this knowledge (which is the embodiment of cessation from violence and possessiveness).

— I say so.

SECTION III

तइओ उद्देशो

Tao Uddeso

अपरिगह-कामनिव्वेयण-पदं

३९ आवतो केआवती लोयसि अपरिगहवावती, एसु चैव अपरिग-हवावती ।

Apariggaha-kāmanivvevaṇa-padam

39. Āvaṃti keāvaṃti loyaṃsi apariggahāvaṃti, eesu ceva apariggahāvaṃti.

Non-acquisitiveness and Detachment from Sensual Pleasures

32. All those, in this world, who are free from acquisitiveness, are so only because they do not have (attachment to) these (worldly objects nor do they accumulate them).

४०. सोच्चा वई मेहावी, पंडियाणं णिसामिया ।

समियाए धम्मे, अरिहं पवेदिते ।

40. Soccā vai mehāvī, paṇḍiyanāṃ ṇisāmiyā.
Samiyāe dhamme, āriehiṃ pavedite

40. "The Tīrthaṅkaras have asserted (that) dharma (i. e. righteousness) subsists in equanimity." — This sermon of the preceptors should be heard and absorbed by the wise sādhaka.

४१. जहेत्थ मए सघी झोसिए, एवमण्णत्थ सघी दुज्झोसिए भवति, तम्हा वेमि—णो णिहेज्ज वीरियं ।

41. Jahettha mae saṁdhi jhosie. evamaṇṇattha saṁdhi dujjhosie bhavati, tamhā bema — no ñiherja vīriyam.
41. (Addressing a religious assembly, Bhagavān Mahāvīra proclaimed —) "The harmonization in the practice of Right Knowledge, Right Perception and Right Conduct brought about by me in my sādhana, is rare to find elsewhere. That is why, I assert that (you should attain the integration of the triad, and, not let your powers lie dormant."

ANNOTATION 41. In the days of Bhagavān Mahāvīra, different philosophers emphasised separately one of the three paths viz; Knowledge, Devotion and Action for the attainment of salvation.

According to Bhagavān Mahāvīra, merely one path was inadequate for the attainment of salvation. On the contrary, a harmonious blending of the three was essential for it. He had practised severe austerities in conjunction with the pursuit of knowledge and perception during the period of sādhana, because austerities are an integral part of conduct. Buddha, however, discarded (mortifying) penances. This might have been discussed among the disciples of Bhagavān Mahāvīra. It could well be that some of his pupils also questioned the need of those austerities. It looks as though under those circumstances Bhagavān Mahāvīra laid down this proposition.

Bhagavān Mahāvīra said that he had practised severe austerities far away from the population and that he had experienced that it was not in vain, but was very useful in the sādhana. He further said, "I tell you my own personal experience. Use your energy as much as you can in practising austerities together with the pursuit of Knowledge and Perception."

- ૪૨ જે પુવ્વદુર્ગ, જો પચ્છા-ગિર્વાઈ ।
 જે પુવ્વદુર્ગ, પચ્છા-ગિર્વાઈ ।
 જે જો પુવ્વદુર્ગ, જો પચ્છા-ગિર્વાઈ ।

42. Je puvvutthāī, ño pacchā-ñivāī.
 Je puvvutthāī, pacchā-ñivāī.
 Je ño puvvutthāī, ño pacchā-ñivāī.

42. Some persons rise up and continue awakened life-long — they never fall down.

Some persons do rise up, but fall down afterwards.
 Some persons neither rise up at all nor fall down afterwards.

ANNOTATION 42. There are two possible behavioural patterns of those who have renounced the world. Some sādhakas keep up the same zealous leonine spirit with which they renounce, while others, although renouncing with leonine spirit, practise it with a craven cowardly one.

For example, Dhanya and Śālibhadra were initiated by Bhagavān Mahāvira. They passed their ascetic life in spiritual studies, meditation and practising austerities, and finally attained death through 'fast unto death' together with the observance of perfect equanimity. This is an example of the person rising up and remaining awakened life-long.

On the other hand, example of the second category is found in the lives of Puṇḍarika and Kuṇḍarika. They were brothers. Kuṇḍarika got initiated into ascetic life. Later on, when he became ill, king Puṇḍarika arranged for his medical treatment. Kuṇḍarika recovered, but at the same time, he became lax in the observance of the monastic conduct. He abandoned the ascetic life and returned to the worldly life. This is an illustration of the person rising up and then falling down.

The third category is that of a person who never renounces the worldly life.

४३. सेवि तारिसए सिया, जे परिणाय लोगमनुस्सिओ ।

43. Sevi tārissae siyā, je pariṇāya logamaṇussio.

43. A monk who, after renouncing (the worldly life), — again takes recourse to it, is as good (as a person leading the worldly life).

४४. एयं गियाय मुणिणा पवेदितं—इह आणाकली पंडिह अणिहे,
पुव्वावररायं जयमाणे, सया सीलं सपेहाए,
मुणिया भवे अकामे अहंसे ।

44. Eyaṃ nīyāya muṇinā paveditaṃ — Iha āṇākāmkhī paṇḍie aṇihe, puṇṇāvararāyaṃ jayamaṇe, sayā sīlaṃ saṃpehāe, sūriyā bhava akāme ahaṃse.

44. Knowing these (i. e. the causes of rising up and falling down from the sādhana), the Bhagavān enjoined,
"A wise muni should remain devoted to the Instruction, and not get attached (to the mundane possessions), he should keep himself occupied with the study of sacred books, and meditation in the first and the last quarters of the night, he should abide by the monastic ethics, and get himself emancipated from lust and wrath, after listening intently to (the Truth, which is the essence in the world).

ANNOTATION 44. In the present aphorism, seven steps leading to steadiness in ascetic life have been propounded:

I. Devotion to the Instruction The word Ājñā (Instruction) can be interpreted in two ways — (a) Scriptural Knowledge, and (b) Sermons.

II. Cessation from attachment.

III. Diligent efforts in the first and the last quarters of night. There are two traditions prevalent about the way in which a night should be passed —

(a) To sleep in the third quarter of night remaining awake in the remaining three;

(b) To remain awake in the first and the last quarters of the night and to sleep in the intermediate two quarters.

By jayamaṇe (yatamānaḥ) is meant "to be diligent by remaining vigilant through concentration on studies and meditation while awake".

IV. Practice of ethical code: By śīla is meant — "following the five great vows; subjugation of the senses; staidness of mind, body and speech; conquest of passions — anger, conceit, deceit, and greed". The constant observance of śīla is śīla-samprehā (śīla - sampreksā) (i. e. the practice of the ethical code).

V. Listening to and comprehending the Truth i. e. Knowledge, Perception and Self-discipline which is the essence in the world.

VI. Forsaking desire.

VII. Forswearing anger.

४५. इमेणं चेव जुज्झाहि, किं ते जुज्जेणं बज्जओ ?

45. Imeṇaṁ ceva jujjhāhi, kiṁ te jujjheṇa bajjhao ?

45. Battle with this (enemy i. e., the karma body); what will accrue from warring with others ?

४६. जुद्धारिहं खलु दुल्लहं ।

46. Juddhārihaṁ khalu dullahaṁ

46. (The enemy) which is to be fought with is difficult to find.

ANNOTATIONS 45-46. Once upon a time, some munis approached Bhagavān Mahāvīra and said, "O Bhagavān! You had admonished us to utilise as much spiritual energy as is possible in attaining knowledge and perception, and in the observance of various austerities, and also you had warned us against laxity in our efforts. Accordingly, we made all possible efforts to sheer off the complexes born out of karma, but still we have not succeeded in completely obliterating them. We request you to give us some more guidance."

Knowing their difficulty, the Bhagavān said, "Would you be able to exert yourself more?"

Humbly answered the disciples, "We are capable of exerting ourselves to any extent. In common parlance, we can crack the hardest nut; and in philosophical terms, we can even abandon the body."

The Venerable One said, "The most significant way to tone down the karma-saṃskāras is the battle against the karma body which is constantly tormenting you through various kinds of impulses. Fight with the karma body. Do not let it overwhelm you. And also resist this physical body which yearns for sensual pleasures by subduing the senses and the mind."

The Bhagavān thus exhorted the disciples to fight an internal battle. Explaining the strategy of the battle in question, the Bhagavān further said, "Continue battling along before the old age sets in, diseases attack and the senses become numb. Youth is the right time for sounding the bugle for it. The karma-saṃskāra as a matter of fact, is the real enemy.

४७ जहेत्य कुसलेर्हि परिण्णा-विवेगे भासिए ।

47. Jahettha kusalehūṃ parinnā-vivege bhāsīe.

47. (To win) this (internal battle), Bhagavān Mahāvīra prescribed discernment and forswearing (as weapons).

ANNOTATION 47. Battling within the Self is the same as battling against the karma body and annihilating it. There are two primary weapons used in this battle viz. discernment and forswearing i. e. first comprehend and then discard.

Forswearing is of many kinds, e.g. forswearing of possession i. e. realization of separateness of the Self from possessions such as money, family etc.

Forswearing of the body i. e. realization of separateness of the Self from the body.

Forswearing of wrong notions i. e. realization of non-acquisitiveness etc.,

Forswearing of the karma-body i. e. realization of separateness of the Self from the karma-body.

४८ चुए हु वाले गग्गाइसु रज्जइ ।

48. Cūe hu bāle gabbhāisu rajjaḥ.

48. A sādhaka who (after having risen up) falls down, gets entangled in the (cycle¹ of miseries) emanating from conception in womb etc.

४९. अस्मिं चैयं पव्वुच्चति, रूवंसि वा छणंसि वा ।

49. Assim ceyam pavvuccati, rūvaṃsi vā chaṇaṃsi vā.

49. Here (i.e. in the Discipline of the Arhat), it has been laid down emphatically that a sādhaka who wallows in sensual objects and violence in spite of having risen up, falls down).

ANNOTATION 49. In this sūtra, the term rūva (rūpa) denotes perceivable i.e. sensual objects and body; and the word chaṇa (kṣaṇa) stands for 'violence' and other evils such as mendacity, larceny, incontinence and possessiveness.

५०. से हु एगे सविद्धपाहे मुणी, अण्णहा लोगमुवेहमाणे ।

50. Se hu ege saṃviddhapahe muṇi, aṇṇahā logamuvehamāṇe.

50. Only that muṇi remains steady in his mission who perceives worlds (of sensual objects and violence) in a different perspective (i.e. other than that of the laymen).

ANNOTATION 50. For one who is addicted to sensual objects and violence, the forms of the sensual objects are the be-all and the end-all of life and violence is the panacea of all ills. But one whose attitude is changed does not remain attached to the sensual objects and violence. He, then, takes worldly objects for transitory things, and considers them to have painful consequences, and violence as the root cause of all problems. He realizes that all problems and miseries in this world (are engendered mainly by violence).

1. Cf. 3/83.

५१. इति कम्मं परिणाय, सव्वसो से ण हिंसति । संजमति णो पगम्भति ।

51. Iti kammañ parināya, savaṃso se ña hiṃsati. Sañ-jamati ño pagambhati.

51. Having thus known the true nature and causes of karma, the muni does not cause violence to anyone. He keeps (his senses) under complete restraint and does not let (them) become wanton.

५२. उवेहमाणो पत्तेयं साय ।

52. Uvehamāno patteyaṃ sāyaṃ.

52. Considering that happiness is individually experienced (or every living being is desirous of happiness), one should not perpetrate violence.

५३. वण्णाएसी णारमे कंचणं सव्वलोए ।

53. Vannāesi nārabhe kañcaṇaṃ savvaloe.

53. A muni should not do anything anywhere, out of the desire for fame¹.

५४. एगप्पमुहे विदिसप्पङ्गणे, निव्विन्नचारी अरए पयासु ।

54. Egappamuhe vidisappaṅge, nivvinnacārī arae payāsu.

54. A muni should (advance) in the direction of his goal; he should transcend all the wrong directions (i. e. what is opposite to the way of knowledge i. e. self-

1. The contextual meanings of the term 'varṇa' are (a) fame and (b) form. In the context of form, the present sūtra can be translated thus: A muni should not indulge in any such action as may be conducive to the augmentation of self-beautification (i. e. he should not use any cosmetic etc. for this purpose).

The alternate translation of this aphorism can be done thus. A muni should not do anything anywhere with the desire to enjoy sense-objects.

realization, self-perception, and self-discipline); he should not get enamoured of women.

ANNOTATION 54. Only a muni who keeps his eyes fixed on the Aim, can circumvent all the barriers.

The pledges for transcending the antagonizing forces are as follows

"I give up ignorance; I adhere to knowledge (i. e. self-knowledge).

"I give up false belief; I adhere to the right belief. "

"I give up incontinence; I embrace self-discipline. "

Both attachment and sensuality lead one astray. One who transcends the antagonizing forces becomes free from this estrangement.

५५. ते वसुमं सव्व-समन्नागय-पण्णाणेण अप्पाणेणं अकरणिज्ज पावं कम्म ।

55. Se vasumam savva-samannāgaya-paṇṇāṇeṇaṃ appā-neṇaṃ akaraṇijjaṃ pāvaṃ kammaṃ.

55. For a sādhaka who is possessed of the wealth (of enlightenment) any sinful action (such as violence and self-indulgence) is to be abhorred by conscience, (guided) by intellect, fully illumined with Truth¹.

५६ त णो अन्नेसि ।

56. Taṃ ṇo annesiṃ.

56. (Therefore), the sādhaka should not pursue it (i. e. sinful action).

५७. जं सम्म ति पासहा, त मोण ति पासहा ।

जं मोण ति पासहा, त सम्म ति पासहा ।

57. Jaṃ sammam ti pāsahā, taṃ moṇam ti pāsahā;
Jaṃ moṇam ti pāsahā, taṃ sammam ti pāsahā.

1. Cf. 1/174.

57. See! What is right (conduct) is (right) knowledge¹ and what is (right) knowledge is right (conduct).

ANNOTATION 57. From the pragmatic point of view, knowledge and conduct are distinct from each other. But from the point of view of ultimate truth, they are not poles apart. The culmination of Right Knowledge and Spiritual Experience is Right Conduct (i. e. self-discipline or asceticism). The aim of the aphorism is to underline the fact that self-discipline is the sum and substance of Right Knowledge. How can knowledge which is not conducive to self-discipline remain Right and Proper unto the last? The purport of the author here is to elucidate the unity of Right Knowledge and Right Conduct. According to him, Right Knowledge implies existence of Right Conduct, and vice-versa. We can infer the existence of one from the other.

Another Sanskrit equivalent of the word saṃma can be 'sāmya' (besides samyak). This interpretation which means equanimity is very relevant here. If we choose this interpretation the present sūtra can be translated thus:

See! What is equanimity is asceticism; and what is asceticism is equanimity.

५८ ण इमं सक्क सिद्धिलेहिं अहिज्जमाणेहिं गुणासाएहिं वंसमायारेहिं
पमत्तेहिं गारमावसत्तेहिं ।

58. Na imaṃ sakkam siḍḍhilehuṃ addijjamāṇehiṃ guṇāsā-ehuṃ vaṃkasamāyārehiṃ pamatthehuṃ gāramāvasat-tehiṃ.

58. The practice of this (knowledge) is not feasible for them who are unsteady, drenched in affection, lustful, of deceitful conduct, stupefied (with passions), and householders.

५९. मुण्णि मोणं समायाए, धुणे कम्म-सत्तीरमं ।

59. Muṇi moṇaṃ samāyāe, dhūṇe kamma-sarīragam.

1. Cf. 2/103.

59. After gaining knowledge¹, the muni should shake to its root his karma-body (to cast off his karma).

६०. पतं लूहं सेवन्ति, वीरा समत्तदंसिणो ।

60. Paṁtaṁ lūhaṁ sevanti, vīrā samattadaṁsiṇo.

60. The courageous one practising equanimity should take tasteless and coarse food.

६१. एस ओहंतरे मुणी, तिण्णे मुत्ते विरए वियाहिए ।

— त्ति बेमि ।

61. Esa ohaṁtare muṇī, tiṇṇe mutte viraē viyāhie.

— Tti bemi

61. Such a muni who has crossed the ocean of life and death is called successful, liberated, and devoid of passions.

— I say so.

1. See, 2/103.

SECTION IV

चउत्थो उद्देशो

Cauttho Uddeso

अवियत्तस्स एगल्लविहार-पदं

६२ गामाणुगाम दूइज्जमाणस्स दुज्जात दुप्परक्कत भवति अवियत्तस्स
भिक्षुणो ।

Aviyattassa egallavihāra-padam

62. Gāmāṇugāmaṃ dūjjamāṇassa dujjātaṃ dupparakkamtaṃ bhavati aviyattassa bhikkhuṇo.

Practice of Asceticism in Solitariness by an Immature Ascetic

62. A monk who, in an immature state, moves about from village to village (in solitariness), gets overwhelmed by hardships. (By doing so,) he embarks upon undesirable adventure.

ANNOTATION 62. One of the disciples asked the preceptor. "O Preceptor! What does the word avyakta (i. e. immature) connote?"

The preceptor replied, "Some persons are immature both in knowledge and age; some persons are immature in knowledge but mature in age; Some persons are mature in knowledge and immature in age; and some persons are mature both in knowledge and age."

Those who are above the age of sixteen are mature with respect to age, and those who have learned upto the third part (viz. Acāra-vaś '4) of the Ninth Book of the Fourteen Pūrvas, are mature with respect to knowledge. The muni who is mature both in knowledge and age can move about on purpose practising asceticism in solitariness.

६३. वयसा वि एगे बुद्ध्या कुप्यन्ति माणवा ।

63. Vayasā vi ege buiyā kuppamti māṇavā.

63. (Immature) persons are easily susceptible to anger produced by (the merest adverse) remarks.

ANNOTATION 63. Once upon a time, an immature ascetic was going somewhere. Seeing him, someone said to another person, "Who is this fellow?"

The other person remarked, rather disparagingly, "Why, of course, the śūdra (i. e. the lowly born person).

The immature sādhū on hearing this got irate.

An immature person may be roused to temper by the merest touch. Once a porter carrying luggage on his head bumped into an immature monk. The latter got furious and said, "Are you blind? Can't you see properly?"

The porter also got infuriated and they came to blows.

There was another immature sādhū, who acted negligently. The teacher gave him a bit of his mind, whereupon he asked "What on earth have I done? Why did you insult me in the presence of all these sādhūs? Do not other sādhūs ever indulge in such negligent behaviour?" And he went on grumbling. He could not notice his own negligence due to his intense wrath.

Such immature persons cannot develop sādhana by moving about solitarily.

६४. उन्नयमाणे य नरे, महता मोहेण मुञ्जति ।

64. Unnayamāṇe ya nare, mahatā mohēṇa muñjati.

64. An immature one becomes stupefied with intense delusion on being praised.

६५. संवाहा बहवे भुज्जो-भुज्जो दुरतिककमा अजाणतो अपासतो ।

65. Saṃbāhā bahave bhujjo-bhujjo duratikkamā ajāṇato apāsato.

65. One who lacks in Knowledge and Perception, (i. e. who is immature) cannot cross over numerous hurdles repeatedly coming in his way.

ANNOTATION 65. Only he can solve all problems who is mature enough to know how to forbear hardships and what good accrues from forbearing them.

६६. एयं ते मा होउ ।

66. Eyaṁ te mā hou.

66. (O Ascetic)! The thought (of moving about in solitariness in an immature stage) should not even cross your mind.

६७. एय कुसलस्स दंसणं ।

67. Eyaṁ kusalassa daṁsaṇaṁ.

67. This is the view of Bhagavān Mahāvīra (i. e. these demerits in the practice of asceticism in solitariness by an immature sādhaka have been envisaged by him).

६८. तद्विद्दीए तम्मोत्तीए तप्पुरक्कारे तस्सण्णी तन्निबेसणे ।

68. Taddiṭṭhīe tammottīe tappurakkāre tassañṇī tanni-vesaṇe

68. Fixing his mind on it (i. e. Mahāvīra's¹ view), concentrating on it, giving it prominence, becoming completely absorbed in its memory, and throwing himself heart and soul in its (practice), one should follow it.

1. The author of the Cūṛṇi explains aphorism 68 in the context of 'preceptor' and aphorism 69 in that of 'manner of moving' (īryā), whereas the author of the Vṛtti explains them both in the former context, except the phrase "Pās-īya pāṇe gacchejjā." However, both the commentators agree that aphorism 69 is the source of the 3rd chapter called (īryā of the Āyāra-cūlā). The author of the Cūṛṇi has mentioned in the preface of Āyāra-cūlā that the chapter entitled īryā has been developed from aphorisms 62, 68, 69, 70 of the present chapter. On the basis of this

हरिया-पदं

६६. जयविहारी चित्तनिवाती पथनिज्जाती पलीवाहरे, पासिय
पाणे गच्छेज्जा ।

Iriyā-padam

69. Jayānīhārī cittaṇīvātī paṁthanijjhātī palīvāhare,
pāsīya paṇe gacchejjā.

Manner of Moving (for an Ascetic)

69. A muni, when moving about, should carefully concentrate his mind on his movements, and fix his eyes on the path (he is treading). On noticing living beings (insects, creatures), he should draw back his legs, and move on observing and carefully avoiding the living beings coming across his path.

७०. से अभिक्कममाणे पडिक्कममाणे संकुचेमाणे पसारमाणे
विणियट्टमाणे सपलमज्जमाणे ।

70. Se abhikkamamāṇe paḍikkamamāṇe saṁkucemāṇe
paśāremāṇe vīṇiyattamāṇe saṁpalamajjamāṇe.

70. Those living beings¹ may either be coming towards him or going away, contracting or expanding (their limbs) or lying still or crawling in dust.

कम्मणो बंध-विशेष-पदं

७१. एगया गुणसमियस्स रीयतो कायसफासमणुचिण्णा एगतिया पाणा उदायति ।

information and also the verse - Tammullī tappurakkāre uvautte" of the Uttarūdhyaṇa Sūtra (24/8), both these aphorisms (viz. 68, 69) may be interpreted in terms of īriyā, but we have translated aph. 68 in the context of Kusāla (i. e., Bhagavān Mahāvīra) (see Aphorism 67) on the basis of the explanation of the Cūṛṇi cf. 5/109.

1. This aphorism has been translated here by considering the words abhikkamamāṇe etc. to be the adjectives of paṇe and in the accusative plural.

Kammaṇo bamdha-vvega-padam

71. Egayā gunasamiyassa riyato kāyasamphāsamañuciṇṇā egatiyā pānā uddāyaṃti.

Bondage and Riddance of Karma Particles

71. It may so happen that some living beings get injured or (even) killed by coming in touch with the body of a (perfectly) vigilant muni (i. e. an appramatta muni, having attained a gūṃasthāna (i. e., a stage of spiritual development) from seventh to thirteenth) while doing some activity.

७२ इहलोग-वेयण-वेज्जावडियं ।

72. Ihaloga-veyaṇa-vejjāvaḍiyam.

72. (If any living being gets injured or killed inadvertently by the touch of the body of any pramatta muni, (not perfectly vigilant and occupant of the sixth gūṃasthāna) who, however, otherwise is carrying on his operations in accordance with the Right Deportment), the muni incurs bondage of (only that karma, which comes to rise in his present life.

ANNOTATIONS 71-72. The bondage of karma particles incurred due to killing of living beings is not always identical. It depends upon the intensity of passions and one's mental state.

If a living being is killed by coming in contact with the body, —

(a) in the case of a muni who has attained the highest form of samādhi (i. e. profound meditation) or the śaileśī stage (whose mind is rendered as staid, calm and immobile as a mountain), no karma-bondage is incurred;

(b) in the case of a vīṭarāga muni (i. e. one who is completely free from passions or attachment and aversion), but who has not withdrawn from the activities of mind, speech and body, the karma-bondage endures for two samayas (i. e. two time-points) only;

(c) in the case of an (avītarāga) apramatta-muni (i. e. vigilant but not completely free from passions), the karma-bondage endures for minimum antarmuhūrta (i. e. less than 48 minutes) and maximum 8 muhūrtas (i. e. 8 hours 24 minutes) ;

(d) in the case of a muni who is not perfectly vigilant (pramatta) but is acting in accordance with the Right Deportment, the duration of the karma-bondage incurred is minimum antarmuhūrta and maximum eight years. He gets rid of it by experiencing it in the present life.

७३. जं आउट्टिकयं कम्मं, तं परिण्णाए विवेगमेति ।

73. Jāṃ aūtṭikayaṃ kammaṃ, taṃ pariṇṇāe vivegameti.

73. The karma-particles incurred by (the pramatta muni occupying the sixth gṛāsthāna), who is carrying on his operation out of accord with the Right Deportment, can be disposed of through expiation¹.

७४. एष से अप्पमाएण, विवेगं किट्ठति वेयवी ।

74. Evaṃ se appamāṇaṃ, vivegaṃ kiṭṭati veyavī

74. The dissolution (of karma bondage which is caused by pramāda (i. e. non-vigilance), is effected through apramāda (i. e. vigilance); the composer of the sūtra (canonical text) has so propounded.

बंभचेर-पदं

७५ से पभूयदंसी पभूयपरिण्णाणे उवसंते समिए सहिते सया जए
दट्ठु विप्पडिवेदेति अप्पाण—

Bambhacera-padaṃ

75. Se pabhūyadaṃsī pabhūyapariṇṇāṇe uvasaṃte samie sahite sayā jae daṭṭhum vippaḍivedeti appāṇaṃ —

1. Expiation is of 10 kinds: out of which taṭṭha (i. e. penance) and cheda (i. e. reduction of rank as penalty) are prescribed for dissolving the above sort of karma bondage.

Practice of Celibacy

75. A muni who has deep insight and extensive knowledge, who has subdued his passions, who is engaged in right activity, and is equipped (with Knowledge, Spiritual Experience and Self-discipline) and is ever subjugating his senses, reflects on seeing (a woman bent up on seducing him) —

७६ किमेस जणो करिस्सति ?

76. Kimesa jano karissati ?

76. "What can this person (i. e. woman) do unto me ?

७७. एस से परमारामो, जाओ लोगम्मि इत्थीओ ।

77. Esa se paramārāmo, jāo logammi itthio.

77. "Even though in this world, women are the sources of utmost pleasure, (what happiness, can they give to me ? For, I am already happy by myself)."

ANNOTATIONS 76-77. These aphorisms are comparable to the following verse of Ācārya Kundakunda-

| *Timiraharā jāī dīṭṭhī, jaṇassa dīveṇa natthi kadavvam/
Tadha sokkham sayamadda, visaya kim tattha kuvvaniti//*¹

"Of what use is a lamp to a person whose eyes have the power to destroy the darkness ? What purpose can external objects of delight serve when the Self itself is (a treasure of) happiness ?"

७८ मुणिणा हु एत पवेदित, उब्बाहिज्जमाणे गामधम्मोहि—

78. Muṇṇā hu etaṃ paveditaṃ, ubbāhijjamāṇe gāma-dhammehiṃ —

78. Bhagavān Mahāvīra has prescribed this (in the following aphorisms) to the muni tormented by sex —

७९. अवि णिव्वलासए ।

1. Pravacanasāra, 67.

79. Avi nibbalāsae.

79. He should eat food which is not rich.

ANNOTATION 79. By taking food rich in calories, the physical vigour tends to increase, and there are more chances of sexual arousal. Decaloried food, on the other hand, reduces physical vigour and consequently the passions also get weakened in a less vigorous body. That is why decaloried food has been prescribed as the first per-requisite for toning down the sexual passions.

८०. अवि ओमोयरिय कुज्जा ।

80. Avi omoyariyaṃ kujjā.

80. He should take light diet.

ANNOTATION 80. The passions of a person taking heavy diet are more likely to get strong, while light diet helps in pacifying lust.

८१ अवि उद्धठाण ठाइज्जा ।

81. Avi uddhamthāṇaṃ thāijjā.

81. He should perform kāyotsarga (i. e. relaxation and renunciation of bodily activities) by practising ūrdhvasthāna (i. e. adopting the posture in which legs are kept upward and head downwards).

ANNOTATION 81. Ūrdhvasthāna must be practised at night; it could also be practised in day-time if there was need to do so. In accordance with one's requirements, one should practice it for one, two, three or four praharas (1/4th of a day or night). It is a very effective means to curb sexual passions.

The word urdhvasthāna denotes the mudrā (posture) indicated by word Uddhamjānū, ahostre in the Bhagawati Sūtra (1/9). The same mudrā is discussed in the Hathayoga Pradīpikā by 'urāhvanūbhiraḥastāluḥ' (3/79) and 'Adhaḥ-śtraśchordhvaṇpādaḥ' (3/81).

The īrdhvasiḥāna mudrā signifies mainly the *sarvāṅgā-*sana and secondarily the śīrṣāsana, vykṣāsana, etc. These Yoga postures or āsanas help mollify the centres of id-impulses; the mollification of these centres, in turn, causes passions to pacify.

८२ अवि गामाणुगाम दूइज्जेज्जा ।

82. Avī gāmāṇugāmaṁ dūijjejjā.

82. He should undertake journeys on foot from village to village.

ANNOTATION 82. Passions are more likely to get intensified in conditions of ease and comfort. Undertaking journeys on foot involves intense efforts and endurance of hardships. Hence, it is in itself a means to get onself free from sexual passions through its sublimation.

By trekking one automatically practices the gamaṇa yoga (i.e. the activity involving walking) and gets easily rid of the fetters of affection which one acquires through continuous acquaintance with one place and its inhabitants.

८३ अवि आहार वोच्छिदेज्जा ।

83. Avī āhāraṁ vocchindejjā.

83. He should undertake fasting.

ANNOTATION 83. From fasting for a day to fasting for a longer period is prescribed and even fasting unto death is permissible for the subdual of sexual passions.

८४ अवि चए इत्थीसु मणं ।

84. Avī cae itthīsu maṇaṁ.

84. He should give up thinking about the opposite sex.

ANNOTATION 84. It is surroundings that stimulate sexual passions, but it is the thought-process which fans them all the more.

That is why, the passions are said to be born out of thought-process —

"Kāma jānāmi te mūlaṃ, saṃkalpāt kila jāyase/Saṃkalpaṃ na kariṣyāmi, tena me na bhaviṣyasi// "

— "O Cupid! I know you are born out of thought-processes. I shall not indulge in them. Consequently, you shall not be born in my mind."

Six means of sublimating passions have been advocated in the aphorisms 79 to 84. Out of these, the first three are related to diet, and the remaining viz. the ūrdhva-sthāna, undertaking journeys on foot, and ceasing from thoughts about sex are respectively related to physical exercise, hard work and mental equilibrium. Out of these means, that which suits him the most should be practised by a sādhaka.

According to the author of the Cūrṇi, this therapy for the malady of passions is prescribed for a less intelligent muni. But a scholarly muni should be cured of this malady by keeping himself busy in scriptural studies and their assimilation.

८५. पुर्व्वं दंढा पच्छा फात्ता, पुर्व्वं फात्ता पच्छा दंढा ।

85. Puṇvaṃ daṃḍā pacchā phāsā, puṇvaṃ phāsā pacchā daṃḍā

85. (In some cases) suffering precedes (sensual) pleasure, (whereas in some other) pleasure precedes suffering.

ANNOTATION 85. Sensual pleasures are always accompanied by suffering, be it before them or after them. They never go unpunished. People who indulge in them have to suffer.

८६. इच्चेते कलहासंगकरा भवति । पडिलेहाए आगमेत्ता आणवेज्जा अणासेवणाए त्ति बेमि ।

86. Iccete kalahāsaṃgakarā bhavaṃti. Paḍilehāe āgamettā āṇavejjā aṇāsevaṇāe tti bemi.

86. These sensual pleasures result in quarrel and attachment. Bearing in mind the Instructions of the Āgamas (scriptures), (the Preceptor) should instruct his disciple to refrain from sensual pleasures by apprising him of their pernicious consequences. I say so.

८७ से जो कहिए जो पासणिए जो संपसारए जो ममाए जो कय-
किरिए वइगुत्ते अज्झप्प-संबुडे परिवज्जए सदा पावँ ।

87. Se ño kāhie ño pāsāṇie ño saṃpaśārae ño mamāe ño kayakirie vaigutte ajjhappa-saṃvuḍe parivajjāe sadā pāvam̐.

87. A sādhaka practising celibacy ought not to indulge in sexy talks, nor cast amorous glances at opposite sex, nor mutually communicate lusty ideas, nor develop feelings of attachment, nor resort to external beautification; he should observe silence, keep his mind under absolute restraint and always abstain from sin.

८८ एत मोणं समणुवासिज्जासि ।

—त्ति वेमि ।

88. Etaṃ moṇaṃ samāṇuvāsijjāsi.

— Tti bemi.

88. Follow meticulously this knowledge (prescribed as abstinence from incontinence).

— I say so.

SECTION V

पंचमो उद्देशो

Pañcama Uddeso

आयरिय-पदं

८९. से बेमि—तं जहा,

अवि हरए पडिपुण्णे, चिट्ठह समंसि भोमे ।

उवसंतरए सारक्खमाणे, से चिट्ठति सोयमज्झगए ।

Āyariya-padam

89. Se bemi — taṃ jahā,

avi harae paḍipunaṇṇe ciṭṭhai samamsi bhome;uvasantarae sārakkhamāṇe, se ciṭṭhati soyamajjha-
gae.Preceptor

89. I say —

There is a lake full (of lotuses); which is situated on an even plane, is absolutely limpid, conserves (amphibian life) and is the confluence of various streams.

ANNOTATION 89. Lakes are of four kinds:

- (1) One in which no stream flows but from which a channel emerges.
- (2) The converse of No. 1.
- (3) One in which a stream flows as well as a channel emerges.
- (4) The opposite of No. 3.

The metaphor of the lake refers to the Preceptor (ācārya). The preceptor possesses such traits as befitting an ācārya; he is a person standing on the ground of equanimity; he has subdued the passions; he conserves (i. e. does not kill) all living beings; he is surrounded on all sides by the streams of scriptural knowledge; like the lake of the third kind, not only does he imbibe knowledge, but also imparts it.

६०. से पास सब्बतो गुत्ते, पास लोए महेसिणो,
जे य पण्णाणमन्ता पबुद्धा आरंभोवरया ।

90. Se pāsa savvato gutte, pāsa loe mahesiṇo,
Je ya paṇṇāṇamaṇṭā pabuddhā āraṁbhovarayā.

90. See! The preceptors are great seers, are perfectly subdued (in mind, speech and deed), who are erudite scholars and enlightened and abstain from (sinful) actions.

ANNOTATION 90. According to the Cūṛṇi, prajñāvān (i. e. wise person) is he who possesses the knowledge of fourteen Pūrvas (the Earlier Sacred Books) and a prabuddha (i. e. enlightened) person is he who is endowed with the clairvoyant and telepathic cognitions. A scholarly muni, possessing profound knowledge of the canonical texts extant can also be considered as prabuddha.

६१. सम्ममेयंति पासह ।

91. Sammameyaṁti pāsaha.

91. All this is true. See it.

ANNOTATION 91. The term pāsaha (Skt. Paśyata) signifies independent perception or conception. The author of the canonical texts professes. "Do not accept anything, just because I have said so. But use your sharp and unbiased intellect to examine this."

६२. कालस्स कखाए परिव्वयति ति वेमि ।

92. Kālassa kaṁkhāe parivvayaṁti tti bemi.

92. They (i. e. the preceptors) lead a life of self-discipline unto their last breath¹. I say so.

सद्धा-पदं

९३. वितिगिच्छ-समावन्नेणं अप्पाणेणं णो लभति समाधिं ।

Saddhā padam

93. Vitigiccha-samāvannenaṁ appāṇenaṁ ṇo labhati samādhim.

Faith

93. A soul afflicted with doubt, does not attain to samādhī (i. e. perfect equipoise).

ANNOTATION 93. Topics worthy of comprehension are of three kinds:

- (1) Those which can be comprehended easily.
- (2) Those which can be known with difficulty.
- (3) Those which cannot be explored.

Doubt or disbelief can rise in the case of the topics of the second kind.

The term samādhī also denotes concentration or steadiness of mind or Right Spiritual Experience.

९४. सिया वेगे अणुगच्छति, असिया वेगे अणुगच्छति,
अणुगच्छमाणेहिं अणुगच्छमाणे कह ण णिव्वज्जे ?

-
1. The alternate translation of this aphorism can be made as follows:

They, waiting for death, lead a life of self-discipline (i. e. they neither have a desire for, nor have the fear from death).

94. Siya vege anugaccharṃti, asiya vege anugaccharṃti, Anugacchamānehum ananugacchamāne khamṃ na niv-vijje?
94. Some sādhakas follow (the path of sādhanā) by taking guidance from (the preceptor), while some do so without it. (But) how can a sādhaka who does not follow (the path of sādhanā), living amongst those who follow (the path of sādhanā), remain free from despondency (towards the practice of self-discipline)¹?

ANNOTATION 94. The state of mind of a sādhaka which flows from despondency is described in the following two categories of hardships viz. prajñā pariśaha and ajñāna-pariśaha discussed in the Uttarādhyaṃyana Sūtra (2/40-43):

"A monk should never succumb to the onslaught of despondency due to ignorance by thinking thus: It is undoubtedly myself who, in the past, had indulged in actions which did engender ignorance as their consequence. it is on account of them that I know nothing, (not even how to answer) any question put to me by anyone. (40)

-
1. The authors of the Cūrṇi and the Vṛtti have interpreted the words siyā and asiyā as sītā and asītā i. e. "householders" and "ascetic" respectively. We have, however, interpreted them as śrītā and aśrītā in our translation. The alternate translations of the aphorism can be done as follows:

1. Some munis follow (the ācārya), while some householders also do so, (but) how can one who does not follow (the path of sādhanā), living among those who follow, remain free from despondency (towards the practice of self-discipline).
2. (When the ācārya elucidates a subtle philosophical point), those who have (doubt) for such explanation, comprehend it and those who are free (from doubts) also comprehend it. (But) how can one who does not comprehend it, living among those who comprehend it, remain free from despondency (towards the practice of self-discipline).

"The karma, which as its consequence engenders ignorance, and which even if accumulated in the past, starts giving its fruits on rising." — Knowing thus the consequences of the karma, a muni should console his own soul. (41)

"I abstained from sexual intercourse and curbed my senses and mind — all this has been in vain. For I do not know directly or positively whether righteousness is beneficial or detrimental. (42).

"I practise austerities and religious observance. I have also undertaken special course of sādhana. In spite of following such (higher) code of sādhana, I have failed to obliterate the veils of karma obscuring knowledge." (43) — Muni should never think in such terms."

Also such a state of mind is comparable with the first dukkha-sāyyā (i. e. living in gloom) described in the Sthānāṅga Sūtra (4/450).

The next aphorism is meant to boost up the faith of a sādhaka and dispel his gloom.

६५. तमेव सच्चं नीसकं, जं जिणेहि पवेइयं ।

95. Tameva saccam nīsaṁkam, jam jīṇehiṁ paveiyam.

95. Only that, which has been propounded by the Tīrthaṅkaras is true and free from doubt.

मउभत्तय-पइ

६६. सडिदस्स ण समणुणस्स संपव्वयमाणस्स—

समियति मण्णमाणस्स एगया समिया होइ ।

समियति मण्णमाणस्स एगया असमिया होइ ।

असमियति मण्णमाणस्स एगया समिया होइ ।

असमियति मण्णमाणस्स एगया असमिया होइ ।

समियति मण्णमाणस्स समिया वा, असमिया वा, समिया होइ उवेहाए ।

असमियति मण्णमाणस्स-समिया वा, असमिया वा, असमिया होइ उवेहाए ।

Majjhāttha-padam

96. Saḍḍhissa ñaṃ samaṇaṇassa, sampavvayamāṇassa —
 Samiyaṃti maṇṇamāṇassa egayā samiyā hoi.
 Samiyaṃti maṇṇamāṇassa egayā asamiyā hoi.
 Asamiyaṃti maṇṇamāṇassa egayā samiyā hoi.
 Asamiyaṃti maṇṇamāṇassa egayā asamiyā hoi.
 Samiyaṃti maṇṇamāṇassa samiyā vā, asamiyā vā,
 samiyā hoi uvehāe.
 Asamiyaṃti maṇṇamāṇassa samiyā vā, asamiyā vā, asamiyā hoi uvehāe.

Unbiased Attitude

96. One who is possessed of faith and observes the right conduct¹ and right form of asceticism —
- considers a course of action to be right and, it, in fact, is right;
- considers a course of action to be right, but, it, in fact, is not right;
- considers a course of action to be false, but, it, in fact, is right;
- considers a course of action to be false, but, it, in fact, is also false.

Whether a particular course of action is right or false, it is considered to be right (and proper) on account of the unbiased attitude (i. e. freedom, from attachment and aversion) of the person who considers it to be right. Similarly, whether or not a particular course of action is right or false, it is considered to be false (or improper) on account of the unbiased attitude of the person who considers it to be false.

ANNOTATION 96. All munis do not possess the faculty of direct perception; and their knowledge and way of thinking may also differ. A person devoid of direct (or Transcendental) Perception can judge a particular course of action only through exercising his own unbiased discretion, but he cannot judge if that course of action is actually right or not. Therefore, the canonist has asserted here that, for one whose conscience is pure and whose discernment is unprejudiced, a particular course of action is right, if it is felt so empirically. In the same way, anything propounded to be improper by him is improper, whether it is in reality improper or not.

1. Samaṇaṇa — one whose anuñṇā i. e. qualification is proper.

Thus a śramāṇa who practises any course of action in an unbiased way, is aptly called as the Truth-seeker. This very fact has been mentioned in the present sūtra. It is perfectly consistent with the description of the five vya-vahāras (Cf. Sthānāṅga Sūtra, 5/124).

६७ उवेहमाणो अणुवेहमाणं ब्रूया "उवेहहि समियाए ।"

97. Uvehamāṇo aṇuvehamāṇaṁ brūyā "Uvehāhi samiyāē."

97. One, having an unbiased outlook should say to one who has a biased outlook, "For the attainment of Truth, you should adopt the unbiased attitudes."

६८ इच्चेवं तत्थं संघी सोसितो भवति ।

98. Icevaṁ tattha saṁdhi jhosito bhavati.

98. Complications (relating to the right and the wrong behaviour) can be resolved through the above mentioned method¹.

अहिंसा-पदं

६९ उट्ठियस्स ठियस्स गतिं समणुपासह ।

Ahimsā-padam

99. Uṭṭhiyassa ṭhiyassa gatiṁ samaṇupāsaha.

1. Samdhi denotes granthi (lit. a knot i. e. a complicated problem) and jhosita denotes kṣapītaḥ (i. e. dissolved).

Non-violence

99. Observe the carriage¹ of one who has risen-up (for practising self-discipline) and who is established in (it).

१००. एतव्धि बालभावे अप्पाणं णो उवदसेज्जा ।

100. Etthavi bālabhāve appāṇam ṇo uvadamsejjā.

100. Do not support the ignorant thinking (such as there is no evil in perpetrating violence).

१०१ तुमंसि नाम सच्चेव जं 'हृतव्वं' ति मन्नसि,
 तुमंसि नाम सच्चेव जं 'अज्जवेयव्वं' ति मन्नसि,
 तुमंसि नाम सच्चेव जं 'परितवेयव्वं' ति मन्नसि,
 तुमंसि नाम सच्चेव जं 'परिवेतव्वं' ति मन्नसि ।
 तुमंसि नाम सच्चेव जं 'उद्देयव्वं' ति मन्नसि ।

101. Tumam̐si nāma sacceva jaṃ 'ham̐tavvaṃ' ti mannasi, Tumam̐si nāma sacceva jaṃ 'ajjāveyavvaṃ' ti man-
 nasi,
 Tumam̐si nāma sacceva jaṃ 'paritāveyavvaṃ' ti mannasi.
 Tumam̐si nāma sacceva jaṃ 'pariḥetavvaṃ' ti man-
 nasi;
 Tumam̐si nāma sacceva jaṃ 'uddaveyavvaṃ' ti man-
 nasi.

101. One who you think should be hit is none else but you.

One who you think should be governed is none else but you.

One who you think should be tortured is none else but you.

One who you think should be enslaved is none else but you.

1. By gati is meant the steadiness of knowledge and perception, steadfastness of conduct and competence through the learning of scriptures, etc.

One who you think should be killed is none else but you.

ANNOTATION 101. Bhagavān Mahāvīra was the propounder of the doctrine that all souls are equal to one's own soul. This parity has been expressed in the present sūtra. Its purport is to establish the equality of feelings of two different souls.

The significance of the statement "One who you think should be hit is none else but you", is that one who you hit experiences the same feelings as you do, when you are hit by others.

१०२ अजू चेय-पडिबुद्ध-जीवी, तम्हा ण हंता ण विघायए ।

102. Añjū ceya-paḍibuddha-jīvī, tamhā ṇa haṁtā ṇa vighāyae.

102. A sage is ingenuous and leads his life after comprehending (the parity of the killed and the killer). Therefore, neither does he cause violence to others nor does he make others to do so.

ANNOTATION 102. The term añjū (Skt. Ājū) means ingenuous, self-disciplined or one who is keen to lead a self-disciplined life. The purport of the sūtra is that a wise man should abstain from violence, not through hypocrisy or fear, but through ingenuousness and spirit of self-discipline.

१०३. अणुसंवेयणमप्पाणेणं, जं 'हंतव्वं' ति जासिपत्थए ।

103. Aṇusañveyaṇamappāṇeṇaṁ, jaṁ 'haṁtavvaṁ' ti jāsiṭṭhāe.

103. One has to experience himself the consequences¹ of one's own karma. Hence, do not entertain the thought of hitting (i. e. causing violence to) anyone.

1. The term aṇusañvedana can also mean that one has to suffer exactly the same way as one has made others to suffer.

आय-पदं

१०४. जे आया से विष्णाया, जे विष्णाया से आया ।

जेण विज्ञापति से आया ।

Āya-padam

104. Je āyā se viṣṇāyā, je viṣṇāyā se āyā.
Jēṇa vijāṇati se āyā.

The Soul

104. The soul is that which cognizes; that which cognizes is the soul. Because it cognizes, it is soul.

ANNOTATION 104. That which knows, is the soul; that through which knowledge is gained, is also the soul. In these two sūtras, have been laid down the two definitions of the soul. The first of these two relates to substance, and the second to quality. The conscient soul is substance; consciousness, its quality. In other words, the former is the 'cognizer' and the latter, 'cognition'. Both the 'cognizer', and 'cognition' are one and the same, i. e. the soul. The 'Conscient' reality is not directly perceptible, but 'consciousness' is. Just as a person sitting inside a room can infer the existence of the sun through the sun-light, so can the existence of the 'cognizer' be deduced from the process of 'knowledge'. We know the 'knowable' through 'knowledge'. Hence, it can be said that we know (the existence of) 'knowledge' through knowing the knowable. Also, since 'knowledge' is the light of the 'knower', we know the 'knower' through 'knowing' the existence of 'knowledge'.

Soul is the 'substance', while knowledge is its quality. A substance and its quality are neither wholly identical nor wholly different. A quality always inheres in a substance, and hence both of them are identical. On the other hand, since one is the 'substratum', while the other is 'supported', both are different.

Knowledge, however, is the characteristic of soul. Hence, both are invariably concomitant.

The point here is: if the soul and knowledge are considered to be absolutely one and the same, even a single soul will become manifold, like knowledge. The present aphorism is clarification of this point — there are numerous manifestations of knowledge. Only on the basis of the phase of knowledge through which the soul passes at the particular moment, the right appellation of the soul can be ascertained. The soul which is occupied in cognizing through the sense of hearing is designated as the 'auditor' soul. Similarly, the soul engaged in gaining knowledge through mental processes is called 'psychic' soul. The soul occupied in cognizing such knowable entities as field, flag, chariot, horse, etc. can be called the percipient of field, flag, etc.

Cf. Bhagavatī Sūtra, (6/174) —

Gautama — "O Bhagavan! Is the soul a jīva or is consciousness a jīva?"

Bhagavān — "Gautama! the soul is certainly a jīva and so is consciousness."

१०५. तं पदुच्च पडिसंज्ञाय ॥

105. Tam paḍucca paḍisaṃkhāe.

105. Because of these (various manifestations of knowledge), the soul becomes the object of practical usage (i. e. various appellations are attributed to it).

१०६ एस आयावादी समियाए-परियाए वियांहिते ।

— त्ति वेमि ।

106. Esa āyāvādi samiyāe-pariyāe viyāhite.

— Tti bemi.

106. The believer in the Doctrine of Soul has been described as one who has attained the Truth¹.

— I say so.

1. The alternate translation of this aphorism may be done like this: This believer in the Doctrine of soul has been described as one who has attained the Equanimity.

SECTION VI

छद्दो उद्देशो

Chattho Uddeso

मगगंढसण-पदं

१०७ अणाणाए एगे सोवट्ठाणा, आणाए एगे निरुवट्ठाणा ।

Maggadaṃsaṇa-padam

107. Anāṇāe ege sovaṭṭhāṇā, āṇāe ege niruvaṭṭhāṇā.

Guidance

107. Some people exert themselves in non-conformity to the instruction and are lax in conformity to it.

१०८ एतं ते मां होउ ।

108. Etaṃ te mā hou.

108. The thought (of exerting yourself in non-conformity to the instruction, and laxity in conformity to it) should not even occur to you.

१०९. एयं कुसलस्स दंढसणं ।

109. Eyaṃ kusalassa daṃsaṇaṃ.

109. This is the view of Bhagavān Mahāvīra.

११०. तद्धिट्ठीए तम्ममुत्तीए तप्पुरक्कारे तस्सणी तन्निवेसणे ।

110. Taddiṭṭhīe tammuttīe tappurakkāre tassaṇṇi tannive-saṇe.

110. Fixing his mind on it (i.e. Bhagavān Mahāvīra's view), concentrating on it, giving it prominence, becoming completely absorbed in its memory and throwing himself heart and soul in its (practice), one should follow it.

१११. अभिभूय अदक्खू, अणभिभूते पभू निरालंबणयाए ।

111. Abhibhūya adakkhū, aṇabhibhūte pabhū nirālaṃbaṇayāe.

111. It is one who has overcome (the hurdles that come in the path of śādhana) realizes the Truth. Only he who is not vanquished (by hurdles) is competent to become free from all dependence.

ANNOTATION 111. A self-reliant person is always content with himself. (Cf. the Uttarādhyaṇa Sūtra, 29/34).

११२ जे महअबहिमणे ।

112. Je maham abahimane.

112. One who is great (i.e. who has salvation for his destination) should not allow his mind to go astray from the path of self-discipline (being dazzled by the miraculous feats of Yoga).

११३ पवाएण पवारं जाणेज्जा ।

113. Pavāṇaṃ pavāyaṃ jāṇejjā.

113. Comprehend a philosophical view through (comprehensive study of) another one.

ANNOTATION 113. Critical examination of the diverse philosophical views have always been recognised in the field of religion and philosophy. One, who is desirous of adopting a particular creed or philosophical view, generally probes into other schools of philosophy. Bhagavān Mahāvira also approved of such scrutiny. According to him, "After having studied one's own philosophy, a muni should study and critically examine other philosophical doctrines." But in doing so, he should be free from an attitude infected with attachment and aversion, that is to say, one should neither have attachment to one's own view nor have aversion for others' views. Thus, he should not cherish the mentality of showing only the merits of one's own view and only the demerits of others. One should be perfectly unbiased and equanimous in critical examinations.

११४ सहसम्मइयाए, परवागरणेण, अण्णेसि वा अतिए सोच्चा ।

114. Sahasammaiyāe, paravāgaranēṇaṃ, aṇṇesim vā atītie soccā.

114. (Comprehensive knowledge of the philosophical views can be gained) either through the recollections of the previous birth or through the revelations made by the Tīrthaṅkara or through hearing from a person possessing transcendental knowledge.

११५. णिहेतं णातिवददेज्जा मेहावी ।

115. Ṇiddesaṃ ṇātiwattejjā mehāvī.

115. A sage should not transgress the guidelines (of the Tīrthaṅkara).

सच्चत्त अणुसीलण-पदं

११६ सुपडिलेहिय सव्वतो सव्वयाए सम्ममेव समभिजाणिया ।

Saccassa aṇusīlaṇa-padam

116. Supaḍilehiya savvato savvayāe sammameva samabhijāṇiyā.

The Practice of Truth

116. One should follow nothing but the path of Truth¹, after having fully weighed all the pros and cons.

११७. इहारामं परिण्णाय, अल्लीण-गुत्तो परिव्वए ।

णिट्ठियट्ठी वीरे, आगमेण सवा परक्कमेज्जासि त्ति वेमि ।

1. The alternate translation—Having made a perfect and complete observation, one should maintain nothing but Equanimity.

117. *Tharāmaṃ pariṇāya, allīṇa-gutto parivvāe.
Nīṭṭhiyaṭṭhi vīre, āgamaṇa sadā parakkamejjāsi tti bemi.*

117. Having discerningly realized Bliss in this (i. e. the practice of Truth), one should lead an ascetic life becoming deeply engrossed (in the Self) and subjugating the senses. Blessed with the accomplishment (of the practice of self-discipline, a courageous muni should always exert himself in tune with the purport of the scriptures¹. I say so.

११८. उद्धं सोता अहे सोता, तिरियं सोता वियाहिया, एते सोया वियक्खाया, जेहि संगंति पासहा ॥

118. *Uddhaṃ sotā ahe sotā, tiriyaṃ sotā viyāhiyā.
Ete soya viyakkhāyā, jehiṃ saṅgaṃti pāsahā.*

118. There are secretory centres (of sensuality) in the upper (part of the body), they are in the middle (part of the body), and also they are in the lower part of body). These have been described as secretory centres (of sensuality). See that man becomes attached (to sensuality) through their secretions².

११९. आवद्धं तु उवेहाए, एत्थ विरमेज्ज वेयवी ।

119. Āvaṭṭaṃ tu uwehāe, ettha viramejja veyavī.

119. Having observed the whirlpools (of attachment and aversion), a wise sādhaka should keep himself away from them.

१२०. विणएत्तु सोयं निक्खम्म, एस मह अकम्मा जाणति पासति ।

120. Vīṇaettu' soyaṃ nikkhamma, esa mahāṃ akammā jāṇati pāsati.

120. One who relinquishes sources of sensual pleasures and renounces worldly life, becomes a great sādhaka.

1. Cf. Dasaveāliya Cūḷiā, 2/11.

2. Cf. 2/125, Annotation.

He, becoming free from action¹ (i. e. by going into meditation), knows and perceives.

१२१ षडिलेहाए णावकखति, इह आगतिं गतिं परिणाय ।

121. Paḍilehāe ṇāvakaṁkhatī, iha āgatiṁ gatiṁ pariṇāya.

121. A seer (of Truth), having discerningly known the arrival and departure of the Soul (i. e. the recurrent transmigration), does not crave (for sensual pleasures).

१२२ अच्चेइ जाइ-मरणत्स वट्टमग्गं वक्खाय-राए ।

122. Accē jāi-maraṇassa vaṭṭamaggāṁ vakkhāya-rae.

122. Absorbed in the Scriptures and their purport, a muni transcends the circular (i. e. cyclic) path of Birth and Death.

परमप-पदं

१२३. सव्वे सरा णियट्ठंति ।

Paramappa-padam

123. Savve sarā ṇiyattaṁti.

The Immaculate Soul - The Supreme Soul

123. All voices get reflected (i. e. fail to reach there - It is impossible to express the nature of the Immaculate Soul in words.

१२४. तवका जत्थ ण विज्जइ ।

124. Takkā jattha ṇa vijjai.

124. There is no reason there i. e. He is beyond the grasp of logic.

१२५. मई तत्थ ण माहिया ।

1. Cf. 2/38.

125. Mai tattha ña gāhiyā.

125. The Intellect fails to grasp him.

१२६. ओए अप्पत्तिट्ठाणस्स खेयण्णे ।

126. Oe appatitthāṇassa kheyanne.

126. He is one and alone, body-less and the Knower.

१२७. से ण दीहे, ण हस्से, ण वट्ठे, ण तसे, ण चउरसे, ण परिमडले ।

127. Se ña dihe, ña hasse, ña vatte, ña taṃse, ña caura-mse, ña parimaṃdale.

127. He (the Immaculate Soul) is neither long nor short, nor a circle nor a triangle, nor a quadrilateral nor a sphere.

१२८. ण किण्हे, ण णीले, ण लोहिण्, ण हालिहे, ण सुक्किल्ले ।

128. Ña kiṇhe, ña ñīle, ña lohie, ña hālidde, ña sukkille.

128. He is neither black nor bl^e nor red nor yellow nor white.

१२९. ण सुग्गिगंधे, ण दुरग्गिगंधे ।

129. Ña subbhigaṃdhe, ña durabbhigaṃdhe.

129. He is neither a pleasant smell nor an unpleasant one.

१३०. ण तित्ते, ण कडुए, ण कसाए, ण अंबिले, ण महुरे ।

130. Ña titte, ña kaḍue, ña kasāe, ña aṃbile, ña mahure.

130. He is neither pungent, nor bitter,
nor astringent,
nor sour,
nor sweet.

१३१. ण कक्खडे, ण मउए, ण गरुए, ण लहुए, ण सीए, ण उण्हे, ण णिडे, ण लुक्खे ।

131. Ña kakkhade, ña maue, ña garue, ña lahue, ña sīe, ña uṇhe, ña niddhe, ña lukkhe.

131. He is neither hard, nor soft;
neither heavy, nor light;
neither cold, nor hot;
neither greasy, nor dry.

१३२. न कठ ।

132. Na k̄au.

132. He is bodyless.

१३३. न रूहे ।

133. Na ruhe.

133. He is not subject to birth.

१३४. न संगे ।

134. Na saṁge.

134. He is free from attachment.

१३५. न इत्थी, न पुरिसे, न अण्णहा ।

135. Na itthī, na purise, na aṇṇahā.

135. He is neither female nor male, nor otherwise (i. e. neuter).

१३६. परिण्णे सण्णे ।

136. Parinṇe saṇṇe.

136. He is (immaculate) Knowledge and Intuition (i. e. He is consciousness and nothing but consciousness).

१३७. उवमा न विज्जए ।

137. Uvaṁā na vijjāe.

137. There exists no simile (to comprehend him).

१३८. अरूवी सत्ता ।

138. Arūvī sattā.

138. He is Formless Existence.

१३६. अपयस्स पयं णत्थि ।

139. Apayassa payam ñatthi.

139. He baffles all terminology. There is no word (to comprehend him).

१४०. से ण सद्दे, ण रूवे, ण गधे, ण रसे, ण फासे, इच्चेताव ।

—त्ति बेमि ।

140. Se ña sadde, ña rūve, ña gamdhe, ña rase, ña phāse, iccetāva.

— Tti bemi.

140. He is neither sound nor form nor odour, nor taste nor touch. Only so much (nothing more).

— I say so.

CHAPTER VI

ADVANCED ASCETICISM

(DHUTA)

छट्ठं अज्झयणं

धुयं

CHAṬṬHAṂ AJJHAYAṆAṂ

DHUYAṂ

SECTION I

पढमो उद्देशो

Paḍhamo Uddeso

माणस्स निरुवण-पदं

१. ओबुज्जमाने इह माणवेषु, आयाइ से णरे ।

*Nāṇassa Virūvaṇa-padam*1. Obujjhamāṇe iha māṇavesu, āghāi se nare.Discourse on Knowledge

1. An enlightened man discourses on (knowledge) to the people of the world.

ANNOTATION 1. No exegesis or philosophical exposition in this world is superhuman; it is all human.

२ जस्सिमाओ जाईओ सव्वओ सुपडिलेहियाओ भवन्ति, अक्खाइ से
णाणमणेलिसं ।2. Jassimāo jāio savvao supaḍilehiyāo bhavarnti, akkhāi se ṇāṇamaṇelisam.

2. He (alone) who has thoroughly comprehended these genera of living beings in all directions, expatiates upon unparalleled Knowledge

३. से किट्ठति तेसि समुट्ठियाणं णित्तत्तदहाणं समाहियाणं
पणाणमताण इह मुत्तिमग्ग ।

3. Se kiṭṭati tesim samutṭhiyāṇaṃ nikkhattadaṃḍāṇaṃ samāhiyāṇaṃ paṇṇāṇamaṃtāṇaṃ iha muttimaggaṃ.

3. The enlightened philosopher expatiates upon the Path of Emancipation to those who are keen (on gaining the knowledge), who are restrained in all their mental, vocal and physical actions, whose mind is attentive and who are possessed of (spiritual) insight.

४. एवं पेगे महावीरा विपरक्कमति ।

4. Evam pege mahāvīrā vipparakkamaṃti.

4. Inspired by such philosophical discourses on Knowledge, the undaunted ones make assiduous efforts (in the practice of self-discipline).

अणत्तपण्णाणं अवसाद-पदं

५. पासह एगेवसीयमाणे अणत्तपण्णे ।

Aṇattapaṇṇāṇaṃ Avasāda-padaṃ

5. Pāsaha egevasīyamāṇe aṇattapaṇṇe.

Dejection amongst Sādhakas Lacking in Spiritual Insight

5. Lo and behold! All those who are lacking in spiritual insight feel dejected (in the practice of self-discipline i. e. asceticism).

६. से बेमि—से जहा वि कुम्मे हरए विणिविट्ठित्ते, पच्छन्न-पलासे, उम्मग से णो लहइ ।

6. Se bemi — se jahā vi kumme harae viṇivittha-citte, pacchanna-palāse, ummaggaṃ se ṇo lahai.

6. I illustrate (my point through a metaphor): Say, there is a tortoise (inhabiting the confines of a deep lake). The tortoise's mind is attached to the lake which is covered with moss and lotus-leaves. It (the tortoise) is unable to find a suitable opening (for getting a glimpse of the limitless sky).

ANNOTATION 6. The full purport of the metaphor in this aphorism is as follows: There was a large and deep lake covered with layers of thick moss and lotus-leaves and full of all sorts of amphibian creatures. Once it came to pass that an aperture of the size of a tortoise's neck developed in the thick layers of moss. Dissociated from its family, a tortoise once accidentally happened to pass that way. It popped its head out of the hole and looked at the star-studded blue sky. Delighted, it thought to itself, "Why not get my entire family here and let them enjoy this beautiful sight?" So it went back, it brought its family with it and started off in search of the hole. But, as ill-luck would have it, it could never find it again. The vastness of the lake completely bewildered it.

This world is like the lake and man (householder) here is like the tortoise. "Karman" is like the moss. Right perception is the aperture (hole) through which the limitless horizon of self-discipline (or asceticism) can be seen. But if one goes back to the household life even after perceiving the sky of ascetic life, and becomes attached to worldly life, he is not able to get back the glimpse of the ascetic life.

This metaphor illustrates the dejection that accompanies a sūdhaka 'lacking spiritual insight.

७ भजगा इव सन्निवेस नो चयति, एव पेगे—

अणेरुबेहिं कुलेहिं जाया,

रुबेहिं सत्ता कलुणं यणंति,

णियाणओ ते न लभंति मोक्खं ।

7. *Bhaṃjagā iva sannivesaṃ no cayanti, evaṃ pege—
Aṇegarūvehiṃ kulehiṃ jāyā,
Rūvehiṃ sattā kaluṇaṃ thaṇanti,
Niyāṇao te na labhaṃti mokkhaṃ.*

7. Just as trees do not quit their place (inspite of undergoing all sorts of vagaries of weather), so also some people (do not renounce the household life). In this world people are born in diverse kinds of families (i. e. some are born in rich families, whereas some others are born in poor families). They wail pathetically (on being confronted by hardships that arise) on account of their clinging to sensual pleasures. Such people cannot extricate themselves from (the miseries which are) the cause (of their pathetic wail of woe).

८. अह पास तेहि-तेहि कुलेहि आयत्ताए जाया—

गंडी अबुवा कोढी, रायंसी अवमारियं ।
 काणियं क्षिमियं चेव, कुणियं कुज्जियं तहा ॥
 उबार पास मूयं च, सुणियं च गिलासिणि ।
 बेवहं पीढसलियं च, सिलिवयं महमेहणि ॥
 सोलस एते रोगा, अक्खाया अनुपुव्वसो ।
 अह णं फुसंति आयंका, फासा य असमंजसा ॥
 मरणं तेसि संपेहाए, उववायं जयणं च णच्चा ।
 परिपागं च संपेहाए, तं सुणेह जहा-तहा ॥

8. Aha pāsa tehiṃ-tehiṃ kulehiṃ āyattāe jāyā —
Gaṇḍī aduwa koḍhī, rāyaṃsī avamāriyaṃ.
Kāṇiyaṃ jhimiyaṃ ceva, kuṇiyaṃ khujjiyaṃ taḥā..
Udaraṃ pāsa mūyaṃ ca, suṇiyaṃ ca gilāsiniṃ..
Vevahṃ pīḍhasappiṃ ca, silivayaṃ mahumehaniṃ..
Solasa ete rōgā, akkhāyā anupuvvaso.
Aha ṇaṃ phusaṃti āyaṃkā, phāsā ya asamañjasā..
Maraṇaṃ tesiṃ saṃpehāe, uvaṇvayaṃ cayaṇaṃ ca
ṇaccā.
Paripāgaṃ ca saṃpehāe, taṃ suṇeha jahā-taḥā..

8. See! Many people, born in diverse kinds of families (as a result of the rise of their karmā, are afflicted with dreadful maladies):

1. Goitre
2. Leprosy
3. Consumption (Tuberculosis)
4. Epilepsy
5. One-eyedness
6. Apoplexy or paralysis
7. Defect in hands (such as handlessness, crookedness)
8. Hunch-backedness
9. Dropsy
10. Dumbness
11. Inflammation (or swelling)
12. Morbid appetite from over-digestion

13. Trembling
14. Crippledness (or lameness)
15. Elephantiasis
16. Diabetes.

The sixteen (chronic) diseases have been enumerated above. (Besides these) sometimes people are attacked with diseases which result in instantaneous death, and many other painful ills. Contemplate the deaths of people (afflicted with chronic diseases and instantaneously fatal diseases). Comprehend Birth and Death. Ponder over the consequences of the karman. Having done so, hear about its true nature.

९ सति पाणा अन्धा तमसि वियाहिया ।

9. Saṁti pāṇā aṁdhā tamaṁsi viyāhiyā.

9. Beings in darkness are called blind.

ANNOTATION 9. Darkness is of two kinds

- 1) Physical darkness — Absence of light,
- 2) Moral darkness — False belief and ignorance.

There are two kinds of blind people:

- 1) Physically blind people — lacking eye-sight.
- 2) Morally blind people — bereft of wisdom or discernment.

Those who adhere to false beliefs and ignorance are bereft of wisdom. They cannot visualise the cause and effect of karman.

१० तामेव सइ असइ अतिअच्च उच्चावयफासे पडिसवेदेति ।

10. Tāmeva saṁ asaṁ atiacca uccāvayaphāse paḍisaṁvedeṁti.

10. Having been afflicted with it (i. e. the abovementioned woeful state) once or frequently, the beings experience the (painful) ills (in) acute or light (degrees).

११. बुद्धेहि एयं पवेदितं ।

11. Buddhehiṃ eyaṃ paveditaṃ.

11. This has been propounded by the Buddhas (i. e. Tīr-thaṅkaras).

पाणि-किलेस-पदं

१२. सति पाणा वासगा, रसगा, उदए उदयचरा, आगासगामिणो

Pāṇi-kilesa-padam

12. Saṃti pāṇā vāsagā, rasagā, udae udayacarā, āgāsa-gāmiṇo.

Tormentation of Beings by Other Beings:

12. The living beings are of various kinds —

- (a) Those produced in the rainy season (e.g. frogs, etc.);
- (b) Those born out of liquids (e.g. worms, etc.);
- (c) Those animals living in water (e.g. fish, etc.);
- (d) Those which can fly (e.g. birds, etc.).

१३. पाणा पाणे किलेसंति ।

13. Pāṇā pāṇe kilesaṃti.

13. Beings torment other beings (in various ways from injuring to killing).

ANNOTATION 13. There are two motives, in general, of one being tormenting another one:

- 1) Nourishment, and
- 2) Revenge.

१४. पास लोए महभयं ।

14. Pāsa loe mahabbhayaṃ.

14. See! There is great terror in this world.

तिगिच्छापसंगे अहिंसा-पदं

१५. बहुदुक्खा हं जंतवो ।

Tigicchāpasamge ahimsā-padam.

15. Bahudukkhaṃ hu jantavo.

Observance of Non-violence in Medical Treatment

15. Beings suffer legions of woes.

१६. सत्ता कामेहि माणवा ।

16. Sattā kāmehi māṇavā.

16. (Still) people are attached to sensual pleasures.

ANNOTATIONS 14-16. Beings torture other beings — this is a great terror engendered in this world. The vast host of woes and miseries in this world is also tantamount to great terror. Curiously enough, in spite of being horrified, people are attached to and enjoy the sensual pleasures.

१७. अबलेण वहं गच्छति, सरिरेण पमंगुरेण ।

17. Abaleṇa vahaṃ gacchānti, sarīreṇa pabhaṃgureṇa.

17. (Driven by the longing for life), people wish¹ to kill beings for the sake of maintaining this worthless and frail mortal frame.

१८. अट्ठे से बहुदुक्खे, इति बाले पगग्गह ।

18. Aṭṭe se bahudukkhe, iti bāle pagabbhai.

18. One, afflicted with pains, undergoes a host of miseries. Consequently that ignorant one becomes shameless¹ (in torturing other creatures for the sake of mitigating his own miseries).

1. The verb 'gacchānti', here means 'icchānti'. According to the author of the Cūṛṇi, "Kamkhamānti, paṭṭhamānti and gacchānti are all synonymous." See Ac. Cūṛṇi, p. 205.

ANNOTATION 18. 'Does the next world exist? Who has seen it? Why should one suffer in this world and worry about a happy life in the next world? There is no sense in the principle that 'one has to reap the fruits of one's action in the next life'.²—This line of thinking is a sign of shamelessness.

१६. एते रोगे बहू णच्चा, आउरा परितावए ।

19. Ete roge bahū naṇṇā, āura paritāvae.

19. The impassioned ones, having known that they are afflicted with diseases of various sorts (as mentioned previously in aph. 8), torment (other creatures for the sake of therapy).

२०. णालं पास ।

20. Nālaṃ pāsa.

20. But mind you! (All these therapies) are not competent enough (to remedy the maladies).

२१. अलं तवेएहि ।

21. Alaṃ taveehi.

21. Refrain from these (therapeutic measures) which cause misery to other creatures).

२२. एयं पास मुणी ! महब्भयं ।

22. Eyaṃ pāsa muṇī! mahabbhayaṃ.

1. The Cūṛṇī and the Tikā explain the text 'pakuṇvavai' (in place of 'pagabbhai'). And therefore the translation would be — one, afflicted.... ignorant one tortures other beings (for the sake of mitigating his own miseries) but the text in Uttarādhyayana Sūtra 5/7 is—"iti bāle pagabbhai." The author of the Cūṛṇī here has taken "pagabbhai" to be a variant reading. This appears to be deeply meaningful and appropriate.

२५. इह खलु अत्तत्ताए तेहि-तेहि कुलेहि अभिसेएण अभिसंभूता,
अभिसजाता, अभिणिव्वट्ठा, अभिसनुद्धा, अभिसंबुद्धा
अभिणिक्खता, अणुपुब्बेण महामुणी ।

25. Iha khalu attattāe tehiṃ-tehiṃ kulehiṃ abhiseṇa abhisaṃbhūtā abhisaṃjātā, abhinivvattā, abhisaṃvuddhā, abhisaṃbuddhā abhinikkhamtā, aṇupubbena mahāmuni.

25. Man is born in various clans (or families) on account of his own spiritual state (i. e. in accordance with his own karman), through seminal effusion into the woman's uterus, and composition of pre-foetal flesh and muscles (i. e. embryo five days old), and development of various limbs. After birth, he gradually grows and matures. Then a day comes in his life when knowledge (enlightenment) dawns upon him. And thereafter he renounces the world. Through this process (of conception-birth-growth-enlightenment-renunciation) he becomes a mahāmuni — a great sage.

ANNOTATION 25. In the first week after conception, the "kalala" (embryo) is formed; in the second week the "arūda" is developed; which later on develops into a foetus; and then, the muscles and limbs begin to grow. The words 'abhisaṃbhūta', 'abhisaṃjāta', and 'abhinivvatta' respectively denote the stages of the development of the embryo, foetus and muscles, and limbs.

२६. तं परवकमंतं परिदेवमाणा, "मा ने चयाहि" इति ते वदन्ति ।
छंदोवणीया अज्झोववन्ना, अक्कंदकारी जणगा रुवन्ति ॥

26. Taṃ parakkamaṃtaṃ paridevamāṇā, "mā ne cayāhi".
iti te vadamāti.
Chāṇdovañīyā ajjhovavannā, akkaṇḍakārī jaṇagā ru-vamāti.

26. When (after becoming enlightened, inspired by the spirit of self-discipline), a person proceeds to renounce the world and embrace asceticism, his parents begin to lament and say, "Do not leave us, please. We respect each other's feelings. We have affection for you." Bewailing thus, his parents cry bitterly.

२७ अतारिसे मुणी, णो ओहतरए, जणगा जेण विप्पजढा ।

27. Atārise muṇī, ṇo ohaṁtarae, jaṇagā jeṇa vippajaḍhā.

27. (They plaintively cry:) "Any person who has deserted his parents can neither be a muṇī, nor can he cross the ocean of 'samsāra' (mundane existence). "

२८. सरणं तत्थ णो समेति । किह्णाम से तत्थ रमति ?

28. Saraṇaṁ tattha ṇo sameti. Kiha nāma se tattha ramati ?

28. He does not go back to his relatives, (in spite of their lamentation). For, how can an enlightened soul revel in the pleasures of family-life?

२९. एयं णाण सया समणुवासिज्जासि ।

— त्ति वेमि ।

29. Eyaṁ nāṇaṁ sayā samaṇuvasiḍḍhāsi.

— Tti bemi.

29. Always follow this Knowledge meticulously.

— I say so.

SECTION II

बीओ उद्देशो

Bio Uddeso

कम्मपरिच्चायधुत-पदं

३०. आतुरं लोयमायाए, चइत्ता पुव्वसंजोगं हिच्चा उवसमं वसित्ता
बभचेरम्मि वसु वा अणुवसु वा जाणित्तु धम्मं अहा-तहा, अहेगे
तमचाइ कुसीला ।

Kamma-pariccāyadhuta-padam

30. Āturaṃ loyamāyāe, caittā puvvasaṃjogaṃ hiccā uvasamaṃ vasittā bambhācerammaṃ vasu vā aṇuvasu vā jāṇittu dhammaṃ ahā-tahā, ahege tamacāi kusilā.

The Dhuta of the Abandonment of Karma

30. Some unrighteous munis unable to abide by the ascetic conduct, despite their having known this world to be afflicted (with passions etc.), having severed off all their former connections, having even practised tranquillization of mind, having taken to ascetic life (or having remained in the guidance of the preceptor) and having known rightly the duties of a lay follower as well as those of a monk.

३१. वत्थ पडिग्गह कबल पायपुच्छण विउसिज्जा ।

31. Vatthaṃ paḍiggaham kambalaṃ pāyapumicchaṇaṃ viusijjā.

31. (They give up their paraphernalia such as) monastic cloaks, almsbowls, blankets, and dust-wipers (or soft brushes).

३२ अणुपुव्वेण अणहियासेमाणा परीसहे दुरहियासए ।

32. Anupuvvena aṇahiyāsemaṇā paṛisahe durahiyāsaē.

32. (They give up the ascetic life simply) because they are unable to endure the intolerable hardships which continue to become successively severer.

ANNOTATION 32. The hardships (rigours) fall in two categories: agreeable and disagreeable. The temptation of sensual pleasure arising out of sound, beauty, etc. is agreeable hardship. On encountering these agreeable hardships, if one indulges in sensual pleasures, and on their cessation, if one reminisces them, he cannot endure these rigours. The converse of this is equally true. The same is the case with the 'disagreeable' hardships.

३३. कामे ममायमाणस्स इयाणि वा मुहुत्ते वा अपरिमाणाए भेदे ।

33. Kāme mamāyamāṇassa iyāṇiṃ vā muhutte vā aparimāṇāe bhede.

33. (One gives up the ascetic life) on account of infatuation with sensuality; his death may occur at that very moment or within a muhūrt (i.e. 48 minutes) or any time.

ANNOTATION 33. The enjoyment of sensual pleasures is also not free from obstacles, death being the most unsurmountable.

३४. एव से अतराइएहिं कामेहिं आकेवलिएहिं अवितिण्णा चेए ।

34. Evaṃ se aṃtarāiehiṃ kāmehiṃ ākevaliehiṃ avitiṇṇā cee.

34. Thus they (such people) can never overcome carnality which is fraught with many obstacles and conflicts.

ANNOTATION 34. Sensuality is always attended by obstacles, conflicts and absence of satiety. Driven by the desire of pleasure, man wants to enjoy sensual indulgence but in course of his enjoyment of carnal passions, he faces obstacles like deprivation (of the object of enjoyment), death, disease, etc. He craves for the most agreeable and unalloyed enjoyment of sensual pleasures, but his efforts are thwarted by disagreeable impediments in his way. Insatiability being the characteristic of sensual pleasures, they are never satisfying. Consequently, craving for worldly delights increases in inverse proportion to their indulgence. This makes it impossible to transcend them.

३५. अहेगे धम्म मादाय आयाणप्पभिइ सुपणिहि चरे ।

35. Ahege dhamma mādāya āyāṇappabhiṃ supaṇihie care.

35. Some one (else) who is initiated into the ascetic way of life and who has subdued his mind and senses leads the ascetic life.

३६. अपलीयमाणे दहे ।

36. Apaliyamāṇe -daḍhe

36. Remaining unattached to the worldly pleasures and firm¹ and unshakable (in his belief), (he follows the path of Righteousness).

३७. सव्वं गेहि परिणाय, एस पणए महामुणी ।

37. Savvaṃ gehiṃ paṇiṇāya, esa paṇae mahāmuṇī.

37. Relinquishing fully all (sorts of) attachment and completely dedicating oneself (to Righteousness), one becomes a 'mahāmuṇī' (a great sage).

३८. अइअच्च सव्वतो संगं "ण मह अत्थिस्सि इति एगोहमस्सि ।"

38. Aiacca savvato saṅgaṃ "ṇa maham atthitti iti ego-hamaṃsi."

38. Forswearing all sorts of attachment in their entirety, (he should think in terms of) "No one (or nothing) is mine; hence I exist all by myself".

1. Only he who is patient and possessed of a strong physique can carry the burden (of ascetic life) through.

३६. जयमानं एव विन्दे उपगारे मारुते मते गीयते ।

37. Jayamāṇe eva virate apagāre savvao munde viyanti.

39. Being self-disciplined, he abstains from worldly desires, renounces the household life and becomes completely shorn¹ of (all his evils) and has no fixed abode.

४०. अनेने पग्गुणिम मरित्ता । ओमोयय्याण ।

40. Je aace parivasaṁ saṁcikkhatti omoyariyāc.

40. A muni, who remains naked, practises (the penance called) avamaudarya (i.e. attenuation).

ANNOTATION 40. The terms avamaudarya means attenuation. It is of two kinds.

(a) Physical — Attenuation of food and clothing.

(b) Psychological — Attenuation of passions like anger, etc.

Possession of clothes may provoke anger. The practice of nudism amounts to the practice of the penance of attenuation of passions.

1. The Sthānāṅga Sūtra enumerates ten kinds of munda, literally one who has his head shaved and figuratively one who has stripped off all his evils).

1. Stripped off Anger.
2. Stripped off Conceit.
3. Stripped off Deceit.
4. Stripped off Avarice.
5. Shaven headed — by plucking out hair.
6. Free from the passion relating to the sense of audition.
7. Free from the passion relating to the sense of vision.
8. Free from the passion relating to the sense of odour.
9. Free from the passion relating to the sense of taste.
10. Free from the passion relating to the sense of touch.

४१. से अक्कुट्ठे व हए व लूसिए वा ।

41. Se akkuṭṭhe va hae va lūsie vā

41. Someone may call him names; or beat him up, or maim him.

४२. पलियं पगंथे अदुवा पगंथे ।

42. Paliyaṃ pagamṭhe adwā pagamṭhe.

42. Or someone may also abuse him (by reminding him) of his (past) deeds, or may abuse him using indecent or vituperative language.

ANNOTATION 42. People from all walks of life used to be ordained in the order of the Arhat (Mahāvīra). Some of them who were engaged in mean occupations during their household life were mocked at by people (who referred to their pre-ascetic vocations) with the derisive remarks such as "O weaver! So, you've become a sādhū, eh! What on earth do you know?"; "Listen ye, woodcutter! Look at yourself! Call yourself a sādhū? What about the heap of wood you used to bear on your shoulders only until the other day? Tut! Tut!"

४३. अतहेहिं सद्-फासेहिं, इति सखाए ।

43. Atahehiṃ sadda-phāsehiṃ, iti saṃkhāe.

43. Or someone may swear at him (by addressing him) with false imputations (such as rascal/rogue) and someone may calumniate him of having caused bodily harm like maiming the limbs. The muni should (forbear all this) by dispassionate thinking.

ANNOTATION 43. Dispassionate thinking here means that in the event of revilement, beating or mutilation, a muni should think on these lines:

1. The poor fellow must be influenced by evil spirit.
2. He must be mad.
3. That person must be arrogant.

4. All this must be due to my own past actions, which are now coming to the fore. That is why this ignorantus is calling me names, binding me hand and foot, or beating me up.
5. Let me bear these insults. Only by so doing shall the sharp edges of my past actions (misdeeds) be whittled down.

४४ एगतरे अणायरे अभिण्णाय, तित्तिक्खमाणे परिव्वए ।

44. Egatare aṇṇayare abhinñāya, tittikkhamāṇe parivvāe.

44. Experiencing (the onset of) one or various kinds (of rigours), a muni ought to display forbearance and cheerfully follow the ascetic path.

४५ जे य हिरी, जे य अहिरीमणा ।

45. Je ya hīrī, je ya ahirīmaṇā.

45. (A muni ought to remain unaffected by) rigours of an embarrassing nature (e. g. rigours of nudity) or otherwise (rigours of climate, such as excess of cold or heat, etc.) (and happily move along the path of asceticism).

४६ चित्था सव्वं विसोत्तियं, फासे फासे समियदंसणे ।

46. Ciccā savvaṃ visottiyam, phāse phāse samiyadam-saṇe.

46. Possessed of Spiritual Experience, a muni should not let his mind waver. He should react to all sorts of external environment with complete equanimity.

४७ एते भो ! णणिणा वुत्ता, जे लोगंसि अणागमणधम्मिणो ।

47. Ete bho! ṇaṇiṇā vuttā, je logamsi anāgamaṇadham-miṇo.

47. In the spiritual field, only he is truly called a nude, who does not go back to worldly life, after having renounced it for good.

४८ आणाए मामगं धम्मं ।

48. Āṇāe māmagam̐ dhammam̐.

48. The *muni*s who are conversant with the Way of life I have laid down carry out my injunctions (throughout their life and observe asceticism).

ANNOTATION 48. The commentator has interpreted this aphorism in two ways:

(a) Muni should follow the Way of life in accordance with my exhortation (ājñā),

(b) Nothing belongs to me except the disciplined Way of life, hence let me carry out the instructions of the Tirthankara and follow aright this path.

However, the traditional interpretation which is more prevalent is: "My religion can be practised only if one acts according to my commandments."

We have translated here the word 'āṇāe' as 'ājñāya', for 'māmagam̐ dhammam̐' is in the accusative case.

४९. एत उत्तरवादे, इह माणवानं वियाहिते ।

49. Esa uttaravāde, iha māṇavāṇam̐ viyāhite.

49. This Golden Principle has been laid down for the people of the world.

ANNOTATIONS 47-49. If, after having accepted the ascetic way of life, one goes back to his family life, he is said to be an 'āgamana dharma'. The reason for going back to one's family life is inability to forbear various kinds of rigours and hardships. A person who withstands enticements of sensual pleasure, etc., rigours like being up-braided, nudism and begging alms, does not return to his family life. He becomes what is known as "anāgamana dharma." Bhagavān Mahāvīra laid down the principles of non-violence, and forbearance of hardships as the Way of life. Only if a person is conversant with it, can he remain completely unperturbed by the onset of various hardships; and it is only that person who remains unperturbed by them unto his last breath, can truly lead a life of asceticism. The ability to forbear all kinds of hardships and not to relinquish the ascetic way of life, inspite of them is called the "Uttaravāda" (i. e. The Golden Principle).

५०. एत्थोवरए त ज्ञोसमाणे ।

50. Etthovarae taṃ jhosamāṇe.

50. A sādhaka who abstains from sensual enjoyment follows this Golden Principle (Uttaravāda).

५१. आयाणिज्जं परिणाय, परिआएण विगिचइ ।

51. Āyāṇijjaṃ pariṇāya, pariāṇa vigimci.

51. After having known the causes leading to the influx of karma, he renders them inoperative by the mode of (self-discipline i. e. ascetic life).

५२. इहमेगसि एगचरिया होति ।

52. Ihamegesim egacariyā hoti.

52. Some sādhus practise solitary asceticism — i. e. they take the vow of a wandering recluse.

५३. तत्थियराइयरोहि कुलेहि सुद्धेसणाए सव्वेसणाए ।

53. Tatthiyarāiyarehuṃ kulehiṃ suddhesanāe savvesanāe.

53. They (lead an ascetic life), collecting alms from various families after carefully and thoroughly ascertaining its propriety.

ANNOTATION 53. The term 'sarveṣaṇā' implies all rules of begging food and eating. A recluse ought to observe these rules strictly.

५४. से मेहावी परिव्वए ।

54. Se mehāvī parivvāe.

54. Such a wise recluse should keep moving (from village to village).

५५. सुग्गि अदुवा दुग्गि ।

55. Subbhiṃ aduṇṇā dubbhiṃ

55. (He should eat whatever food he gets—) be it flavoury, or even unsavory, (with the least keenness or resentment).

५६. अदुवा तत्थ भेरवा ।

56. Aduṇṇā tattha bheravā.

56. Or during the period of sādhana in solitariness (a muni should never be daunted by) dreadful (sights and sounds around him).

५७. पाणा पाणे किलेसंति ।

57. Pāṇā pāṇe kilesanti.

57. (He should not be panicky) if a beast of prey fatally attacks him.

५८. ते फासे पुट्ठो धीरो अहियासेज्जासि ।

—ति बेमि ।

58. Te phāse puttḥo dhiro ahīyāsejjāsi.

— Tti bemī.

58. On confrontation with such untoward circumstances (hardships), the courageous muni should patiently bear them.

— I say so.

SECTION III

तद्वञ्चो उद्देशो

Taio Uddeso

उवगरणपरिक्कायधुत-पदं

५९ एयं खु मुणी आयाणं सया सुअक्खायधम्मो विधूतकप्पे
णिज्जोसइता ।

Uvagarāṇapariccāyadhuta-padam

59. Eyaṃ khu muṇī āyaṇaṃ sayā suakkhāyadhamme vidhūtakappe ṇijhosaitā.

The Dhuta of the Abandonment of Clothes

59. A muni who rightly follows this well-propounded faith¹

1. The literal meaning of the term suakkhāe (skt. su-ākhyātaḥ) is "well-propounded." Bhagavān Mahāvīra had propounded the religion of equanimity. It has the following characteristics:

- (1) It is naiṛyātrika — i.e. it is capable of leading to nirvāna (i.e. liberation).
- (2) It is satya (i.e. true), for it adopts the relativist (or non-absolutist) approach.
- (3) It is saṃśuddha (i.e. pure), for it is devoid of attachment, aversion and delusion.
- (4) It is pratyutpanna i.e. it is instantaneously capable of checking the influx of karma-particles and exhausting the effects of past actions.

That is why it is qualified as "su-ākhyāta."

and who leads a life of Dhuta-conduct, abandons (once and for all) the use of *ādāna*¹ (i. e. clothes).

६०. जे अचेले परिवुसिए, तस्स णं भिक्खुस्स णो एव भवइ—परिजुण्णे
मे वत्थे वत्थ जाइस्सामि, सुत्त जाइस्सामि, सूइ जाइस्सामि,
सध्विस्सामि, सीवीस्सामि, उक्कसिस्सामि, वोक्कसिस्सामि,
परिहिस्सामि, पाउणिस्सामि ।

60. Je acele parivusie, tassa ñaṃ bhikkhussa no evaṃ bhavai — pariḷuṇṇe me vatthe vatthaṃ jāissāmi, suttaṃ jāissāmi, sūiṃ jāissāmi, saṃdhissāmi, sīvīssāmi, ukkasissāmi, vokkalissāmi, parihissāmi, pāuṇissāmi.

60. A muni who abides by the vow of nudity is never vexed (by ideas like):

"This cloth of mine is tattered; I will, therefore, have to beg a new one. To mend the torn cloth, I shall have to ask for thread and needle, I shall have to stitch and/or sew it or I shall have to stitch or cut it to size (as the case may be). I shall have to wear it or wrap myself with it (and so on and so forth)."

६१. अदुवा तत्थ परक्कमतं भुज्जोअचेल तणफासा फुसति, सीयफासा
फुसति, तेउफासा फुसति, दंसमसगफासा फुसति ।

61. Aduvā tattha parakkamaṃtaṃ bhuḷḷo acelaṃ taṇaphāsā phusaṃti, siyaphāsā phusaṃti, teuphāsā phusaṃti, daṃsamasagaphāsā phusaṃti.

61. Or practising nudism, he is often oppressed by pricks of grass, the severities of heat and cold, and the stings of gad-flies and mosquitoes.

1. The author of the Cūṇi has interpreted the word ādāna in the sense of the trio of Knowledge, Perception and Conduct, whereas the commentator has interpreted it in the sense of "karma" or clothes. Contextually, however, the meaning "clothes" appears to be more appropriate.

६२ एगयरे अणयरे विरुवरूवे फासे अहियासेति अचेले ।

62. Egayare aṇṇayare virūvarūve phāse ahiyāseti acele.

62. The nude monk bears hardships of one or various sorts.

६३ लाघव आगममाणे ।

63. Lāghavaṃ āgamamāṇe.

63. He feels lighter in spirit.

६४ तवे से अभिसमण्णागए भवति ।

64. Tave se abhisamaṇṇāgae bhavati.

64. The practice of nudism by a muni facilitates for him the observance of austerities like curtailment of monastic paraphernalia and kāya-kleśa penances.

६५ जहेय भगवता पवेदित तमेव अभिसमेच्चा सव्वतो सव्वत्ताए
समत्तमेव समभिजाणिया ।

65. Jaheyaṃ bhagavatā paveditaṃ tameva abhisameccā savvato savvattāe samattameva samabhijāṇiyā.

65. The ascetic nudism which has been recommended for a muni by Bhagavān Mahāvīra should be interpreted in the same sense in which it is meant and it should inspire the muni to practise equanimity thoroughly (i. e. no one should be despised).

ANNOTATION 65. Some munis are more scantily clad than the others, i. e. the number of clothes possessed by each varies. But this does not give them a feeling of hauteur towards their brethren. For they realize that all of them are disciples of the Tīrthaṅkaras. This difference in discipline is due to one's individual physical structure and temperament. Nevertheless, a muni who conforms to nudism does not underestimate or despise another muni who is a non-nudist.

The Āyāra-cūlā (5/21) records that a muni, accepting self-imposed vows with regards to scantiness of clothes, should not deem — "These munis labour under false pre-sumptions; I do not." On the contrary, he should think in these terms- "We are all practising self-restraint according to the Instruction of the Tirthaṅkara."

This, in fact, comprises the observance of "saṃatva" (practising equanimity).

सरीरलाघवधुत-पदं

६६ एव तेसि महावीराण चिरराइं पुव्वाइं वासाणि रीयमाणानं
दवियाण पास अहियासियं ।

Sarīralāghavadhuta-padam.

66. Evam tesu mahāvīrāṇaṃ cīraraṃ puṃvāṃ vāsaṇi rīyamāṇāṇaṃ daviyāṇaṃ pāsa ahiyāsiyaṃ.

The Dhuta of Attenuation of the Body

66. See! How all these brave and self-disciplined munis endured various hardships, having been initiated into asceticism during the prime of their life and how they adhered all their life to self-restraint.

६७ आगयपण्णाणानं किंसा बाहा भवति, पयणुए य मंससोणिए ।

67. Āgayapaṇṇāṇāṇaṃ kiṃsā bāhā bhavaṃti, payaṇuē ya maṃsasopīe.

67. The muni who most painstakingly acquires profound Scriptural Knowledge, (attenuates his body to such an extent that) his arms become lean, with very little flesh and blood on his body.

ANNOTATION 67. During the period of scriptural studies, a muni undertakes fasting, dieting or eating non-fat-producing food. This leads to emaciation of his body indicated by his lean and thin arms. On account of eating little or decalorised food, little nourishment is produced in the body, which in its turn is responsible for under-production of flesh and blood. Consequently, the body gets emaciated. Also, because of constant preoccupation with hard studies, the body loses weight. Thus austerities — both external and internal — cause attenuation of the body.

The author of the cūṛṇī has pointed out that all the above aphorisms relating to curtailment of belongings are applicable also to the attenuation of the body. Accordingly, these aphorisms (viz. 63, 64 and 65) can be translated thus:

63. A muni who is absorbed in the acquisition of knowledge and practises austerities is blessed with the attenuation of the body.
64. Attenuation of the body facilitates for him the practice of tapa i. e. austerity.
65. Attenuation of the body which has been recommended for a muni by Bhagavān Mahāvira should be interpreted in the same sense in which it is meant, and it should inspire the muni to practise equanimity thoroughly — no one should be despised.

Thus, the muni observing four-months' fast should not despise another muni who has observed only one month's fast. Similarly, a muni observing fasts on alternate days should not deride one who takes his meals daily. So also, should a muni who has made a higher study than another refrain from despising him.

A muni who practises equanimity does not despise others.

६८. विस्सेणि कट्टु, परिण्णाय ।

68. Vissenim kattu, pariṇṇāe.

68. A muni ought to cut across the chain of rāga and dvesa (attachment and aversion) through the discernment (born of equanimity).

६९ एस तिण्णे मुत्ते विरए वियाहिए ति बेमि ।

69. Esa tiṇṇe mutte virāe viyāhie ti bemi.

69. He (who has cut across the chain of attachment and aversion is said to have crossed the ocean of mundane existence), to be emancipated and to have ceased (from worldly activities). I say so.

संजमधुत-पदं

७०. विरयं भिक्खुं रीयंतं, चिररातोसियं, अरती तत्थं किं विधारे ?

Samjamadhuta-padam

70. Virayaṃ bhikkhuṃ rīyaṃtaṃ, cīrarātoṣiyam, aratī-tattha kiṃ vidhārae?

The Dhuta of Self-discipline

70. Can the feeling of boredom dampen the enthusiasm of such monk who, having been initiated into ascetic life for a long while, and having ceased from the enjoyment of sensual pleasures, successively progresses in the practice of self-discipline?

ANNOTATION 70. Weak, wavering, and wayward are the senses of man, and unimaginably far-reaching are the repercussions of Delusion. Bizarre, too, are the consequences of karma. No wonder, therefore, that even a wise soul is led astray by all these.

७१. संधेमाने समुत्थिए ।

71. Saṃdhemāṇe samutthie.

71. Conjoining (every moment of his life with righteousness), and constantly engaged in freeing himself from passions, (a true muni is never deterred from following his path by any possible apathy to asceticism).

ANNOTATION 71. Although a sādhaka endeavours happily to observe self-restraint after having renounced sensual pleasures, he may, during the period of his sādhana, become prone to sensuality arising out of stupor and passions which keep rearing up their ugly heads from time to time. Nevertheless, a conscientious sādhaka unifies religion with the mainstream of self-realization¹. By so doing, he experiences spiritual ecstasy.

1. Starting with the development of his conscious judgement (samyaktva), the sādhaka voluntarily renounces

७२. जहा से बीबे असंवीणे, एव से धम्मो आयरिय-पदेसिए ।

72. Jahā se dīve asaṃdīṇe, evaṃ se dhamme āyariya-padesie

72. Just as an island, unthreatened by water, serves (as a place of refuge for the passengers of a ship), so also does the Religion (i. e. Way of life), laid down by the Tīrthaṅkara, serve (as the mainstay for the people of this world who are bound for the Journey Beyond).

ANNOTATION 72. The word "dīva" can be interpreted in two ways, 'divīpa' (island) and 'dīpa' (lamp or light or light-house). 'Dīpa' gives us 'light' and 'dīvīpa' gives 'shelter' or 'refuge'. Each of these two is of two kinds:

(a) Samdina: In the context of 'island', the word means 'the land which gets flooded with water high tide and becomes dry on ebb'. In the context of 'lamp' (or 'light'), it denotes 'the lamp which is liable to be extinguished.'

(b) Asamdina: In the context of 'island' the word means 'the land which does not get flooded with water.' In the context of 'lamp' or 'light', the word denotes 'perennial sources of light, such as the sun, the moon, various gems, etc.

In the context of religion, 'the Right Knowledge' (samyakva) stands for 'an island affording refuge'.

sensual pleasures and endeavours to find happiness in self-discipline. During the period of his sādhana, however, passionate instincts and impulses which might have been repressed and relegated to the subconscious, may continue to torment him in the form of crude urges for sensual pleasures. Nevertheless the alert (apramatta) sādhaka would constantly reinforce the power of his reasoning mind and weaken the forces of primal urges by systematic practice of meditation. Thus, he canalises his aggressive urges into the mainstream of self-realization.

Samdina Island is equivalent to 'revocable Right Knowledge', whereas Asamdina Island is equivalent to 'irrevocable righteousness'. Knowledge is the lamp (or light). Scriptural Knowledge is 'light that may get dim or extinguished', while Self-knowledge is 'perennial light'.

The enthusiasm in ascetic practices of a muni who is keen in conjoining Righteousness with life is comparable to an asamdina island or lamp.

७३. ते अणवकखमाणा अणतिवाएमाणा दइया मेहाविणो पंडिया ।

73. Te aṇavakamkhamāṇā aṇativāemāṇā dayā mehāvīṇo paṇḍiyā.

73. Such munis do not crave for worldly pleasures, and never 'take others' lives. By virtue of these qualities, they endear themselves to the world (i. e. win recognition in religious circles), and are called sages illuminated by Knowledge of the Self.

विणयधुत-पदं

७४. एवं तेसि भगवतो अणुद्गणे जहा से दिया-पोए ।

Viṇayadhuta-padam

74. Evaṁ tesinḥ bhagavao aṇuṭṭhāṇe jahā se diyā-poe.
The Dhuta of Humbleness

74. Just as the young ones of birds (act in accordance with the instructions of their parents), so should the young disciples abide by the instructions of their learned teachers (who are like islands for refuge).

ANNOTATION 74. When the young of a bird is still in the egg and even after being hatched, it keeps getting sustenance from the warmth of parent's feathers. It is fed and taught by its parents, until it learns to fly, when it leaves them and is on its own.

The behaviour of a newly initiated muni has been compared to the behavioural patterns of the young ones of birds.

A young disciple remains under the care of his guru, until he gains full knowledge and maturity and is able to lead, on his own, a life of solitary asceticism.

७५ एव ते सिस्सा दिया य राओ य अनुपुव्वेण वाइय ।

—त्ति वेमि ।

75. Evam te sissā diyā ya rāo ya anupuvvəṇa vāiya.

—Tti bemi.

75. Thus, progressively trained, day and night, a disciple (becomes ultimately competent to attain the Self).

— I say so.

SECTION IV

चउत्थो उद्देशो

Cauttho Uddeso

गोरवपरिच्छायधृत-पदं

७६. एव ते सिस्सा दिया य रामो य, अणुपुब्बेण बाइया तेहि महा-
वीरेहि पण्णाणमतेहि ।

Goravapariccāyadhuta-padam

76. Evam te sissā diyā ya rāo ya, aṇupuvveṇa vāiyā tehiṃ mahāvīrehiṃ paṇṇānamatehiṃ.

The Dhuta of Abandonment of Conceit

76. (Like the progressive development of the young of birds) is the successive progress, day and night, of the disciples duly trained by painstaking and wise gurus.

७७. तेसिंदिए पण्णाणमुवलब्भ हिच्चा उवसमं फारुसिय समादियति ।

77. Tesimti paṇṇānamuvalabbha hiccā uvasamaṃ pharusiyaṃ samādiyaṃti.

77. Despite having gained the Scriptural Knowledge and having learnt the practice of tranquillity from their preceptors, some disciples (conceited with knowledge) behave rudely i.e. show disrespect for their teachers' speech and style.

७८. वसित्ता बंभचेरंति आण 'तं णो' त्ति मण्णमाणा ।

78. Vasittā baṃbhaceramsi āṇaṃ 'taṃ ṇo' tti maṇṇamaṇā.

78. Despite leading a life of self-restraint in the care of teachers, (they reject) the injunctions (of their preceptors) (on the excuse that) they are not the injunctions (of the Tīrthāṅkara).

७९ अघायं तु सोच्चा णिसम्म समणुज्जा जीविस्सामो एगे
णिकखम्म ते—

असंभवंता विज्झत्तमाणा, कामेहिं गिद्धा अज्जोववण्णा ।

समाहिमाघायमज्जोसयंता, सत्थारमेव फरुसं वदन्ति ॥

79. Agghāyaṃ tu soccā ṇisamma samaṇuṇṇā jīviṣṣāmo ege nikkhamma te — .

Asambhavaṃtā vidadajjhamāṇā, kāmehiṃ giddhā ajjhova-vaṇṇā.

Samāhimāghāyamajhosayaṃtā, satthārameva pharusāṃ vadaṃti.

79. Some disciples, having heard and understood the sermons, and having taken up the vow that they would lead a life of the highest form of self-discipline, are not true to their pledge. Consumed by the fire of passion (kaṣāya), infatuated with sensual delights, and stung by the avidity (for grandeur, delicacies, and prosperity), they do not adhere to the samādhi (i. e. subduing senses and the mind) laid down by the Tīrthāṅkara. (This is not all). They even flout the authority of the Sāstā (i. e. the Tīrthāṅkara), (if the Preceptor tries to convince them on something by quoting Him).

८०. सीलमंता उवसंता, संत्ताए रीयमाणा । असीला अनुवयमाणा ।

80. Sīlamāntā uvasāntā, saṃkhāe rīyamāṇā. Asīlā anu- vayamāṇā

80. They vilify even the noble who have subdued their passions and are wisely painstaking in the observance of self-discipline as ignoble.

८१. बितिया मंदस्स बालया ।

81. Bitiyā maṇḍassa bālāyā

81. These stupid ones, thereby, compound their folly.

८२. नियट्टमाणा वेगे आयार-गोयरमाइक्खति णाणभट्ठा दसण-लूसिणो ।

82. Niyattamāṇā vege āyāra-goyaramāikkhamti ṇāṇabhatṭhā daṁsaṇa lūsiṇo.

82. (It is a wonder how) such people, vitiated by perversion of knowledge, defilement of creed and deviation from self-discipline, expound (their own) ethics.

ANNOTATION 82. A sādhaka who is perverted in knowledge and faith, arrogantly lauds his own conduct to the skies. Disregarding the true touchstone of non-violence and self-denial, he recognises only expediency as touchstone of his conduct.

८३. णममाणा एगे जीवित विप्परिणामेति ।

83. Ṇamamāṇā ege jīvitam vippariṇamerīti.

83. Although dedicated to (the Tīrthaṅkara's Instruction and the ācārya's discipline) some munis ruin their life (due to overwhelming force of delusion).

८४. पुट्ठा वेगे नियट्ठंति, जीवियस्सेव कारणा ।

84. Putṭhā vege niyaṭṭanti, jīvியasseva kāraṇā.

84. Succumbing (to hardships), some sādhakas abandon asceticism in favour of living only a life (of pleasures).

८५. निक्खंतं पि तेसिं दुन्निकखत भवति ।

85. Nikkhamtaṁ pi tesim dunnikkhamtaṁ bhavati.

85. The renunciation of those munis (who retraced their steps) is rendered vitiated.

८६. बाल-वयणिज्जा हु ते नरा, पुणो-पुणो जातिं पकप्पेति ।

86. Bala - vayanijjā hu te narā, puṇo-puṇo jātiṁ pakappa- ppemti.

86. They are open to censure even by the laymen. (On account of their attachment to sensuality), they are born again and again.

८७ अहे सम्भवता विद्यायमाणा, अहमंसी विउक्कसे ।

87. Ahe saṁbhavanta viddāyamāpā ahamāṁsī viukkase.
87. In spite of their being on a lower rung (of knowledge), they consider themselves to be learned, and project their ego.

८८ उदासीणे फरुसं वदन्ति ।

88. Udāsīṇe pharusam vadamti.
88. They speak harshly unto even those who have turned (so) neutral to the sense of praise or censure (that they have attained total self-effacement).

८९ पलियं पगंथे अदुवा पगंथे अतर्हेहि ।

89. Paliyaṁ pagamthe aduwa pagamthe atahehim.
89. They taunt these neutral mumis for their past actions (of their pre-ascetic period), or use indecent language for them, and speak harshly unto them with false accusations.

९० त मेहावी जाणिज्जा धम्म ।

90. Tam mehāvī jāṇijjā dhammam.
90. (It is only an unrighteous person who behaves in this way). That is why it is imperative that a conscientious sādhaka should know Righteousness.

९१ अहम्मट्ठी तुमसि णाम बाले, आरम्भट्ठी, अणुवयमाणे, हणमाणे,
घायमाणे, हणवो यावि समणुजाणमाणे, घोरे धम्मे उदीरिए,
उवेह्हणं अणाणाए ।

91. Ahammatthī tumasī ṇāma bāle, ārambhatthī, aṇu-vayamaṇe, haṇamaṇe, ghāyamaṇe, haṇao yāvi samaṇ-ujāṇamaṇe, ghore dhamme udīrie, uwehai ṇam aṇā-nāe.

91. (The preceptor admonishes an unrighteous sādhaka thus:) "You like unrighteousness. You are an ignominious. You not only indulge yourself in sinful acts, but also support (others who do so). You are a killer of living beings, you make others to do so, and approve of others doing so. Bhagavān Mahāvīra has expounded the Austere Way (of cessation from all influxes of karma). But you are neglecting it by transgressing His Instruction."

९२. एस विसण्णे वितहे वियाहिते त्ति बेमि ।

92. Esa viṣaṇṇe vitadde viyāhite tti bemi.

92. One (who neglects the Austere Path) is called "Viṣanna" (i. e. embogged by sensual pleasures) and 'Vitarka' (i. e. a killer of beings). — I say so.

९३. 'किमणे भो ! जणेण करिस्सामि'त्ति मण्णमाणा एव पेगे

वइत्ता,

मातरं पितरं हिच्छा, नातमो य परिग्गहं ।

वीरायमाणा समुद्धाप, अविहिता सुव्वया दंता ॥

93. 'Kiṃapeṇa bho! jaṇeṇa karissāmi' tti maṇṇamāṇā-evam pege vaittā,

Mātaraṃ pitaraṃ hiccā, nātao ya pariggaham.

Virāyamāṇā samutthāe, avihimsā suvvaṃyā dantā.

93. (Addressing themselves) the sādhakas say, "O my Soul! What have I to do with these relatives of mine?" Thus contemplating, they boldly renounce their parents, their kith and kin and all their worldly possessions. They thus become abstainers from violence, observers of perfect asceticism, and subjugators of the senses.

९४. अहेगे पस्स दीणे उप्पइए षड्वियमाणे ।

94. Ahege passa dīṇe uppaie paḍivayaṃāṇe.

94. (In contrast to these), see those who (lacking courage) become wretched and fall from the path of self-discipline.

६५. वसट्ठा कायरं जणा लूसगा भवति ।

95. Vasattā kāyaraṃ jaṇā lūsagā bhavanti.

95. Such cowards who are afflicted with sensuality are transgressors (of their ascetic pledges).

६६. अहमेगेसि सिलोए पावए भवइ, "से समणविम्भते समणविम्भते" ।

96. Ahamegesim siloe pāvae bhavaī, "se samaṇavibbhaṃte samāṇavibbhaṃte."

96. Some munis (who flinch from the course of asceticism), earn notoriety, thus: "These apostate ascetics!"

६७. पासहेगे समण्णागएहि असमण्णागए, णममाणेहि अणममाणे, विरतेहि अविरते, दविएहि अदविए ।

97. Pāsahege samañṇāgaehiṃ asamañṇāgae, ṇamamaṇe-hiṃ anamaṇāṇe, viratehiṃ avirate, daviēhiṃ adaviē.

97. Differentiate between the fallen monks who do not observe the ascetic code with fidelity and those who do so; who are not dedicated to self-discipline, and those who are; who have not ceased from enjoyment of sexual pleasures and those who have; and, finally, who are not affluent with Right Conduct, and those who are.

६८. अभिसमेच्चा पडिए मेहावी णिट्ठियट्ठे वीरे आगमेण सया परक्कमेज्जासि ।

—सि बेमि ।

98. Abhisameccā paṇḍie mehāvī ñiṭṭhiyaṭṭhe vīre āga-menaṃ sayā parakkamejjāsi.

— Tti bemi.

98. Having realised (the consequences of deviation from asceticism), a learned, wise and courageous muni blessed with the accomplishment (of the practice of self-restraint) should exert himself in tune with the (purport of) Scriptural Exhortations.

— I say so.

SECTION V

पंचमो उद्देशो

Paiṃcama Uddeso

तितिक्षाधृत-पदं

९९. से गिहेसु वा गिहत्तरेसु वा, गामेसु वा गामत्तरेसु वा, नगरेसु वा
नगरत्तरेसु वा, जणवएसु वा जणवयत्तरेसु वा, सत्तेगइया जणा
लूसगा भवत्ति, अदुवा—
कासा फुसंति ते फासे, पुट्ठो वीरोहियासए ।

Titikkhādhuta-padam

99. Se gihesu vā gihamātaresu vā, gāmesu vā gāmaṃta-resu vā, nāgareshu vā, nagaramātaresu vā, jaṇavaesu vā jaṇavayamātaresu vā, samtegayiā jaṇā lūsagā bha-vaṃti, aduvā —
phāsā phusaṃti te phāse, puṭṭho vīrohiyāsaē.

The Dhuta of Forbearance

99. (Moving along) from house to house, village to village, town to town, or county to county, (or practising suspension of all voluntary physical activities), a muni encounters man-made hardships, both agreeable and disagreeable, or natural hardships, (such as excesses of heat and cold, or stings of gadflies and mosquitoes, etc.) Assailed (by them) the undaunted muni should forbear them.

धम्मोवदेसधृत-पदं

१००. ओए समियदंसणे ।

Dhammovādesadhuta-padam

100. Oe samiyadamsane.

The Dhuta of Sermons

100. An unbiased muni commanding Right Perception (or Spiritual Experience) (should expatiate upon religion).

१०१. बयं लोगतस्स जाणित्ता पाईण पढीण दाहिण उदीण, आइक्खे
विसेए किट्ठे वेयवी ।

101. Dayam loğassa jāñittā pāiṇaṃ paḍiṇaṃ dāhiṇaṃ udi- ṇaṃ, āikkhe vibhāe kiṭṭe veyavi.

101. Keeping in mind compassion to all the living beings of the world in all directions — East, West, South, North, a muni who has mastered the Scriptures should expound (Religion), expatiate upon its various facets and laud (as beneficial outcome).

१०२. से उट्ठिएसु वा अणुट्ठिएसु वा सुस्सुसमाणेसु पवेदए—सत्ति, विरत्ति, उवसम, गिन्वाण, सोयविय, अज्जविय, महविय,
-लाघविय, अणहवत्तिय ।

102. Se uṭṭhiesu vā aṇuṭṭhiesu vā sussaṣṣamaṇesupavedae— saṃtiṃ, viratiṃ, uvasamaṃ, mivvānaṃ, soyaṇiyaṃ, ajjaviyaṃ, maddaviyaṃ, lāghaviyaṃ, anaivattiyaṃ.

102. To all those who are desirous of hearing the sermons, albeit they may or may not be prepared to put them into practice in their life, a muni should expatiate upon the following: Tranquillity, cessation from desire, pacification of passions, peace (nirvāṇa), freedom from avarice (sauca), straightforwardness, gentleness, curtailment (of possessions) and non-violence.

१०३. सन्नेसिं पाणाण सन्नेसिं भूयाण सन्नेसिं जीवाण सन्नेसिं सत्ताण
अणुवीह भिक्खु धम्ममाइक्खेज्जा ।

103. Savvesiṃ pāpāṇaṃ savvesiṃ bhūyaṇaṃ savvesiṃ jī- vāṇaṃ savvesiṃ sattāṇaṃ anuvū bhikkhū dhamma-māikkhejjā.

103. A monk should discerningly expound the principles of religion to all living and sentient beings.

१०४. अणुवीइ भिक्खू धम्ममाइक्खमाणे—णो अत्ताण आसाएज्जा,
णो पर आसाएज्जा, णो अण्णाइ पाणाइ भूयाइ जीवाइ सत्ताइ
आसाएज्जा ।

104. Aṇuvī bhikkhū dhammamāikkhamāṇe — ṇo attāṇaṃ āsāejjā, ṇo paraṃ āsāejjā, ṇo aṇṇāṃ pāṇāṃ bhūyāṃ jīvāṃ sattāṃ āsāejjā.

104. A monk discerningly expounding the principles of religion should neither be an impediment to himself, nor to others; nor to any living and sentient beings.

१०५. से अणासादए अणासादमाणे वुज्झमाणे पाणाण भूयाण
जीवाण सत्ताण, जहा से दीवे असंदीणे, एव से भवइ सरणं
महामुणी ।

105. Se aṇāsādae aṇāsādamāṇe vujjhamāṇāṇaṃ pāṇāṇaṃ bhūyāṇaṃ jīvāṇaṃ sattāṇaṃ, jahā se dīve asaṃdīṇe, evaṃ se bhavaī saraṇaṃ mahāmuṇī.

105. A great sage who does not cause obstruction of any kind to others¹, and who does not (deliver such religious discourses) which may become the cause of violence to living beings and may become the source of obtaining his own livelihood, is a great refuge, like

1. The author of the Cūṛṇi has explained the word "aṇāsādamāṇe", thus: 'A muni should not propound a religion which causes harm to any kind of beings, living or sentient.' The alternate translation suggested by the author of the Cūṛṇi has been adopted in our translation above.

"Aṇāsātamaṇottī taḥā ṇa kaheṭi jahā pāṇabhūyājīvasattānaṃ āsāyaṇā bhavati, appaṃ vā, ahavā dhammaṃ kaheṃto ṇa kiṃci āsādae annaṃ vā pāṇaṃ vā, jaṃ bhaṇitaṃ — tadatṭha ṇa kaheṭi.

The author of the Vṛtti translates it thus: "not causing harm to anyone through the instrumentality of another."
— (Parairanāśātayan).

an island, unaffected by water for the (marooned passengers of a ship), for all living beings who are being carried away by the currents (of births and deaths).

ANNOTATION 100-105. A religious preacher must possess certain qualifications tested on the touchstone of truth and non-violence. In the above paragraphs, the following five qualifications have been given:

- (a) Freedom from bias.
- (b) Right Perception.
- (c) Friendliness with all living-beings.
- (d) Mastery of Scriptural Knowledge.
- (e) Not causing hindrance to others.

According to the Nāgārjuna's redaction of the Scriptures, only that muni is competent to expound religious doctrines in public who is widely learned and an erudite scholar of the Āgamas, is adept in logic and illustration, able to discourse and sermonize, and understands the proprieties of time, place and audience. In this context, attention is drawn to the aphorism 2/177 (viz. Ke yaṁ purise kaṁ ca naye). Preaching for the sake of earning one's livelihood is forbidden.

कसायपरिच्चायधुत-पदं

१०६ एवं से उट्ठिए ठियप्पा, अणिहे अचले चले, अबहिलेस्से
परिव्वए ।

Kasāyapariccāyadhuta-padam

106. Evam se utthiṇe thiyappā, aṇihe acale cale, abahilesse parivvāe.

The Dhuta of Freedom from Passions

106. A muni who has thus risen up for the practice of self-discipline, who is absolutely tranquil and staid, who does not hold himself back from the fullest exertion, who remains unvacillated (by rigours and hardships), who is engaged in giving a vigorous shake-up to the karma and who keeps his instincts attuned with self-discipline, should blissfully lead a well-balanced ascetic life (unobstructed by any impediments coming in his way).

१०७. संज्ञाय पेसलं धम्मं, दिट्ठिं परिणिव्वुडे ।

107. Samkhāya pesalaṃ dhammaṃ, diṭṭhimaṃ parivvude.

107. After having known this magnificent Way of life, a muni of insight should extinguish (the fire of his sensuality and passions).

१०८. तम्हा संगं ति पासह ।

108. Tamhā saṅgaṃ ti pāsaha.

108. Therefore (i. e. for the extinction of sensuality and passions), perceive Attachment.

ANNOTATION 108. The term saṅga can have three meanings — attachment, sensations like sound, etc., and impediments.

Attachment can be forsworn by perceiving it. One who does not perceive it, cannot forswear it. In the method of sādhana laid down by Bhagavān Mahāvīra, knowledge and perception amount to watchfulness or alertness. Therefore, it constitutes an important method of forswearing attachment. The stronger the Knowledge and Perception, the weaker the effects of karma. On the weakening of the effects of karma, attachment is extinguished by itself.

१०९. गंघेहि गद्धिया नरा, विसण्णा कामविप्पिया ।

109. Gaṃthehiṃ gadhiyā narā, viṣaṇṇā kāmavippiyā.

109. For persons attached to worldly possessions and luxuries, and bogged down (in sensual pleasures), sensuality becomes a serious impediment¹.

११०. तम्हा लूहामो णो परिवित्तसेज्जा ।

110. Tamhā lūhāmo ño parivittasejjā.

1. Vipprīyā — Vigghatatti (vighnatā) vipplitatti egatṭha — Cūṛṇi, p. 242.

110. Therefore, a muni should not be weary of self-discipline.

१११ जस्सिमे आरभा सव्वतो सव्वत्ताए सुपरिण्णाया भवति, जेसिमे लूसिणो णो परिवित्तसत्ति, से वत्ता कोह च माण च माय च लोभ च ।

111. Jassime ārambhā savvato savvattāe supariṇṇāyā bhavaṃti, jesime lūsiṇo ño parivittasaṃti, se vaṃtā ko-haṃ ca māṇaṃ ca māyaṃ ca lobhaṃ ca.

111. A muni who completely forswears all those proclivities for violence from which violent people do not refrain, eschews all passions like anger, pride, deceit and avarice, (and thus breaks the fetters of delusion).

११२ एस तुट्ठे वियाहिते त्ति बेमि ।

112. Esa tutṭhe viyāhite tti bemi.

112. Such a person (who snaps the shackles of kaṣṣāya) is called a 'breaker' (trotaka). I say so.

११३ कायस्स विओवाए, एस संगामसीसे वियाहिए ।

से हु पारंगमे मुणी, अवि हम्ममाणे फलगावयट्ठे, कालोवणीते कल्लेज्ज कालं, जाव सरीरभेड ।

—त्ति बेमि ।

113. Kāyassa viovāe, esa saṅgāmasīse viyāhie

Se hu pāraṅgame muni, avi hammamaṇe phalagāva-yatthi, kālovaṇīte kaḷḷeja kalam, jāva sarīrabheu.

— Tti bemi.

113. (Voluntary and brave) abandonment of the body when Death arrives is like fighting on the front line of a battle. Only that muni (who is not vanquished in this battle) fulfils his mission.

Just as he, on encountering various kinds of hardships, does not get perturbed by them, so also should he not feel perturbed (on encountering Death), by virtue of the fact that he has his body attenuated and his passion well-curtailed through vigorous external and internal austerities, like (the two sides of) a beam well-chiselled and evened out. When Death is imminent, he should allow it to take its own time (rather than wish it immediately), until at last the soul is separated from the body.

— I say so.

ANNOTATION 113. Death is really a battle. One who comes out victorious in the battle is blessed with splendor, whereas one who is vanquished is deprived of it. Similarly, a sādhaka, engaged in the battle with Death, attains the pinnacle of sādhana, if he boldly remains unattached. On the contrary, if he gets defeated in the battle (i. e. if the fear and anticipation of Death haunts him), he deviates from the path of self-discipline.

Hence, the author of the Āgama has laid down that one should not lose his wits, on encountering the Death. But for this, one has to be prepared beforehand; one cannot hope to escape Delusion at the eleventh hour. This preparation consists of attenuation of body and passions. Cf. Sūtra-kṛtāṅga Sūtra, 1/7/30.

CHAPTER VIII

EMANCIPATION

अट्टमं अज्झयणं

विमोक्खो

AṬṬHAMAM AJJHAYANAṆAM

VIMOKKHO

SECTION I

पदमो उद्देशो

Padhamo Udeso

असमणुणविमोक्ख-पदं

१. से वेमि—समणुणस्स^१ वा असमणुणस्स वा असणं वा पाणं वा
 खाइम वा साइम वा वत्थ वा पडिग्गहं वा कवल वापायपुच्छणं
 वा णो पाएज्जा, णो णिमतेज्जा, णो कुज्जा वेयावडिय—पर
 आढायमाणे ति वेमि ।

ATTHAMAM AJJHAYANAM
 VIMOKKHO

Asamaṇunṇavimokkha-padam

1. Se bemi — samaṇunṇassa¹ vā asamaṇunṇassa vā asaṇam vā paṇam vā khāimam vā sāimam vā vattham vā paḍiggaham vā kaṃbalaṃ vā pāyapum̐chaṇam vā no pāejjā, no ṇimaṃtejjā, no kujjā veyāvaḍiyaṃ — param̐
 āḍḍhayamāṇe ti bemi.

Avoiding Heretics

1. I say:

A bhikkṣu should neither offer food, drink, delicacies and savoury stuff, clothes, utensils, blankets, and brooms to a co-religionist (apostate) and/or a heretic monk nor invite them to accept these, nor give them any service, but in doing so, he should always be polite, I say so.

1. Before this, "se bhikkhu" is to be understood.

ANNOTATION 1. A san anuñña is a monk whose faith, at-tire, deportment etc. can be approved of, and an asamanu-ñña is just the reverse of a samanuñña. For a Jaina muni, another Jaina muni is samanuñña, while a heretic muni is asamanuñña. According to the religious code of conduct prescribed for a muni, he is allowed to exchange food, drink, etc. with only a sādharmika muni (i. e. one belonging to the same faith). But a sādharmika may also be an apostate. A muni can neither give him nor accept from him anything. Therefore two adjectives have been used for sādharmika:

- a) Sāmbhogika, and
- b) Samanuñña

— (Nisīhājjhayaṇaṃ, 2/44).

The sāmbhogika is one with whom the exchange of things is permissible in accordance with the code of conduct. The samanuñña is one with the same deportments.

The Nisīṭṭha (15/76-77) prescribes expiation for giving food, drink, clothes etc. to a heretic monk, a householder or an apostate.

२ धुवं चैय जाणेज्जा—असणं वा पाण वा खाइमं वा साइमं वा
वत्थ वा पडिग्गह वा कवलं वा पायपूछण वा लभिय णो
लभिय, भुजिय णो भुजिय, पंथं विउत्ता विउकम्म विभत्तं धम्म
झोसेमाणे समेमाणे पलेमाणे, पाएज्ज वा, णिमतेज्ज वा, कुज्जा
वेयावाडियं —पर अणादायमाणे त्ति बेमि ।

2. Dhuvaṃ ceyam jāṇejjā — asanaṃ vā pāṇaṃ vā khāmaṃ vā sāmaṃ vā vatthaṃ vā paḍiggahaṃ vā kām-balaṃ vā pāyapucchanaṃ vā labhiya ṇo labhiya, bhuñjiya ṇo bhuñjiya, paṃthaṃ viuttā viukamma vibhataṃ dhammaṃ jhosemaṇe samemaṇe palemaṇe, pāeja vā, nimamteja vā, kujjā veyavadiyaṃ — paraṃ aṇa-dhāyaṃ tti bemi.

2. (An asamanuñña (a heretic) monk may say to a muni):
"You should know that food, drink, delicacies and savoury stuff, clothes, utensils, blankets, and brooms (are available in our monastery every day). You may visit our monastery (to get these if you like). You might have obtained your alms or not, and you might have had your meals or not, and you may take any path — straight or winding, (you would be welcome there). You may continue to observe the rules of conduct prescribed by your own faith." If, after accepting this invitation, a muni happened to go there, and was offered a meal or was invited for a meal or was offered any service, he should decline and should not give the least attention to it. I say so.

असम्मायार-पदं

३ इहमेगेसि आयार-गोयरे णो सुणिसते भवति, ते इह आरंभट्ठी
अणुवयमाणा हणमाणा, घायमाणा, हणतो यावि समणुजाणमाणा।

Asammāyāra-padam

3. Ihamegesum āyāra-goyare ño sunisañte bhavati, te iha ārambhaṭṭhi aṇuvayamāṇā haṇamāṇā ghāyamāṇa, haṇato yāvi samaṇujāṇamāṇā.

Improper Conduct

3. There are some monks who are not well-instructed in the discipline of right conduct. They indulge in violence (connected with preparation) and endorse such actions. Not only do they themselves kill (living beings), but they cause others to do so and approve of it.

४ अदुवा अदिन्नमाइयति ।

4. Aduvā adinnamāiyanti.

4. Or they are guilty of adatta (i. e. the mental attitude and the act of taking away things or objects belonging to other people, including their life).

ANNOTATION 4. The taking of life of other beings is "adatta". A killer is not only guilty of causing violence to others but also guilty of stealing (i.e. stealing others' life). Violence is directly related to one's mental attitude, but as living beings do not permit others to take their life, adatta also refers to beings which are being killed. (Cf. Āyāro, 1/57).

५. अदुवा वायाओ विउंजति, तं जहा—

अत्थि लोए, नत्थि लोए,
 धुवे लोए, अधुवे लोए,
 साइए लोए, अणाइए लोए,
 सपज्जवसिते लोए, अपज्जवसिते लोए,
 सुकडेत्ति वा दुक्कडेत्ति वा,
 कल्लाणत्ति वा पावेत्ति वा,
 साहुत्ति वा असाहुत्ति वा,
 सिद्धीत्ति वा, असिद्धीत्ति वा,
 निरएत्ति वा, अनिरएत्ति वा ।

5. Aduvā vāyāo viumjantī, tam' jahā —

Atthi loe, natthi loe,
 Dhuve loe, adhuve loe,
 Sāie loe, anāie loe,
 Sapajjavasite loe, apajjavasite loe,
 Sukaḍetti vā, dukkaḍetti vā,
 Kallāṇetti vā, pāvetti vā,
 Sāhutti vā, asāhutti vā,
 Siddhīti vā, asiddhīti vā,
 Niraetti vā, aniraetti vā.

5. Or they propound (mutually contradictory absolutistic) doctrines such as:

1) (The Realists maintain that) the universe has an objective existence.

2) (The Idealists maintain that) the universe does not really exist.

3) (The Helio-centrists maintain that) the sun does not move.¹

1. Or it may be translated thus — (the Eternalists maintain that) the universe is absolutely unchanging.

- 4) (The Geo-centrists maintain that) the sun moves¹.
 - 5) (The Creationists maintain that) the universe has a beginning.
 - 6) (The non-Creationists maintain that) the universe is beginningless.
 - 7) (The Creationists maintain that) the universe has an end.
 - 8) (The non-Creationists maintain that) the universe is endless.
 - 9) (Some philosophers maintain that) "Sukṛta" (i. e. righteousness) exists.
 - 10) (Some philosophers maintain that) Duṣkṛta (i. e. unrighteousness) exists.
 - 11) (Some philosophers maintain that) Kalyāṇa (i. e. virtue) exists.
 - 12) (Some philosophers maintain that) Pāpa (i. e. vice) exists.
 - 13) (Some philosophers maintain that) Sādhū (i. e. ascetic) exists.
 - 14) (Some philosophers maintain that) Asādhū (i. e. non-ascetic) exists.
 - 15) (Some philosophers maintain that) Nirvāṇa (i. e. complete emancipation) exists.
 - 16) (Some philosophers maintain that) Nirvāṇa does not exist.
 - 17) (Some philosophers maintain that) hell exists.
-
1. Or it may be translated thus — (the non-Eternalists maintain that) the universe is changing.

18) (Some philosophers maintain that) hell does not exist.

६. जमिणं विपपडिवण्णा मामगं धम्मं पणवेमाणा ।

6. Jamiṇaṃ vippaḍivannaṃ māmagaṃ dhammaṃ paṇṇave-māṇā.

6. Thus while taking for granted mutually contradictory dogmas, each one professes and propounds his own creed.

७. एत्थवि जाणह अकस्मात् ।

7. Etthavi jāṇaha akasmāt.

7. (A muni should not cultivate intimacy with the absolutists (or extremists). In the event of philosophical discussion with them, he should admonish them thus —).

"Try to realize that these absolutistic doctrines of yours are not compatible with rationality — they are illogical."

ANNOTATION 7. Both the doctrines — 'the universe is real' and 'the universe is unreal' — exemplify Absolutism. Until we accept the concept of reality, we cannot prove that of unreality, and vice versa.

Actually, 'reality' and 'unreality' are both relative terms. They can respectively be comprehended through the point of view of substance and that of the transformations of substance. The universe is real with reference to substance and unreal with reference to its mutations or modifications.

The 'isms' referred to in the present aphorism are all absolutistic in outlook and hence mutually contradictory.

८. एवं तेसि णो सुअक्खाए, णो सुपण्णत्ते धम्मो भवति ।

8. Evaṃ tesim ṇo suakkhāe, ṇo supaṇṇatte dhamme bhavati.

8. The creed professed by such a philosopher, (whose views are based on Absolutism and hence are far from being rational or logical) is neither rightly enunciated nor rightly expounded.

विवेक-पदं

६. से जहेयं भगवया पवेदित आसुपण्णेण जाणया पासया ।

Viveka-padam

9. Se jaheyam bhagavayā paveditam āsupam̐ṇena jāṇayā pāsayā.

Viveka (Wisdom)

9. (The monk should explain the Doctrine) as it was revealed to Bhagavān Mahāvīra, through his intuition and as it was enunciated and expounded by him with the help of Knowledge and Spiritual Experience.

१० अदुवा गुत्ती वओगोयरस्स त्ति वेमि ।

10. Aduvā guttī vaogoyarassa tti bemi.

10. (If the muni is not competent enough to explain the Doctrine and if the discussion about it is likely to result in ill-feelings or animosity), he should withhold his tongue.

ANNOTATION 10. "Rāgadosakaro vādo" — Indulgence in polemics often ends in animosity. A muni should, therefore, maintain reticence whenever any such eventuality arises.

११ सव्वत्थ सम्मयं पावम ।

11. Savvattha sammayam pāvam.

11. Even the use of violence is sanctioned (by all heretic schools of thought).

१२ तमेव उवाइकम्म ।

12. Tameva uvaīkamma.

12. A muni should avoid this (violence) (and lead a life based on non-violence).

१३. एस मह विवेगे विद्याहिते ।

13. Esa maham vivege viyāhite.

13. This has been described as the course of high wisdom.

ANNOTATION 11-13. 'To lead a life of non-violence is a wise course of action' — this is one of the interpretations.

The Cūrṇi and the Commentary have interpreted these three aphorisms in a different way, viz.

If invited by the heretics, a nuni should say to them: "Your creed allows the use of violence involved in cooking or getting something cooked; my creed, on the other hand, does not allow me to do so, it would be wise on my part to avoid violence."

१४. गामे वा अदुवा रण्णे ?

जेव गामे जेव रण्णे धम्ममायाणह—पवेदित माहणेण नईमया ।

14. Gāme vā aduvā ranne ?

Neva gāme neva rāṇṇe dhammamāyāṇaha — paveditaṃ māhaṇeṇa maimayā.

14. "Where should we practise Religion, in the village or in the forest?"

"You should know that religious practice has nothing to do with the village or the forest," the wise Māhana (Bhagavān Mahāvīra) has propounded thus.

ANNOTATION 14. Some sādhakas believed that religion could be practised only in a village, whereas others believed that it could be practised in the forest. On being questioned by a disciple, the preceptor answered that religion is not concerned with either the village or the forest, but with the soul. It is always through the soul that one practices religion. As a matter of fact, religion is nothing but the nature or essence of the soul. We find the same idea expressed in a different way by Pūjyapāda Devānandī in the following couplet:

*"Grāma(a)raṇyamiti dvedhā nivāso nātma darśinām.
Dṛṣṭātmanām nivāsastu viviktātmeva nīścalaḥ."*

(— Samādhisūta, 73)

— "A śādhaka who does not know the soul prefers to practise religion either in the village or in the forest, but a sādhaka who knows the soul always remains (fixed in) the pure soul."

१५ जामा तिणि उदाहिया, जेसु इमे आरिया संबुज्जमाणा समुत्थिया ।

15. Jāmā tūpi udāhiyā, jesu ime āriyā sambhujjhamāṇā samuṭṭhiyā.

15. Persons belonging to three age-groups (can be initiated). After being enlightened, the noble ones belonging to any one of these three age-groups can initiate themselves into ascetic life.

ANNOTATION 15. Although a man's total life-span of a hundred years is divisible into ten different age-groups, the three age groups referred to here have been mentioned in the context of initiation into ascetic life. The first stage extends from the age of 8 years to that of 30 years; the second, from 31 years to 60 years; and the third from 61 years onwards. The bhikkhuvāṇas (one of the schools of ascetics, who used to move about) did not initiate persons below the age of twenty. The people who followed the vedic religion used to embrace renunciation in the last stage of their life.

The Buddha did not allow a person below the age of twenty to be ordained. (— Vinaya Piṭaka, Bhikkhu Pātimokkha, 65). But an adolescent capable of frightening away a crow was allowed to become a probationer. (— Vinaya Piṭaka, Mahāvagga, Mahāsaṅkhaṇḍaka, 1/3/8).

But according to the Jaina convention, the age of eligibility for initiation was just after eight years and a quarter.

१६ जे निव्वया पावेहि कम्महि, अनियाणा ते वियाहिया ।

16. Je nivvuyā pāvehiṃ kammehiṃ, anyāṇā te viyāhiyā.

16. Those who have ceased to perpetrate actions like violence, etc. are called anidāna (free from the bonds of attachment and aversion).

अहिंसा-पदं

१७. उद्धं अहं तिरियं दिसासु, सव्वतो सव्वावत्ति च ण पडियक्क
जीवेहिं कम्म-समारभे ण ।

Ahimsā-padam

17. Uddham aham tiriyaṃ disāsu, savvato savvāvaṃti ca naṃ paḍiyakkam jāvehiṃ kamma-samārambhe ṇaṃ.

Ahimsā

17. Various kinds of acts involving violence or injury to living beings are perpetrated in all ways, in all directions — upper, lower and lateral.

ANNOTATION 17. The Buddhist monks did not cook their meals themselves, but got them cooked by others. They also used to construct monasteries themselves and got them constructed by others as well; they used to eat meat considering that it was not a sin to do so.

Some mendicants used to indulge in violence for the sake of the 'Saṅgha' (i. e. the religious order), and did not consider it sinful.

Some mendicants did not do violence to vegetable life.

Some mendicants did not accept food especially prepared for them, but drank animate water.

Some others, however, drank animate water, but did not bathe in it.

The present aphorism refers to these conventions.

१८. तं परिण्णाय मेहावी नेव सयं एतेहिं काएहिं दडं समारभेज्जा,
नेवण्णेहिं एतेहिं काएहिं दडं समारभावेज्जा, नेवण्णे एतेहिं
काएहिं दडं समारभते वि समणुजणेज्जा ।

18. Taṃ parinnāya mehāvi neva sayam etehiṃ kāehiṃ daṇḍaṃ samārambhejjā, nevannehiṃ etehiṃ kāehiṃ daṇḍaṃ samārambhāvejjā, nevaṇṇe etehiṃ kāehiṃ daṇḍaṃ samārambhaṇte vi samaṇujāṇejjā.

18. Having discernfully renounced actions involving violence, the wise śādhaka should not do violence even to the subtle living-beings. And he should also not cause others to do so nor should he approve of such actions.

१९. जेवण्णे एतेहिं काएहिं दंडं समारम्भति, तेसिं पि वयं लज्जामो ।

19. Jevanne etehim̐ kāehim̐ daṇḍam̐ samārambhaṇti, tesim̐ pi vayam̐ lajjāmo.

19. We pity those mendicants who do violence to the subtle living beings.

२०. तं परिणाय मेहावीत वा दंडं, अण्ण वा दण्डं, णो दण्डी दण्डं समारम्भेज्जासि ।

—त्ति वेमि ।

20. Taṃ parimāya mehāvī taṃ vā daṇḍam̐, aṇṇam̐ vā daṇḍam, ṇo daṇḍabhi daṇḍam̐ samārambhejjāsi.

— Tti bemi.

20. Having discerningly relinquished actions involving violence, the wise sādhaka, out of fear of causing violence, abstains from inflicting any kind of injury, as mentioned before or otherwise.

— I say so.

SECTION II

बीओ उद्देशो

Bīo Uddeso

अणाचरणीय-विमोक्ख-पदं

२१. से भिक्खू परक्कमेज्ज वा, चिट्ठेज्ज वा, णिसीएज्ज वा, तुयट्ठेज्ज वा, सुसाणसि वा, सुन्नागारसि वा, गिरिगुहसि वा, रुक्खमूलसि वा, कुम्भारायतणसि वा, हुरत्था वा क्हिं चि विहरमाणं त भिक्खु उवसकमित्तु गाहावती बूया—आउसतो समणा ! अहं खलु तव अट्ठाए असणं वा पाण वा खाइमं वा साइम वा वत्थ वा पडिग्गह वा कबल वा पायपुछण वा पाणाइ भूयाइ जीवाइ सत्ताइ समारब्भ समुद्दिस्स कीय पामिच्चं अच्छेज्जं अणिसट्ठं अभिहं आहट्ठु चेतोमि, आवसहं वा समुस्सिणोमि, से भुंजह वसह आउसतो समणा !

Aṇācārāṇīya-vimokkha-padam

21. Se bhikkhū parakkamejja vā, citthejja vā, nisīejja vā, tuyattejja vā, susāṇaṃsi vā, sunnāgāraṃsi vā, giri-guhaṃsi vā, rukkhāmūlaṃsi vā, kumbhārāyataṇaṃsi vā, huratthā vā kaḥuṃ ci viharamānaṃ taṃ bhikkhuṃ uvasaṃkamittu gāhāvati būya — āusaṃto samaṇā! ahaṃ khalu tava aṭṭhāe asaṇaṃ vā paṇaṃ vā khāmaṃ vā sāimaṃ vā vatthaṃ vā paḍiggahaṃ vā kaṃbalaṃ vā pāyapucchanaṃ vā pāṇāṃ bhūyāṃ jīvāṃ sattāṃ samārabbha samuddissa kiyaṃ pāmiccaṃ acchejjaṃ aṇisatthaṃ abhihaḍḍaṃ āhattu cetemi, āvasahaṃ vā samuṣṣiṇomi, se bhūṃjaha vasaha āusaṃto samaṇā!

Avoiding the Forbidden

21. A monk may be in any one of the following states: he may be on his way to somewhere or he may be standing, sitting, or lying in a cemetery, or in a deserted house, or in a mountain-cave, or under a tree, or in a potter's lodge, or he may be rambling about a village. (While he may be in any of these states), a householder may come to him and say, "I am going to prepare food, drink delicacies or savoury stuff, or clothes, bowls, blankets, or brooms, which involves violence to living beings, etc. or I am going to purchase or borrow or forcibly snatch them from others or am going to offer them to you without the permission of my partner, or I am going to bring them here for you. I am going to construct a house to accommodate you. O venerable sir! would you please accept these and come to live in the 'said house'?"

२२ भिक्षु त गाहावति समणस सवयस पडियाइक्खे—आउसतो गाहावती ! णो खलु ते वयणं आढामि, णो खलु ते वयणं परिजाणामि, जो तुम मम अट्ठाए असण वा पाण वा खाइम वा साइम वा बत्थं वा पडिग्गहं वा कबल वा पायपुच्छं वा पाणाइ भूयाइ जीवाइ सत्ताइ समारब्भ समुद्दिस्स कीय पामिच्च अच्छेज्ज अणिसदुठ अभिहड आहदु वेएसि, आवसहं वा समुत्तिणसि, से विरतो आउसो गाहावती ! एयस्स अकरणाए ।

22. Bhikkhū taṃ gāhāvatiṃ samanasaṃ savayasam paḍi-yākkhe — āusaṃto gāhāvati! ño khalu te vayaṇaṃ aḍ-hāmi, ño khalu te vayaṇaṃ pariṇāṇāmi, jo tumāṃ mama atthāe asanaṃ vā pāṇaṃ vā khāmaṃ vā sāi-maṃ vā, vatthaṃ vā paḍiggahaṃ vā kaṃbalaṃ vā pāyapucchanaṃ vā pāṇāṃ bhūyaṃ jīvāṃ sattāṃ samārabbha samuddissa kiyaṃ pāmiccaṃ acchejjaṃ aṇisaṭṭhaṃ abhihaḍaṃ āhaṭṭu ceesi, āvasahaṃ vā samussunāsi se virato āuso gāhāvati! eyassa akar-aṇāe.

22. Declining his offer, the monk should say to the honest and truthful householder, "Sir, I can neither accept nor approve of your offer. You would prepare food, drinks, delicacies, or savoury stuff, or clothes, bowls, blankets or brooms, by killing living beings etc., or you would buy, borrow or snatch them for me, or you would offer them to me without the permission of your partner, or would bring them here for me. You would construct a house purposively for me. But sir! I should abstain from accepting these. For me (a Jaina monk) these are taboo. (I regret I cannot accept them at all)."

२३ से भिक्खू परक्कमेज्ज वा, चिट्ठेज्ज वा, णिसीएज्ज वा, तुयट्ठेज्ज वा, सुसाणसि वा, सुन्नागारंसि वा, गिरिगुहंसि वा, रुक्खमूलसि वा, कुभारायतणसि वा, हुत्था वा कहिचि विहरमाण त भिक्खू उवसकमित्तु गाहावती आयगयाए पेहाए असण वा पाण वा खाइम वा साइम वा वत्थ वा पडिग्गहं वा कंबल वा पायपुच्छणं वा पाणाइं भूयाइ जीवाइ सत्ताइ समारब्भ समुद्दिस्स कीय पामिच्च अच्चेज्ज अणिसट्ठ अभिह्व आहट्ठु चेएइ, आवसह्व वा समुत्तिस्सणाति, त भिक्खू परिघासेउ ।

23. Se bhikkhū parakkamejja vā, cītthejja vā, ṇisīejja vā, tuyattejja vā, susāṇamsi vā, sunnāgāraṃsi vā, giri-guhaṃsi vā, rukkhamūlaṃsi vā, kumbhārāyatanaṃsi vā, huratthā vā kaḥimci viharaṃṇaṃ taṃ bhikkhū uvasakamittu gāhāvati āyagayāe pehāe asaṇaṃ vā pāṇaṃ vā khāmaṃ vā sāmāṃ vā, vatthaṃ vā paḍiggaṃ vā kambalaṃ vā pāyapucchāṇaṃ vā pāṇāṃ bhūyāṃ jīvāṃ sattaṃ samārabbha samuddissa kiyaṃ pāmiccaṃ acchejjaṃ aṇisaṭṭhaṃ abhihaḍaṃ āhaṭṭu ceei, āvasahaṃ vā samussināti, taṃ bhikkhū parighāseuṃ.

23. A monk may be in any one of the following states: he may be on his way to somewhere or he may be standing, sitting, or lying, in a cemetery, or in a deserted house, or in a mountain-cave, or under a tree, or in a potter's lodge, or he may be rambling about a village. Now, a householder approaches the mendicant to offer food, drinks, dainties or savoury stuff, clothes, bowls, blankets or brooms, involving violence to living-beings etc. or having bought, borrowed or even snatched them for him; or is offering them to him without seeking permission of his partner, or has brought them there for him, or has constructed a house purposively to accommodate him, deliberately concealing the truth that he does this for feeding and accommodating the monk.

२४ त च भिक्खू जाणेज्जा—सहसम्मइयाए, परवागरणेण, अण्णेसिं वा अतिए सोच्चा अय खलु गाहावई मम अट्टाए असण वा पाण वा खाइमं वा साइम वा वत्थ वा पडिग्गह वा कवल वा पाय-पुच्छण वा पाणाइ भूयाइ जीवाइ सत्ताइ समारब्भ समुद्दिस्स कीय पामिच्च अच्छेज्ज अणिसट्ठ अभिहह आहट्ठ चेएइ, आवसह वा समुत्तिणाति, त च भिक्खू पडिलेहाए आगमेत्ता आणवेज्जा अणासेवणाए ति वेमि ।

24. Tam ca bhikkhu jāṇeja → sahasammaiyāe, paravāgarāṇaṃ annesim vā am̐tie soccā ayaṃ khalu gāhāvai mama aṭṭhāe asaṇaṃ vā pāṇaṃ vā khāmaṃ vā sāmaṃ vā vatthaṃ vā paḍiggahaṃ vā kaṃbalaṃ vā pāya-pum̐cchaṇaṃ vā pāṇaṃ bhūyāṃ jīvāṃ sattaṃ samā-rabbha samuddissa kiyaṃ pāmiccaṃ acchejjaṃ aṇi-satthaṃ abbihaḍaṃ āhaṭṭu ceei, āvasahaṃ vā samu-sināti, taṃ ca bhikkhū paḍilehāe āgamenta āṇavejja āṇāsevaṇāe ti bemi.

24. Now, if the monk comes to know, either through his own intelligence or through a person possessed of transcendental knowledge or by hearing from someone else, that the householder has prepared food, drink, delicacies, savoury articles, clothes, bowls, blankets or brooms, by killing living beings, etc. for him; or has bought, borrowed or even snatched them for him, is offering them without the permission of his partner, or has brought them there from his house for him, or has constructed a house to accommodate him, he should tell him (the householder) frankly but politely, bearing in mind the injunctions of the Āgamas (the scriptures), "I regret I cannot accept such (food etc. or accommodation)." I say so.

२५ भिक्खू च खलु पुट्टा वा अपुट्टा वा जे इमे आहच्च गथा पुसति—
“से हता ! हणह, खणह, छिदह, दहह, पचह, आलुपह, विलुपह,
सहसाकारेह, विप्परासुह” — ते फासे धीरो पुट्ठो अहियासए ।

25. Bhikkhum ca khalu putthā vā aputthā vā je ime āhacca gaṁthā phusaṁti — "se haṁta! haṇaha, khaṇaha, chirādaḥa, dahaha, pacaha, ālumṇaha, vilumṇaha, sahasākāreha, vipparāmusaha" — te phāse dhīro puttho ahiyāsaē.
25. (Some people prepare some food, drink, etc. for a monk) with or without consulting him. (The monk declines). They (get annoyed with him and) tie him hand and foot with a rope. Addressing their servants they say, "(Go), and give him a good thrashing, (because that rascal of a monk has had so much of my money squandered away), tear him to pieces, mutilate him, burn him with acids, brand him with fire-brand, tear his body with nails, behead him (or get him trodden under the foot of an elephant), torture him in various ways." On being tortured, a patient muni should forbear it with fortitude.

२६. अदुवा आयार-गोयरमाइक्के, तक्किया ण मणेलिसं । अणुपुव्वेण
सम्म पडिलेहाए आयगुत्ते ।

26. Aduvā āyāra - goyaramāikkhe, takkiyā ṇa maṇelisam.
Aṇupuvveṇa sammam paḍilehāe āyagutte.

26. (If the self-controlled muni found the householder and his attendants intelligent enough to understand the scriptural injunctions), he should explain to them, in due order and with due deliberation, his own code of conduct, not prescribed elsewhere.

२७ अदुवा गुत्ती वागोयारस्स ।

27. Aduvā gutti vaogoyarassa.

27. However (if they are not intelligent enough), he should observe silence.

२८. बुद्धेहि एयं पवेवित्तं—से समणुण्णे असमणुण्णस्स असणं वा पाणं
वा लाइमं वा साइम वा वत्थ वा पडिग्गहं वा कंवलं वा पाय-
पुच्छणं वा नो पाएज्जा, नो निमतेज्जा, नो कुज्जा वेयावडिय—
पर माढायमाणे त्ति वेमि ।

28. Buddhehiṃ yaṃ paveditaṃ — se samanunne asamanunnassa asanaṃ vā paṇaṃ vā khāmaṃ vā sāmaṃ vā vatthaṃ vā paḍiggahaṃ vā kaṃbalaṃ vā pāyapuṃchanaṃ vā no pāejjā, no nimaṃtejjā, no kujjā veyāvaḍiyaṃ — paraṃ ādhayaṃāne, tti bemi.

28. The enlightened preceptors have said:

A samanujña muni should not give food, drink, delicacies and savoury food stuff, clothes, utensils, blankets, and brooms to a heretic monk; nor should he invite him to take these things, nor render him any service; however, he should always be very polite to him. I say so.

२६. धम्ममायाणह, पवेइयं माहणेण मतिमया—समणुण्णे समणुणस्स असण वा पाण वा खाइम वा साइम वा वत्थ वा पडिगहं वा कवल वा पायपुछण वा पाएज्जा, णिमतेज्जा कुज्जा वेयावडियं—परआढायमाणे ।

—त्ति वेमि ।

29. Dhammamāyāṇaha, paveiyaṃ māhaṇeṇa matimayā — samanunne samanunnassa asanaṃ vā paṇaṃ vā khāmaṃ vā sāmaṃ vā vatthaṃ vā paḍiggahaṃ vā kaṃbalaṃ vā pāyapuṃchanaṃ vā pāejjā, nimaṃtejjā kujjā veyāvaḍiyaṃ — paraṃ ādhayaṃāne.

— Tti bemi.

29. Know well the Right Path shown by the wise Māhana (Bhagavān Mahāvīra):

A samanujña muni should give food, drinks, dainties, and savoury food stuff, clothes, bowls, blankets, and brooms to another samanujña muni; and invite him to take these things, and render him service, and he should always be polite to him.

— I say so.

SECTION III

तद्वओ उद्देसो

Ta10 Uddeso

पव्वज्ज-पदं

३०. मज्झिमेणं वयसा एगे, संबुज्झमाणा समुत्थिता ।

Pavvaṃṇā-padam

30. Majjhimenam vayasā ege, sambujjhamānā samutthitā
Initiation into Ascetic Life

30. Some persons achieve enlightenment in the middle age and get initiated into ascetic life.

ANNOTATION 30. Initiation could take place at an early age or in old age. But mostly it used to take place in the middle age. Most of the romantic indulgence in the pleasures of sex is over by this time. Therefore, a middle aged initiate can stick to ascetic life happily. He becomes wiser also. That is why middle age has been mentioned here. Most of the *Gaṇadhara*s were initiated in their middle age. Even Bhagavān Mahāvira embraced renunciation after crossing the early stage of his life.

३१. सोच्चा वई मेहावी पंडियाणं निसामिया ।

समियाए धम्मो, आरिएहि पवेदिते ।

31. Soccā vaī mehāvī paṇḍiyanāṇṇ nīsāmiyā.
Samiyāe dhamme, āriehiṃ pavodite.

31. "The religion expounded by the Tīrthāṅkaras have asserted that dharma (i. e. righteousness) subsists in equanimity." — Having heard this told by the preceptors and having absorbed it correctly, wise people who have become enlightened by the Tīrthāṅkaras (get initiated into ascetic life in middle age.)¹

ANNOTATION 31. Enlightened persons are of three kinds:

- a) Self-enlightened — Svayam-sambuddha.
- b) Suddenly enlightened (by an impulse or an event)— (Pratyekabuddha).
- c) Enlightened by the Tīrthāṅkara — Buddha-bodhita.

The present aphorism refers to the last one.

अपरिग्रह-पदं

३२ ते अणवकजमाणा अणतिवाएमाणा अपरिग्रहमाणा णो परिग-हावती सन्नावती च णं लोमसि ।

Apariggaha-padam

32. Te aṇavakajamāṇā aṇatīvāemāṇā apariggahamāṇā no pariggahāvānti savvāvaṇṭi ca ṇaṃ lomasi.

Abandonment of Possessiveness by Ascetics

32. Remaining unattached to sensual pleasures, avoiding killing living beings and abandoning possessiveness, they practise non-violence and non-possessiveness everywhere.

३३. जिहाय दंडं पाणेहि, पाव कम्मं अकुव्वमाणे, एस मह अगथे
वियाहिए ।

33. Nihāya daṇḍaṃ paṇehiṃ, pāvaṃ kammaṃ akuvva- māṇe, esa mahāṃ agarāṃthe viyāhie.

33. One, who is non-violently compassionate towards all living beings and does not act sinfully, is called a great agrantha (i. e. absolutely unfettered by worldly snares).

1. Cf. 5/40.

आहारहेउ-पदं

३४. ओए जुतिमस्स खेयण्णे उववायं चवणं च णच्चा ।

Āhāraheu-padam

34. Oe jutimassa kheyamṇe uvavāyaṁ cavaṇaṁ ca ṇaccā.

The Purpose of Monk's Nourishment

34. A monk who has no attachment and is acquainted with the essence of spiritual discipline, having known birth and death, (should contemplate the mortality of the body).

३५. आहारोवचया वेहा, परिसह-पभंगुरा ।

35. Āhārovacayā dehā, parisaha-pabhaṁgurā.

35. The body becomes corpulent by eating, and it becomes emaciated by hardships.

३६. पासहेगे सव्विदिएहिं परिगिलायमाणेहिं ।

36. Pāsahege savvīdīehiṁ parigilāyamaṇehiṁ.

36. Think, how some monks lose the strength of their sense-organs (because of under-nourishment).

३७. ओए दय दयइ ।

37. Oe dayam dayai.

37. (Despite hunger and thirst) a muni who has no attachment duly observes self-control and compassion towards living beings.

ANNOTATIONS 34-37. Now, if the body is mortal, the question arises as to why a muni should take food at all. To illustrate this point, the author of the Scriptures has pointed out: The sustenance of the human body is essential for liberation, and food is essential for the sustenance of the body. Therefore, the intake of (nutritious) food cannot be prohibited for a muni. But at the same time, the observance of non-violence is a must for the procurement of food.

३८. जे सन्निहाण-सत्थस्स खेयण्णे ।

38. Je sannihāṇa-satthassa kheyāṇṇe.

38. One who is conversant with the sinfulness consequent to the storing or hoarding (of food) (does not store or hoard food to avoid evils like violence).

३९. से भिक्खू कालण्णे बलण्णे मायण्णे खण्ण्णे विणयण्णे समयण्णे
परिगहं अममायमाणे कालेणुद्दाई अपडिण्णे ।

39. Se bhikkhū kalāṇṇe balāṇṇe māyāṇṇe khaṇāṇṇe viṇayaṇṇe samayaṇṇe pariggahaṃ amamāyamaṇe kāleṇuṭṭhāi apaḍḍiṇṇe.

39. A monk should be conversant with the following:

the right time (for procuring alms);
the strength (for wandering about for alms);
the measure (of warranted food);
the opportune moment (for collecting alms);
the code of conduct (the prescribed manner in which alms are procured); and the Scriptures.

He should have no attachment to possessions.

He should perform the right ritual at the right moment, and should be free from likes and dislikes for particular kinds of food.¹

ANNOTATIONS 38-39. The authors of the Cūṛṇī and the Vṛtti (commentary) have interpreted the word sannihāṇa (skt. samīdhāna) as karma; but it sounds rather out of context. Actually, it should be "the storing or hoarding of food articles, etc." In the fifth section (aphs. 104-111) of the Second Chapter (viz. Subjugation of Worldliness), this topic has been discussed at length. Here we find an abstract of the same.

४०. दुहओ चेट्ता नियाइ ।

40. Duhao chettā niyāi.

1. Cf. 2/110.

40. Having broken the shackles of both (attachment and aversion), he leads a disciplined life.

अगणि-असेवण-पदं

४१. तं भिक्षुं सीयफास-परिवेवमाण-गायं उवसंकमित्तु गाहावई
 बूया—“आउसंतो समणा ! णो खलु ते गामधम्मा उव्वाहंति ?”
 “आउसंतो गाहावई ! णो खलु मम गामधम्मा उव्वाहंति ।
 सीयफास णो खलु अहं सच्चाएमि अहियासित्तए । णो खलु मे
 कप्पति अगणिकायं उज्जालेत्तए वा पज्जालेत्तए वा, कायं
 आयावेत्तए वा पयावेत्तए वा अण्णोसि वा वयणाजो ।”

Aganī-asevana-padam

41. Tam bhikkhum siyaphāsa-parivevamāṇa-gāyaṃ uvasaṅkamittu gāhāvai būyā — “Ausamto samaṇā! ño khalu te gāmadhammā uvvāhamti?”

“Ausamto gāhāvai! ño khalu mama gāmadhammā uvvāhamti. Siyaphāsaṃ ño khalu ahaṃ saṁcāemi ahiyāsittae. No khalu me kappati aganikāyaṃ ujja-lettāe vā pajjālettāe vā, kāyaṃ āyavettāe vā payāvettae vā aṇṇesim vā vayanāo.”

Forswearing the Use of Five

41. A householder may approach a monk, who is shivering with cold, and say to him, “O venerable Śramaṇa! are you suffering from sexual excitement?” “Oh, no! sir! not in the least. It is cold, not cupidity, which makes me shiver.”

— (“Why don't you burn fire, then?”)

— “I can neither kindle fire myself, in order to ward off cold, nor can I accept invitation by others to make use of the fire lit by them to keep my body warm and comfortable.”

४२. सिया से एव वदंतस्स परो अगणिकायं उज्जालेत्ता पज्जालेत्ता
काय आयावेज्ज वा पयावेज्ज वा, तं च भिक्खू पडिलेहाए आगमेत्ता आणवेज्जा अणासेवणाए ।

— त्ति वेमि ।

42. Siyā se evaṃ vadaṃtassa paro aganikāyaṃ ujjāletta pajjāletta kāyaṃ āyāvejja vā payāvejja vā, taṃ ca bhikkhū padilehāe āgāmetta āṇavejja āṇāsevaṇāe.

— Tti bemi.

42. Despite the monk's refusal, if the householder were to light fire to warm up the former's (shivering) body, the monk, bearing in mind the instructions of the Āgamas, should politely but firmly say, "I am sorry, I cannot avail myself of the warmth of the fire (as it entails injury and violence to the living beings embodied in the fire)."

— I say so.

SECTION IV

चउत्थो उद्देसो

Cautiho Uddeso

उवगरण-विमोक्ख-पदं

४३. जे भिक्खू तिहि वत्थेहि परिवुसिते पाय-चउत्थेहि, तस्स णं णो
एवं भवति—चउत्थं वत्थ जाइस्सामि ।

Uvagarāṇa-vimokkha-padam

43. Je bhikkhū tihim vatthehum¹ parivusite pāya-cautt-hehim², tassa paṁ no evaṁ bhavati — cauttham³ vattham⁴ jaissāmī.

The Relinquishment of Clothes

43. A monk who abides by the vow of possessing only three pieces of cloth and a bowl does not desire to beg for a fourth piece of cloth.

ANNOTATION 43. A monk is allowed to keep in his possession at the most three pieces of cloth out of which two should be cotton and one woollen. The method of over-spreading them is as follows:

At first a cotton cloth should be draped (wrapped around one's body). If this is not enough to keep cold out, the second cotton cloth should be overlaid. If this too fails to protect one from cold, then in that case the remaining woollen cloth should be worn. The convention has been that the woollen cloth is the last to be worn.

४४ से अहेसणिज्जाइं वत्थाइं जाएज्जा ।

44. Se ahesaṇijjāim¹ vatthāim² jāejjā.

44. He should beg for those clothes only which have been prescribed for a monk in his discipline.¹

४५ अहापरिगृह्याइं वत्थाइं धारेज्जा ।

45. Ahāpariggahiyāim vatthāim dhārejjā.

45. He should put on clothes in the same state in which they are given to him i. e. without altering or modifying them in any way.

४६ णो धोएज्जा, णो रएज्जा, णो धोय-रत्ताइ वत्थाइ धारेज्जा ।

46. No dhoejjā, no raejjā, no dhoya-rattāim vatthāim dhārejjā.

46. He should neither wash nor dye them. Nor should he put on clothes which have been washed clean and dyed.

ANNOTATION 46. This aphorism explains why clothes should be worn in the same condition in which they have been given. But, the monks have been advised against the washing and dyeing of clothes which are worn with a view to beautifying the body. (Cf. Nisīhājḥayaṇam, 16/154).

४७ अपलिउचमाणे गामतरेसु ।

47. Apaliumcamāṇe gāmaṁtaresu.

47. While moving from village to village, he should not try to hide any of his clothes.

४८ ओमचेत्ति ।

48. Omaceḥe.

48. He should be an avama-celika (i. e. scantily clad) — he should always wear very few (and extremely ordinary and simple) clothes.

ANNOTATION 48. The word 'avama' is interpretable from two points of view: number and size. From the point of view of number, a person who keeps three clothes on, is an

1. The code for begging clothes is fourfold (Cf. Āyāra-Cūḷā, 5/16-21).

avama-celika (i.e. scantily clad). From the latter point of view, an avama-celika is one who is clad in clothing which is two ratnis long (equivalent to the distance from the closed fist to the shoulders) and as much wide as the distance between the knees and the waist (Cf. Nisīṭhabhāṣya, 16/39/verse 5789).

४९. एयं खु वत्थधारिस्स सामगिय ।

49. Eyaṃ khu vatthadhārissa sāmaggiyaṃ.

49. These are the belongings of a monk allowed to keep clothes.

५०. अहं पुण एव जाणेज्जा—उवाइक्कते खलु हेमते, गिम्हे पडिवन्ने,
अहापरिजुण्णाइ वत्थाइ परिट्ठवेज्जा, अहापरिजुण्णाइ वत्थाइ
परिट्ठवेत्ता—

50. Aha puṇa evaṃ jāṇejjā — uvāikkante khalu hemante, gimhe padivanne, ahāparijunnāṃ vatthāṃ paritṭhavedjja ahāparijunnāṃ vatthāṃ paritṭhavetta —

50. A monk should realize that winter is now over, and summer has set in. It is, therefore, incumbent on him that he should discard worn out clothes. After having done so, —

५१. अदुवा सतरुत्तरे ।

51. Aduvā saṃtaruttare.

51. Either he should put on an inner clothing (made of cotton) and an outer one (made of wool),

५२. अदुवा एगसाडे ।

52. Aduvā egasāde.

52. Or he should be clad in only one clothing,

५३. अदुवा अचेले ।

53. Aduvā acele.

53. Or he should divest himself of all clothings (i.e. become an acela).

ANNOTATIONS 50-53. The order of relinquishing the clothes at the end of winter is as follows:

If all the three clothes have become worn out, and are not fit enough to be worn during the next winter, they should be discarded. For eight months, no clothes should be draped round.

If, by any chance, clothings are difficult to obtain till the next winter, only the most worn out robes should be given up and the rest kept with him, but not used.

If one of the three robes is more worn out, it should be discarded, and the remaining two kept.

If the two robes out of three are very much worn out, the two should be disposed of and the remaining one kept.

If all the three are very old, they should all be given up.

५४. लाघविय आगममाणे ।

54. Lāghaviyaṃ āgamamaṇe.

54. Constantly bearing in mind (the ideal of) minimum possession, (the monk should gradually abandon his clothes).

५५. तवे से अभिसमन्नागए भवति ।

55. Tave se abhisamannāgae bhavati.

55. A monk who keeps the minimum of clothes gets the (double) benefit of observing austerities (— curtailment of clothes and enduring physical hardships).

५६. जमेय भगवया पवेदित, तमेव अभिसमेच्चा सव्वतो सव्वत्ताए
समत्तमेव समभिजाणिया ।

56. Jameyaṃ bhagavayā paveditaṃ, tameva abhisameccā savvato savvattāe samattameva samabhijāṇiyā.

56. The scantiness of clothes (for the practice of asceticism) which has been recommended for a monk by Bhagavān Mahāvīra should be interpreted in the same sense, in which it is meant, and it should inspire the muni to practise equanimity thoroughly (i. e. nobody should be despised)¹.

1. Cf. 6/65.

सरीर-विमोक्ख-पदं

५७. जस्स ण भिक्खुस्स एव भवति—पुट्ठो खलु अहमसि, नालमहमसि
सीयफास अहियासित्तए, से वसुम सव्व-समन्नागय-पण्णाणेणं
अप्पाणेण केइ अकरणाए आउट्टे ।

Sarīra-vimokkha-padam

57. Jassa paṃ bhikkhussa evaṃ bhavati — puttho khalu ahamamsi, nālamahamamsi siyaphāsaṃ ahiyāsittae, se vasumaṃ savva-samannāgaya-paṇṇāṇeṇaṃ appāṇeṇaṃ kei akaraṇāe āutte.

Abandonment of Body

57. A monk may find "I am being (unwillingly) seduced (by a woman) and (I feel that) this enticing rigour is overwhelming me"; only a well-disciplined monk would, by his full conscious reasoning and entire will-power, subjugate his arising passions and thus save himself from sinful indulgence¹.

ANNOTATION 57. Out of the 22 rigours (pariśahās), "woman" and "yearning for being praised" are considered to be the two "śīta pariśaha" (i.e. cooling rigour) and the rest twenty rigours are "usna pariśaha" (i.e. scorching rigour), (vide, Ācārāṅga Nirṇyūkti, 3/verse 202). In the context of this aphorism, the word "śīta sparśa" could be interpreted as "strī-pariśaha" (i.e. rigours pertaining to the fair sex or "the enjoyment of sexual pleasures.")

५८. तवस्सिणो हु तं सेयं, जमेगे विहमाइए ।

58. Tavassīṇo hu taṃ seyaṃ, jamege vihamāie.

58. (In the event of being unwillingly seduced by a woman), for an austere monk death by hanging himself is beneficial (rather than yielding to her). Such a course should be adopted by a chaste and pure monk.

५९. तत्थावि तस्स कालपरियाए ।

1. Cf. 5/3/55.

59. Tatthāvi tassa kālapariyāe.

59. Such an act is not (to be branded) miserable and untimely death.

६०. से वि तत्त्व विमतिकारण ।

60. Se vi tattha viam̐tikārae.

60. Such an end may even lead to the attainment of final emancipation (from bonds) (i. e. total annihilation karma).

६१. इच्चेत विमोहायतण हिय, सुह, खम, णिस्सेयसं, आणुगमिय ।

—त्ति वेमि ।

61. Iccetaṃ vimohāyataṇaṃ hiyaṃ, suhaṃ, khamam, nisseyasaṃ āṇugāmiyaṃ.

— Tti bemi.

61. Such a death is a peaceful haven for all those monks who are totally free from the craving for life. It is beneficial and conducive to happiness; it is timely (i. e. justified under the circumstances) salutary (i. e. leading to beatitud) and proves to be of great assistance in the Journey Beyond.

— I say so.

ANNOTATIONS 57-61. When a monk goes for alms, his own relatives may try to persuade him to stay with them, or if he visited another family, some woman of that family getting enamoured of him, tries to seduce him into living with her. Confronted with such a predicament, what should a muni do ? This has been discussed by the author of the scriptures in the present discourse.

Ending one's own life is of two kinds: (a) bāla-marapa — suicide committed due to irrational impulses, and (b) paṇḍita marapa — the one committed by conscious judgement. Veḥānasa (i. e. committing suicide by hanging etc.) falls in the former category. Anaśana (i. e. undertaking fast unto death) exemplifies the latter (vide, Bhagavatī Sūtra 2/49). But how can a monk practise anaśana in such an emergency as above? Vehānasa death has been prescribed and approved of in such circumstances, for the sake of keeping the monk's chastity intact. Therefore it is not instance of bāla-marāṇa.

The author of the Curnī cites an interesting case of a monk who finds himself locked in a room in which he discovers, to his utter dismay, his former wife introduced in it by his relatives. He is unable to come out of it. Now, the woman tries to seduce him. He should then pretend to be a dead man by suppressing his breath. As soon as he finds a suitable opportunity, he should try to pretend to put a noose around his neck. If, then, the woman takes pity on him and asks him to leave rather than commit suicide, he should come out of the room. If, however, the woman continues her advances, he should hang himself to death. To be forced to commit suicide in this way is not deemed to "bāla-marāṇa". This has been approved of by Bhagavān Mahāvīra.

SECTION V

पंचमो उद्देशो

Pañcama Uddeso

उवगरण-विमोक्ख-पदं

६२. जे भिक्खू दोहिं वत्थेहिं परिवुसिते पायतइएहिं, तस्सण णो एव
भवति—तइयं वत्थ जाइस्सामि ।

Uvagarana-vimokkha-padam

62. Je bhikkhū dohim vatthehim parivusite pāyataiehim, tassaṇaṃ ño evaṃ bhavati — tayaṃ vatthaṃ jāissāmi.

The Relinquishment of Clothes

62. A monk who abides by the vow of possessing only two pieces of cloth and a bowl does not desire to beg for a third piece.

६३. से अहेसणिज्जाइ वत्थाइ जाएज्जा ।

63. Se ahesañjājāim vatthāim jāejjā.

63. He should beg for only those clothes which have been prescribed for a monk in his discipline.

६४. अहापरिगहियाइ वत्थाइ धारेज्जा ।

64. Ahāpariggahiyāim vatthāim dhārejjā.

64. He should put on clothes in the same state in which they are given to him i. e. without altering or modifying them in any way.

६५. णो धोएज्जा, णो रएज्जा, णो धोय-रत्ताइं वत्थाइ धारेज्जा ।

65. No dhoejjā, no raejjā, no dhoya-rattāim vatthāim dhārejjā.

65. He should neither wash nor dye them. Nor should he put on clothes which have been washed clean and dyed.

६६. अपलिउचमाणे गामंतरेसु ।

66. Apaluhcamāṇe gāmāntaresu.

66. While moving from village to village, he should not try to hide any of his clothes.

६७. ओमचेलिए ।

67. Omacelie.

67. He should be an avama-celika (i. e. scantily clad) — he should always wear very few (and extremely ordinary and simple) clothes.

६८. एयं खु तस्स भिक्खुस्स सामगिय ।

68. Eyaṃ khu tassa bhikkhussa sāmaggiyaṃ.

68. These are the belongings of a monk allowed to keep clothes.

६९. अहं पुण एव जाणेज्जा—उवाइक्कते खलु हेमते, गिम्हे पडिवन्ते,
अहापरिजुण्णाइं वत्थाइ परिट्टवेज्जा, अहापरिजुण्णाइं वत्थाइ
परिट्टवेत्ता—

69. Aha puṇa evaṃ jānejjā — uvāikkante khalu hemaṃte, gimhe paḍivanne, ahāparijunnāim vatthāim paritthavejjā, ahāparijunnāim vatthāim paritthavetta —

69. A monk should realize that winter is now over, and summer has set in. It is, therefore, incumbent on him that he should discard worn out clothes. After having done so, —

७०. अदुवा एगसाडे ।

70. Aduvā egasāḍe.

70. Either he should be clad in only one clothing.

७१. अदुवा अचेले ।

71. Aduvā acele.

71. Or he should divest himself of all clothings (i. e. become an acela).

७२. लाघविय आगममाणे ।

72. Lāghaviyaṃ āgamamaṇe.

72. Constantly bearing in mind (the ideal of) minimum possession, (the monk should gradually abandon his clothes).

७३ तवे से अभिसमन्नागए भवति ।

73. Tave se abhisamannāgae bhavati.

73. A monk who keeps the minimum of clothes, gets the (double) benefit of observing austerities (— curtailment of clothes and 'kāyakeśa' — enduring physical hardships).

७४ जमेय भगवता पवेदित, तमेव अभिसमेच्चा सव्वतो सव्वत्ताए समत्तमेव समभिजाणिया ।

74. Jameyaṃ bhagavatā paveditam, tameva abhisameccā savvato savvattāe samattameva samabhiṇṇiyā.

74. The scantiness of clothes (for the practice of asceticism) which has been recommended for a monk by Bhagavān Mahāvīra should be interpreted in the same sense in which it is meant and it should inspire the munī to practise equanimity thoroughly (i. e. nobody should be despised)¹.

गिलाणस्स भत्तपरिण्णा-पदं

७५ जस्स ण भिक्खुस्स एव भवति—“पुट्ठो अवलो अहमसि, नाल-महमसि गिह्तिर-सकमण भिक्खायरिय-गमणाए” से एव वदतस्स परो अभिहड असण वा पाण वा खाइमं वा साइमं वा आहट्टु दलएज्जा, से पुव्वामेव आलोएज्जा “आउसतो ! गाहावती ! णो खलु मे कप्पइ अभिहडे असणे वा पाणे वा खाइमे वा साइमे वा भोत्तए वा, पायए वा, अण्णे वा एयप्पगारे ।”

1. Cf. 6/65.

Gilāṇassa bhattaparinnā-padam

75. Jassa nam bhikkhussa evaṃ bhavati — "Puṭṭho abalo ahamāṃsi, nālamahamaṃsi gihamāntara-saṃkamaṇaṃ bhikkhāyariya-gamaṇāe" se evaṃ vadamāntassa paro abhihaḍaṃ asanaṃ vā pāṇaṃ vā khāmaṃ vā sāmaṃ vā, āhaṭṭu dalaējjā, se puvvāmeva āloejjā "Āsanto! Gāhāvati! no khalu me kappai abhihaḍe asane vāpāne vā khāime vā sāime vā bhottae vā, pāyae vā, aṇṇe vā, eyappagāre."

Abandonment of Food by an Ailing Monk

75. If a monk felt that he was too weak (on account of illness) to go begging from door to door, and if a householder brought food, drink, delicacies, and savoury foodstuff, from his own house and offered them to him, the monk should, after deliberation (over the nature of transgression), say, "Sir! I am afraid I can't accept this food, or drink, etc." Similarly, he should (forbid the householder to offer him) any other food etc. leading to other (transgression of the rules of begging food).

वेयावच्चपकप्प-पदं

- ७६ जस्स ण भिक्खुस्स अयं पगप्पे—अहं च खलु पडिण्णत्तो अपडिण्णत्तोहि, गिलाणो अगिलाणोहि, अभिकंख साहम्मिएहि कीरमाण वेयावडिय सतिज्जिस्सामि । अहं वा वि खलु अपडिण्णत्तो पडिण्णत्तस्स, अगिलाणो गिलाणस्स, अभिकंख साहम्मिअस्स कुज्जा वेयावडियं करणाए ।

Veyāvaccapakappa-padam

76. Jassa nam bhikkhussa ayaṃ pagappe — ahaṃ ca khalu paḍiṇṇatto apaḍiṇṇattehiṃ, gilāṇo agilāṇehiṃ, abhikaṃkha sāhammiehiṃ kīramāṇaṃ veyāvaḍiyaṃ sātijjissāmi. Ahaṃ vā vi khalu apaḍiṇṇatto paḍiṇṇattassa, agilāṇo gilāṇassa, abhikaṃkha sāhammiassa kujjā veyāvaḍiyaṃ karaṇāe.

Rules for Service

76. A monk may resolve, 'I am sick and my fellow ascetics are all right. They have offered their unconditional services to me. Although I have not called for such services, I shall accept them, because they are offering them with a view to purifying themselves from karmic contamination. "

Or, he may resolve:

"My fellow ascetics are sick and I am all right. I have offered my unconditional services to them with a view to purifying myself from kārmic contamination for the sake of mutual obligation. "

- ७७ आहृद्दु पइण्णं आणक्खेस्सामि, आहृडं च सातिज्जिस्सामि, आहृद्दु पइण्णं आणक्खेस्सामि, आहृडं च णो सातिज्जिस्सामि,
आहृद्दु पइण्णं णो आणक्खेस्सामि, आहृडं च सातिज्जिस्सामि,
आहृद्दु पइण्णं णो आणक्खेस्सामि, आहृडं च णो सातिज्जिस्सामि ।

77. Āhaṭṭu painṇaṃ āṇakkhessāmi, āhaḍaṃ ca sātijjis-
sāmi.

Āhaṭṭu painṇaṃ āṇakkhessāmi, āhaḍaṃ ca ṇo sātijjis-
sāmi.

Āhaṭṭu painṇaṃ ṇo āṇakkhessāmi, āhaḍaṃ ca sātijjis-
sāmi.

Āhaṭṭu painṇaṃ ṇo āṇakkhessāmi, āhaḍaṃ ca ṇo sātijjisāmi.

77. A monk may take a vow, "I shall bring food, etc. (for fellow-ascetics) and also accept what (they) bring for me. "

Or

"I shall bring food, etc. (for them), but I shall not accept the stuff brought (by them). "

Or

"I shall not bring food, etc. (for the fellow ascetics) but accept the stuff brought (by them). "

Or

"I shall neither bring food, etc. (for the fellow ascetics) nor accept the same brought (by them). "

(The monk should thus honour and abide by his vow. When senility makes his knees totter, the monk should embrace tranquil death (samādhi-maraṇa) through observing fast unto death (i.e. anaśana) known as "bhakta-pratyākhyāna" (i.e. abandonment of food).

७८. लाघवियं आगममाणे ।

78. Lāghaviyaṁ āgamamāṇe.

78. Constantly bearing in mind (the ideal of) minimum possession, (the monk should gradually abandon his clothes).

७९. तवे से अभिसमण्णागए भवति ।

79. Tave se abhisamaṇṇāgae bhavati.

79. A monk who keeps the minimum of clothes gets the (double) benefit of observing the austerities (— curtailment of clothes and enduring physical hardships).

८०. जमेय भगवता पवेदित, तमेव अभिसमेच्चा सव्वतो सव्वत्ताए
समत्तमेव समभिजाणिया ।

80. Jameyaṁ bhagavatā paveditaṁ tameva abhisameccā savvato savvattāe samattameva samabhijāṇiyā.

80. Scantiness of clothes (for the practice of asceticism) which has been recommended for a monk by Bhagavān Mahāvira should be interpreted in the same sense in which it is meant, and it should inspire the muni to practise equanimity thoroughly (i.e. nobody should be despised)¹.

८१ एव से अहाकिट्ठियमेव धम्म समहिजाणमाणे सते विरते
सुसमाहितलेसे ।

81. Evaṁ se ahākiṭṭiyameva dhammam samahijāṇamāṇe saṁte virate susamāhitaṭṭhe.

81. Knowing and practising thus the code of conduct laid down by the Tīrthāṅkaras, a monk should become absolutely placid and abstinent from sin, and discipline his consciousness by extremely composed train of thoughts (leśyā).

¹ Cf. 6/65.

८२ तत्थावि तस्स कालपरियाए ।

82. Tatthāvi tassa kālapariyāe.

82. (If a monk in the state of illness, abiding by the code of conduct and his own resolution, breathes his last), it is not to be branded miserable and untimely death.

८३ से तत्थ विअत्तिकारए ।

83. Se tattha viamtikārae.

83. Such an end may even lead to the attainment of final emancipation (from bonds) (i. e. total annihilation of karma).

८४ इच्चेत विमोहायतण हिय, सुह, खम, णिस्सेयस, आणुगामिय ।

—त्ति वेमि ।

84. Icchetam vimohāyatanaṃ hiyaṃ, suhaṃ, khamam, nisseyasaṃ, āṇugāmiyaṃ.

— Tti bemi.

84. Such a death is a peaceful haven for all those monks who are totally free from the craving for life. It is beneficial and conducive to happiness; it is timely (i. e. justified under the circumstances) salutary (i. e. leading to beatitude) and proves to be of great assistance in the Journey Beyond.

— I say so.

SECTION VI

छद्दो उद्देशो

Chaddho Uddeso

उवगरण-विमोक्ख-पदं

८५. जे भिक्खू एगेण वत्थेण परिवुसिते पायबिइएण, तस्स णो एव
भवइ — बिइयं वत्थ जाइस्सामि ।

Uvagarana-vimokkha-padam

85. Je bhikkhū egeṇa vatthena parivusite pāyabueṇa, tassa no evaṃ bhavaī — byaṃ vatthaṃ jāissāmi.

Abandonment of Clothes

85. A monk who abides by the vow of possessing only one piece of cloth and a bowl, does not desire to beg for a second piece.

८६ से अहेसणिज्जं वत्थ जाएज्जा ।

86. Se ahesanijjāṃ vatthaṃ jāejjā.

86. He should beg for that cloth only which has been prescribed for a monk in his discipline.

८७ अहापरिगग्हियं वत्थ धारेज्जा ।

87. Ahāpariggahiyāṃ vatthaṃ dhārejja.

87. He should put on the cloth in the same state in which it is given to him i. e. without altering or modifying it in any way.

८८ णो धोएज्जा, णो रएज्जा, णो धोय-रत्त वत्थ धारेज्जा ।

88. No dhoejjā, no raejjā, no dhoya-rattāṃ vatthaṃ dhā-rejja.

88. He should neither wash nor dye it. Nor should he put on cloth which has been washed clean and dyed.

८९ अपलिउच्चमाणे गामतरेसु ।

89. Apahumcamāṇe gāmam̐taresu.

89. While moving from village to village, he should not try to hide his cloth.

९० ओमचेलिए ।

90. Omacelie.

90. He should be an avama-celika (i. e. scantily clad) — he should always wear an extremely ordinary and simple cloth.

९१. एयं खु वत्थधारित्स सामगिय ।

91. Eyaṃ khu vatthadhāriṣṣa sāmaggiaṃ.

91. These are the belongings of a monk allowed to keep cloth.

९२ अह पुण एव जाणेज्जा—उवाइक्कते खलु हेमते, गिम्हे पडिवन्ने,
अहापरिजुण्ण वत्थ परिट्ठवेज्जा, अहापरिजुण्ण वत्थ परिट्ठवेत्ता—

92. Aha puṇa evaṃ jāṇejaṃ—uvāikkante khalu hemaṃte, gimhe paḍivanne, ahāparijunṇaṃ vatthaṃ pariṭṭhavejja, ahāparijunṇaṃ vatthaṃ pariṭṭhavetta—

92. A monk should realize that winter is now over, and summer has set in. It is, therefore, incumbent on him that he should discard worn out cloth. After having done so, —

९३ अदुवा अचेले ।

93. Aduvā acele.

93. He should divest himself of his clothing (i. e. become an acela).

९४. लाघविय आगममाणे ।

94. Lāghaviyaṃ āgamamaṇe.

94. Constantly bearing in mind (the ideal of) minimum passession, (the monk should abandon his cloth).

६५ तवे से अभिसमण्णागए भवति ।

95. Tave se abhisamannāgae bhavati.

95. A monk who keeps the minimum of clothes, gets the (double) benefit of observing the austerities (—curtailment of clothes and enduring physical hardships).

६६ जमेय भगवता पवेदित, तमेव अभिसमेच्चा सव्वतो सव्वत्ताए
समत्तमेव समभिजाणिया ।

96. Jameyam bhagavatā paveditam, tameva abhisameccā savvato savvattāe samattameva samabhijāṇiyā.

96. The scantiness of clothes (for the practice of asceticism) which has been recommended for a monk by Bhagavān Mahāvīra should be interpreted in the sense in which it is meant, and it should inspire the muni to practise equanimity thoroughly (i. e. nobody should be despised).¹

एगत्तभावणा-पदं

६७. जस्स ण भिक्खुस्स एवं भवइ—एगो अहमसि, न मे अत्थि कोइ,
न याहमवि कस्सइ, एव से एगाणिमेव अप्पाण समभिजाणिज्जा ।

Egattabhāvanā-padam

97. Jassa ṇaṃ bhikkhussa evaṃ bhavaṃ — ego ahamasī, na me atthi koī, na yāhamavi kassaī, evaṃ se egāṇimeva appāṇaṃ samabhijāṇijjā.

Contemplation of Solitariness

97. A monk, who is convinced and feels, 'I am myself alone, I have nobody belonging to me, nor do I belong to anybody', should thus realize that his soul actually stands alone by itself.

६८. लाघवियं आगममाणे ।

1. Cf. 6/65

98. Lāghaviyaṃ āgamamāṇe.

98. Constantly bearing in mind (the ideal of) minimum possession, (the monk should gradually abandon his encumbrances).

९९ तदे से अभिसमन्तागए भवइ ।

99. Tave se abhisamannāgae bhavaī.

99. Such line of thinking leads him to the observance of austerities (of the contemplation of solitariness).

१०० जमेय भगवता पवेदित, तमेव अभिसमेच्चा सव्वतो सव्वत्ताए
समत्तमेव समभिजाणिया ।

100. Jameyaṃ bhagavatā paveditaṃ, tameva abhisameccā savvato savvattāe samattameva samabhiṇṇiya.

100. The solitariness (for the practice of asceticism) which has been recommended for a monk by Bhagavān Mahāvīra should be interpreted in the same sense in which it is meant, and it should inspire the muni to practise equanimity thoroughly (i. e. nobody should be despised)¹.

अणासायलाधव-पदं

१०१ से भिक्खू वा भिक्खुणी वा असण वा पाण वा खाइम वा
साइम वा आहारेमाणे णो वामाओ हणुयाओ दाहिण हणुय
सच्चारेज्जा आसाएमाणे, दाहिणाओ वा हणुयाओ वाम हणुय णो
सच्चारेज्जा आसाएमाणे, से अणासायमाणे ।

Aṇāsāyalāghava-padam

101. Se bhikkhū vā bhikkhunī vā asaṇaṃ vā paṇaṃ vā khāmaṃ vā sāmaṃ vā āhāremāṇe ṇo vāmāo haṇuyāo dāhiṇaṃ haṇuyaṃ saṃcārejjā āsāemāṇe, dāhiṇāo vā haṇuyāo vāmaṃ haṇuyaṃ ṇo saṃcārejjā asaemāṇe, se aṇāsāyamāṇe.

Eschewing Taste

101. A monk or a nun eating food, drink, delicacies or savoury stuff, should not shift (the morsel) from the left jaw to the right jaw, nor from the right jaw to the left jaw, to get a fuller taste of it, (but should eat by) eschewing taste (of it).

1. Ibid.

१०२ लाघवियं आगममाणे,

102. Lāghaviyaṃ āgamamaṇe.

102. Constantly bearing in mind the (ideal of eschewing (of taste), (the monk should give up attachment to taste).

१०३ तवे से अभिसमन्नागए भवइ ।

103. Tave se abhisamannāgae bhavai.

103. A monk who eschews taste gets the (double) benefit of observing austerities (— non-attachment to taste and enduring physical hardships).

१०४ जमेयं भगवता पवेइयं, तमेव अभिसमेच्चा सव्वतो सव्वत्ताए
समत्तमेव समभिजाणिया ।

104. Jameyaṃ bhagavatā paveiyaṃ, tameva abhisameccā savvato savvattāe samattameva samabhijāṇiyā.

104. Eschewing of taste, which has been recommended for a monk by Bhagavān Mahāvīra, should be interpreted in the same sense in which it is meant, and it should inspire the muni to practise equanimity thoroughly (i. e. nobody should be despised)¹.

संलेहणा-पदं

१०५ जस्स ण भिक्खुस्स एव भवति—से गिलामि च खलु अहं
इमं समं इमं सरीरं अणुपुब्बेण परिवह्ति, से आणुपुब्बेण
आहारं सवट्ठेज्जा, आणुपुब्बेण आहारं सवट्ठेत्ता,
कसाए पयणुए किच्चा, समाहिंयच्चे फलगावयट्ठी,
उट्ठाय भिक्खू अभिनिव्वुडच्चे ।

Saṃlehaṇā-padam

105. Jassa naṃ bhikkhussa evaṃ bhavati — se gilāmi ca khalu ahaṃ imaṃsi samae imaṃ sarīraṃ aṇupuv-

1. Cf. 6/65.

vena parivahittae, se ānupuvvenam āhāram sarāvattejjā, ānupuvvenam āhāram samvattettā,

*Kasāe payaṇue kiccā, samāhiyacce phalagāvaṇṇatthi,
Uttāya bhikkhū abhinivvudacce.*

Conscious Preparation for Death

105. If a monk feels — 'Infirmity is forcing my body to cease functioning and I cannot do my duties (at the right time)', he should gradually reduce his diet, and through this reduction, try to chisel his passions (anger, pride, deceit and avarice) (just as a carpenter does a beam).

After attenuating his passions, a monk who has completely subdued his emotions and has his body attenuated and passions well-curtailed through vigorous external and internal austerities, like (the two sides of) a beam well-chiselled and evened out, and having thus prepared himself for Death Sublime (samādhi-maraṇa), should become free from attachment and activities of body.

ANNOTATION 105. Generally one becomes infirm through some sort of disease. But, as the author of the Cūṛṇi has pointed out, insufficient food, little or no clothes, or squatting for hours on end like a cock etc. also make one infirm. Severe austerities may also result in infirmity. When the body becomes extremely emaciated, the monk should prepare himself for Death Sublime through gradual attenuation (samlekhanā). The main constituents of attenuation are:

- (a) Gradual reducing of diet.
- (b) Scrupulous diminution of passions.
- (c) Keeping the body in a state of stillness.

Exertion (utthāna or vigorous preparation for something) is of three kinds

- (a) Exertion in self-discipline — to get initiated into ascetic life.

- (b) Exertion in movement from village to village.
 (c) Exertion in the attainment of Death Sublime through gradual emaciation of the body (saṃle-khanā) on experiencing infirmity.

इंगिनिसरण-पदं

१०६ अणुपविसित्ता गामं वा, नगरं वा, खेडं वा, कब्बडं वा; मडंबं वा, पट्टणं वा, दोणमुहं वा, आगरं वा, आसमं वा, सण्णिवेसं वा, णिगमं वा, रायहाणिं वा, तणाइं जाएज्जा, तणाइं जाएत्ता, से तमायाए एगंतमवक्कमेज्जा, एगंतमवक्कमेत्ता अप्पडे अप्प-पाणे अप्प-वीए अप्प-हरिए अप्पोसे अप्पोदए अप्पुत्तिग-पणग-दग-मट्ठिय-मक्कडासताणए, पडिलेहिय-पडिलेहिय, पमज्जिय-पमज्जिय तणाइं सथरेज्जा, तणाइ सथरेत्ता एत्थ वि समए इत्तरिय कुज्जा ।

Inginiṃaraṇa-padam

106. Anupavāsittā gāmaṃ vā, nagaraṃ vā, khedaṃ vā, kabbadaṃ vā, maḍambaṃ vā, paṭṭaṇaṃ vā, doṇamuhaṃ vā, āgaraṃ vā, āsamaṃ vā, saṇṇivesaṃ vā, ṇigamaṃ vā, rāyahaṇiṃ vā, taṇāiṃ jāeja, taṇāiṃ jāetta, se tamāyāe egaṃtamavakkamejja, egaṃtamavakkamettā appaṃde appa-pāṇe appa-bīe appa-harie appose appodae apputtiṅga-panaga-daga-maṭṭiya-makkaḍāsaṃtāṇae, paḍilehiya-paḍilehiya, pamaḍḍiya-pamaḍḍiya taṇāiṃ saṃtharejja, taṇāiṃ saṃtharettā ettha vi samae ittarīyaṃ kujja.

Fast unto Death Called Ingini (Itvarika)

106. (Thus exerting in saṃlekhanā, when the monk finds himself physically infirm,) he should enter a village, or a town, or a town two miles long (kheda), or a village at the foot of a mountain (karvaṭam), or an isolated village (maḍamba), or a larger town (paṭṭana) or a capital of four hundred villages (doṇamukha) or a mine-like abode (ākara), or a hermitage (āśrama) or a settlement of thus (saṇṇivesa), or a city (ṇigama), or a capital (rājadhāni) and beg for straw-stack (hay). After having got it, he should retire into seclusion somewhere outside (the village etc.). After having thoroughly examined and cleaned the ground where there are no eggs (of insects), nor insects, nor seeds, nor sprouts, nor dew, nor water, nor ant-holes, nor mildew, nor marsh nor cobwebs, he should make a bed of straw on it. He should then observe the religious fast unto death called itvarika.

ANNOTATION 106. At the time of fasting unto death, the monk should face the East, with his hands folded together and raised to the head in supplication or salutation. After paying obeisances to the Siddhas (i. e. the Perfect Ones), he should resolve to carry out his itvarika fast unto death. In this fast, one can move only within a restricted area. That is why, it has been termed as the itavarika fast. Here, itvarika does not signify fast for a brief and limited period. For the annotation of the words grāma, nagara etc., cf. Uttarajjhayaṇāṇi, 30/16, 17.

१०७. त सच्च सच्चावादी ओए तिण्णे छिण्ण-कहंके आतीतद्दे
अणातीते वेच्चाण भेऊरं कायं, सविहूणिय विरूवरूवे परिसहो-
वसगे अस्सि विस्स भइत्ता भेरवमणुच्चिणे ।

107. Tam saccam saccāvādī oe tiṇṇe chiṇṇa-kahamkahe ātītattṭhe anātite veccāṇa bheṭṭam kāyaṃ, samvihūṇiya virūvarūve parisaḥovasagge assim viṣṣam bhaittā bheravamaṇucīṇṇe.

107. The itvarika fast is a righteous (undertaking). The monk, remaining truthful (i. e. one who faithfully carries all his vows to completion) and devoid of passions, successfully crossing the Ocean of Worldly Existence, remaining free from doubt about his ability to carry the fast through, being blessed in every possible way with the happy feeling of accomplishment, remaining unaffected by circumstances, realizing that the body is mortal, subjugating various hardships and troubles, recognizing the separateness of body and soul and experiencing the same, accomplishes (unperturbedly) this formidable (bhairava) task (of fast unto death).

१०८. तत्थावि तस्स कालपरियाए ।

108. Tatthāvi tassa kālapariyāe.

108. Such an end is not to be branded miserable and untimely death.

१०९. से तत्थ विअतिकारए ।

109. Se tattha viamtikārae.

109. Such an end may even lead to the attainment of final emancipation (from bonds) (i. e. total annihilation of karma).

११०. इच्चेत विमोहायतण हियं, सुह, खम, निस्सेयसं, आणुगमियं ।

— त्ति बेमि ।

110. Icchetam vimohāyatanam hiyaṃ, suhaṃ, khamam, nisseyasaṃ, āṇugāmiyaṃ.

— Tti bemi.

110. Such a death is a peaceful haven for all those monks who are totally free from the craving for life. It is beneficial and conducive to happiness; it is timely (i. e. justified under the circumstances) salutary (i. e. leading to beatitude) and proves to be of great assistance in the Journey Beyond.

— I say so.

SECTION VII

सत्तमो उद्देशो

Sattamo Uddeso

उवगरण-विमोक्ख-पदं

१११ जे भिक्खू अचेले परिबुसिते, तस्स ण एव भवति—चाएमि अहं
तणफास अहियासित्तए, सीयफास अहियासित्तए, तेउफास
अहियासित्तए, दस-मसगफास अहियासित्तए, एगयरे अण्णयरे
विरूवरूवे फासे अहियासित्तए, हिरिपडिच्छादण चहुणो सचाएमि
अहियासित्तए, एव से कप्पति कडिबध्दण धारित्तए ।

Uvagarana-vimokkha-padam

111. Je bhikkhū acele parivusite, tassa naṃ evaṃ bhavati -- cāemi ahaṃ tanaphāsaṃ ahiyāsittae, sīyaphāsaṃ ahiyaṣittae, teuphāsaṃ ahiyaṣittae, dāṃsa-masagaphāsaṃ ahiyaṣittae, egatare aṇṇatare virūvarūve phāse ahiyaṣittae, hiripadicchādaṇaṃ cahāṃ no samcāemi ahiyaṣittae, evaṃ se kappati kaḍibaddhaṇaṃ dhārit-tae.

The Relinquishment of Clothes

111. If a monk, who abides by the discipline of remaining naked, feels, 'I can put up with the rigours of the pricking of grass, heat and cold, the stings of various sorts. But I cannot discard the clothes covering the privities', then he may put on a loincloth.

११२. अदुवा तत्थ परक्कमतं भुज्जो अचेलं तणफासा फुसति,
सीयफासा फुसति, तेउफासा फुसति, दस-मसगफासा फुसति,
एगयरे अण्णयरे विरूवरूवे फासे अहियासेति अचेले ।

112. Aduvā tattha parakkamaññam bhuñjā acelaññam tanaphāsā phusaññi siyaphāsā phusaññi, teuphāsā phusaññi, dāñsa-masagaphāsā phusaññi, egayare annayare virūvarūve phāse ahuyāseti acele.

112. Or if a monk is spiritually strong enough to overcome his shyness, he should wear nothing — not even a loin-cloth. (While practising nudism), he may be pricked by grass, heat and cold may oppress him, gadflies and mosquitoes may sting him and similar other hardships of various sorts may befall him; he should always endure these with fortitude.

११३. लाघविय आगममाणे ।

113. Lāghaviyam āgamamāṇe.

113. Constantly bearing in mind (the ideal of) minimum possession, (the monk should practise nudism).

११४. तवे से अभिसमन्नागए भवति ।

114. Tave se abhisamannāgae bhavati.

114. A monk who practises nudism gets the (double) benefit of observing austerities (— giving up clothes and enduring physical hardships).

११५. जमेय भगवता पवेदित, तमेव अभिसमेच्चा सव्वतो सव्वत्ताए समत्तमेव समभिजाणिया ।

115. Jameyam bhagavatā paveditam, tameva abhisameccā savvato savvattāe samattameva samabhijāṇiyā.

115. Practice of nudism, which has been recommended for a monk by Bhagavān Mahāvīra, should be interpreted in the same sense in which it is meant and it should inspire the muni to practise equanimity thoroughly, (i. e. nobody should be despised)¹.

वेयावच्चपक्कप्प-पदं

११६. जस्स ण भिक्खुस्स एव भवति—अहं च खलु अण्णेसिं भिक्खूणं असणं वा पाणं वा खाइम वा साइम वा आहुट्ठं दलइस्सामि, आहुडं च सातिज्जिस्सामि ।

1. Cf. 6/65.

Veyāvaccapakappa-padam

116. Jassa nam bhikkhussa evaṃ bhavati — ahaṃ ca khalu appesiṃ bhikkhūnaṃ asanaṃ vā pānaṃ vā khāmaṃ vā sāmaṃ vā āhattu dalaissāmi, āhaḍaṃ ca sātijjissāmi.

Rules for Service

116. A monk may take a vow: "I shall bring food, drink, delicacies or savoury stuff (for fellow-ascetics) and also accept what (they) bring for me."

११७ जस्स ण भिक्खुस्स एव भवति—अहं च खलु अणोसि भिक्खूणं
असण वा पाण वा खाइम वा साइम वा आहट्ठु दलइस्सामि,
आहड च णो सातिज्जिस्सामि ।

117. Jassa nam bhikkhussa evaṃ bhavati — ahaṃ ca khalu appesiṃ bhikkhūnaṃ asanaṃ vā, pānaṃ vā khāmaṃ vā sāmaṃ vā āhattu dalaissāmi, āhaḍaṃ ca ṇo satijjissāmi.

117. A monk may take a vow: "I shall bring food, drink, delicacies or savoury stuff (for fellow-ascetics), but I shall not accept what is brought (by them)."

११८ जस्स ण भिक्खुस्स एव भवति—अहं च खलु अणोसि भिक्खूणं
असण वा पाण वा खाइम वा साइम वा आहट्ठु नो दलइस्सामि,
आहड च सातिज्जिस्सामि ।

118. Jassa nam bhikkhussa evaṃ bhavati — ahaṃ ca khalu appesiṃ bhikkhūnaṃ asanaṃ vā pānaṃ vā khāmaṃ vā sāmaṃ vā āhattu ṇo dalaissāmi, āhaḍaṃ ca sātijjissāmi.

118. A monk may take a vow: "I shall not bring food, drink, delicacies or savoury stuff (for the fellow-ascetics) but accept what is brought (by them)."

११९ जस्स ण भिक्खुस्स एव भवति—अहं च खलु अणोसि भिक्खूणं
असण वा पाण वा खाइम वा साइम वा आहट्ठु नो दलइस्सामि,
आहड च णो सातिज्जिस्सामि ।

119. Jassa nam bhikkhussa evaṃ bhavati — ahaṃ ca khalu anṇesū bhikkhūnaṃ asaṇaṃ vā pāṇaṃ vā khāmaṃ vā sāmaṃ vā āhattu no dalaissāmi āhaḍaṃ ca no sātijjissāmi.

119. A monk may take a vow: "I shall neither bring food, drink, delicacies or savoury stuff (for the fellow-ascetics) nor accept the same brought (by them)."

१२० अहं च खलु तेण अहाइरित्तेणं अहेसणिज्जेणं अहापरिगहिएण
असणेण वा पाणेण वा खाइमेण वा साइमेण वा अभिकख
साहम्मियस्स कुज्जा वेयावडियं करणाए ।

120. Ahaṃ ca khahu teṇa ahāirittenaṃ ahesanijjenaṃ ahā-pariggahienaṃ asaṇeṇa vā pāṇeṇa vā khāmeṇa vā sāmeṇa vā abhikaṃkha sāhammiyassa kujjā veyāvadiyaṃ karaṇāe.

120. (A monk may feel): "Inspired by a feeling of mutual cooperation and with a view to purifying the Self, I shall serve my fellow ascetics by offering them food, or drink, or delicacies or savoury stuff obtained, in excess of what I need, in conformity with the code of alms-begging."

१२१ अहं वावि तेण अहातिरित्तेणं अहेसणिज्जेणं अहापरिगहिएण
असणेण वा पाणेण वा खाइमेण वा साइमेण वा अभिकख
साहम्मिएहिं कीरमाण वेयावडियं सातिज्जिस्सामि ।

121. Ahaṃ vāvi teṇa ahātirittenaṃ ahesanijjenaṃ ahā-pariggahienaṃ asaṇeṇa vā pāṇeṇa vā khāmeṇa vā sāmeṇa vā abhikaṃkha sāhammiehiṃ kīraṃaṇaṃ veyāvadiyaṃ sātijjissāmi.

121. (He may also feel): "Inspired by the feeling of mutual cooperation and with a view to purifying the Self, I shall approve of the services rendered by my fellow-ascetics by accepting food or drink, or delicacies or savoury stuff that they might have brought for themselves, in excess of what they need, in conformity with the code of alms-begging."

१२२. लाघवियं आगममाणे ।

122. Lāghaviyaṃ āgamamaṇe.

122. Constantly bearing in mind (the ideal of) humility, (the monk should resolve to render service).

१२३ तवे से अभिसमण्णागए भवति ।

123. Tave se abhisamannāgae bhavati.

123. A monk who resolves to render service gets the (double) benefit of observing the austerities (— curtailment of food, etc. and rendering service).

१२४ जमेय भगवता पवेदित, तमेव अभिसमेच्चा सव्वतो सव्वत्ताए
समत्तमेव समभिजाणिया ।

124. Jameyaṃ bhagavatā paveditaṃ, tameva abhisameccā savvato savvattāe samattameva samabhi jāṇiyā.

124. The vows to render service which have been recommended for a monk by Bhagavān Mahāvīra, should be interpreted in the same sense in which they are meant and they should inspire the muni to practise equanimity thoroughly (i.e. nobody should be despised)¹.

पाओवगमण-पदं

१२५ जस्स ण भिक्खुस्स एव भवति—से गिलामि च खलु अहं
इमंमि समए इमं सरीरगं अणुपुब्बेण परिवहित्तए, से आणुपुब्बेण
आहारं सवट्ठेज्जा, आणुपुब्बेण आहारं सवट्ठेत्ता,
कसाए पयणुए किच्चा समाहिअच्चे फलगावयट्ठी,
उट्ठाए भिक्खू अभिणिज्जुडच्चे ।

Pāovagamana-padam

125. Jassa ṇaṃ bhikkhussa evaṃ bhavati — se gilāmi ca khalu ahaṃ imammaṃ samae imaṃ sarīragam aṇupuvvena parivahuttae, se āṇupuvvenaṃ āhāraṃ samvattejjā, āṇupuvvena āhāraṃ samvattetta kasae payanue kaccā samāhiacce phalagāvayatthi, utthāya bhikkhū abhinivvudacce.

1. Cf. 6/65.

Fasting Unto Death called Prāyopagamana

125. If a monk feels: "Infirmity is forcing my body to cease functioning and I cannot do my duties (at the right time)," he should gradually reduce his diet, and through this reduction, try to chisel his passions (anger, pride, deceit and avarice) (just as a carpenter does a beam).

After attenuating his passions, a monk who has completely subdued his emotions and has his body attenuated and passions well-curtailed through vigorous external and internal austerities like (the two sides of) a beam well-chiselled and evened out, and having thus prepared himself for Death Sublime (samādhi-marana), should become free from attachment and activities of the body.

- १२६ अनुपविसित्ता गाम वा, नगर वा, खेडं वा, कब्बड वा, मडं वा, पट्टणं वा, दोणमुहं वा, आगर वा, आसमं वा, सण्णिवेसं वा, णिगम वा रायहाणि वा, तणाइ जाएज्जा, तणाइ जाएत्ता से तमायाए एगतमवक्कमेज्जा, एगतमवक्कमेत्ता अप्पडे अप्प-पाणे अप्प-बीए अप्प-हरिए अप्पोसे अप्पोदए अप्पुत्तिग-पणग-दग-मट्ठिय-मक्कडासताणए, पडिलेहिय-पडिलेहिय पमज्जिय-पमज्जिय तणाइ सथरेज्जा, तणाइ सथरेत्ता एत्थ वि समए काय च, जोग च, इरियं च, पच्चक्खाएज्जा ।

126. Anupavisittā gāmaṃ vā, nagaraṃ vā, khedaṃ vā, kabbadaṃ vā, madambhaṃ vā, pattanāṃ vā, donamuhāṃ vā, āgaram vā, āsamaṃ vā, sannivesaṃ vā, ṇigamaṃ vā rāyahāṇi vā, taṇāṃ jāeja, taṇāṃ jāetta se tamāyāe egāntamavakkamejja, egāntamavakkametta appaṃde appa-pāṇe appa-bīe appa-hariē appose appodae apputtiṅga-paṇaga-dagamaṭṭiya-makkaḍḍāsamtāṇae, paḍilehiya-paḍilehiya-pamajjiya-pamajjiya taṇāṃ samtharejja, taṇāṃ samtharettā ettha vi samae kāyaṃ ca, jogaṃ ca, iriyaṃ ca, paccakkhā-ejja.

126. (Thus exerting in saṃlekhanā, when the monk finds himself physically infirm,) he should enter a village, or a town, or a town two miles long (kheḍḍā), or a village at the foot of a mountain (karvatam), or an isolated village (madaṁba), or a larger town (paṭṭana) or a capital of four hundred villages (dronamukha) or a mine-like abode (ākara), or a hermitage (āśrama) or a settlement of huts (samīveśa), or a city (nīgama), or a capital (rājadhāni) and beg for straw-stack (hay). After having got it, he should retire into seclusion somewhere outside (the village etc.). After having thoroughly examined and cleaned the ground where there are no eggs (of insects), nor insects, nor seeds, nor sprouts, nor dew, nor water, nor ant-holes, nor mildew, nor marsh, nor cobwebs, he should make a bed of straw on it. He should then observe the religious fast unto death called prāyopagāmana and abandon the body, its motions (such as blinking of eyes, etc.) and movements.

१२७ त सच्च सच्चावादी ओए तिण्णे छिन्ना-कहकहे आतीतद्दे
अणातीते वेच्चाण भेउरं कायं, सविहूणिय विरूवरूवे परिसहोव-
सग्गे अस्सि विस्स भइता भेरवमणुचिण्णे ।

127. Taṁ saccam saccāvādī oe tinne chinna-kahamkahe ātitaṭṭhe anāṭite veccāṇa bhevaṁ kāyaṁ, samvihūṇiya virūvarūve parisahovasagge assuṁ viṣṣaṁ bhaittā bheravamanucinne.

127. The prāyopagāmana-fast is a righteous (undertaking). The monk, remaining truthful (i. e., one who faithfully carries all his vows to completion) and devoid of passions, successfully crossing the Ocean of Worldly Existence, remaining free from doubt about his ability to carry the fast through, being blessed in every possible way with the happy feeling of accomplishment, remaining unaffected by circumstances, realizing that the body is mortal, subjugating various hardships and troubles, recognizing the separateness of body and soul and experiencing the same, accomplishes (unperturbedly) this formidable (bhairava) task (of fast unto death).

१२८. तत्थावि तस्स कालपरियाए ।

128. Tatthāvi tassa kālapariyāe.

128. Such an act is not to be branded miserable and untimely death.

१२९. से तत्थ विमत्तिकाराए ।

129. Se tattha viam̐tikārae.

129. Such an end may even lead him to the attainment of final emancipation from (bonds) (i. e., total annihilation of karma).

१३०. इच्चेतं विमोहायतणं हियं, सुहं, खमं, णिस्सेयसं, आणुगामिय ।

—त्ति बेमि ।

130. Icchetam̐ vimohāyatanam̐ hiyam̐, suham̐, khamam̐, nisseyasam̐, āṇugāmiyam̐.

— Tti bemi.

130. Such a death is a peaceful haven for all those monks who are totally free from the craving for life. It is beneficial and conducive to happiness; it is timely (i. e., justified under the circumstances) salutary (i. e., leading to beatitude) and proves to be of great assistance in the Journey Beyond.

— I say so.

SECTION VIII

अट्टमो उद्देशो

Atthamo Uddeso

अणसण-पदं

- १ आणुपुब्बी-विमोहाइ, जाइ धीरा समासज्ज ।
वसुमतो मइमतो, सव्व णच्चा अणेलिसं ॥

Aṇasaṇa-padam

1. Āṇupuvvī-vimohāim, jāim dhīrā samāsajja.
Vasumanto maimanto, savvaṃ ṇaccā aṇelisam. .

Fast Unto Death

1. When the courageous self-disciplined and wise monks come to know that the right time for undertaking 'the fast unto death' (anaśana) known as "āṇupūrvi vimokṣa or avyāghāta maraṇa) which is the last stage of uninterrupted process of sādhana (i.e. ascetic practices), has come, they should acquaint themselves with the code of the three types of anaśana viz. Bhakta-pratyākhyāna, īṅgini maraṇa, and prāyopagamana) which are quite different from bāla maraṇa.

ANNOTATION 1. 'A fast unto death' undertaken for attaining Death Sublime, is of three kinds:

- (a) Bhakta Pratyākhyāna;
(b) īṅgini (īṅgita) Marāṇa; and
(c) Prāyopagamana

Section five, six and seven respectively deal with these three. The fourth section lays down the conditions for viññā- yomarāṇa (i. e. deliberately ending one's life by hanging).

Fasting is of two kinds:

- (a) Saparākrama (undertaken when the body is strong).
- (b) Aparākrama (undertaken when the body grows weak).

Classified in another way, fasting is of two kinds:

- (a) Vyāghāta-yukta i. e. undertaken suddenly on account of some incident.
- (b) Avyāghāta i. e. undertaken in the normal course.

While the earlier sections deal with the former kind of anaśana, the present section deals with the latter one. As the avyāghāta anaśana is not abrupt or sudden but is achieved in serial order of development, it is also called ānupūrvī" (vide, the Niryukti, verse 263).

The various steps in the series of ānupūrvī fast are as follows:

- (a) getting initiated into ascetic life;
- (b) studying the Scriptures;
- (c) learning their deeper meaning and significance;
- (d) after having attained efficiency in the Scripture and their interpretations, imparting this knowledge to the deserving disciples;
- (e) after having taken due permission of the Preceptor, undertaking gradual attenuation of the body (saṁlekhanā);
- (f) then, finally, undertaking fast unto death (leading to Death Sublime), choosing one of the above three kinds of fasts and abandoning threefold daily necessities, viz. food, implements (clothes, bowls, etc.) and lodging.

भत्तापच्चवखाण-पदं

- २ दुविहं पि विदित्तानं, बुद्धा धम्मस्स पारगा ।
अणुपुव्वीए सखाए, आरम्भाओ तिउट्ठति ॥

Bhattapaccakkhāṇa-padam

2. Duviham pi vidittānam, buddhā dhammassa pāragā.
Aṇupuvvie saṁkhāe, ārambhāo tiuṭṭati..

Bhakta-Pratyākhyāna

2. Those monks who are enlightened and proficient in religion realize that both (the external objects such as body and its daily necessities and the internal impulses and passions) are fit to be abandoned. Passing through the orderly stages of attaining ānupūrvī fast, and having duly discerned the benefits accruing from the voluntary abandonment of the body, these monks, forswear all activities (ārambhā)¹.

३. कसाए पयणुए किच्चा, अप्पाहारो तित्तिक्खए ।

अहं भिक्खू गिलाएज्जा, आहारस्सेव अतिय ॥

3. Kasāe payanue kiccā, appāhāro titikkhae.
Aha bhikkhū gilāejjā, āhārasseva amtiyam..

3. Such a monk attenuates (curbs) passions, curtails his diet and patiently endures (the consequences thereof). The progressive reduction of food emaciates his body and brings him almost to death.

ANNOTATION 3. In the present verse, the method of curtailment of passions and that of food respectively called bhava-samlekhana and āravya samlekhana has been indicated.

1. Ārambha: This term signifies here all those activities such as going out-begging food and other necessities to sustain life, rendering services to fellow-ascetics and studying the scriptures, etc. undertaken to assist the practice of asceticism.

The dravya-samlekhanā lasts for twelve years. According to the Uttarādhyayana (36/25-255), the order in which food can be curtailed is as follows:

The first four years — Vikṛti-parityāga (i. e. abandonment of rich food) or ācāmla (i. e. eating only a single item of food). The next four years — Special penance such as fasting for a day, for two days for three days etc. and taking appropriate breakfast. The 9th and the 10th years — Fasting on alternate days and ācāmla in breakfast.

The first half of the 11th year — fasting for one day and two days. The second half of the 11th year — Severer penances such as fasting for three or four days or more days.

During the whole of the 11th year, the ācāmla in breakfast. In the first six months reduced diet on the day of ācāmla and a full diet on such occasions is permissible during the next six months of the 11th year.

During the 12th year — Ācāmla coupled with another penance, i. e. either continuous acāmla or ācāmla with another penance alternately.

At the end of the 12th year — Fasting for a fortnight or a whole month or Bhakta Pratyākhyāna, etc.

According to the Niśītha Cūrṇi, taking food is reduced in such a way that complete abandonment of food and death coincide. During the last four months of this year, the mouth is kept oiled so that the speech-organs do not cease to function and there is no difficulty in reciting the Namaskāra-mantra etc. (Uttarajjhyaṇāpi, vol. II, notes, pp. 263-264).

४. जीविद्यं णामिकखेज्जा, मरणं णोवि पत्यए ।

दुहतोवि ण सज्जेज्जा, जीविते मरणे तहा ॥

4. Jīviyaṃ ṇābhikaṃkhejjā, maraṇaṃ novi patthae.
Duhatovi ṇa sajjejjā, jivite maraṇe taha..

4. Enfeebled, he should neither crave for life, nor long for death. He should not get attached to either life or death.

५ मज्झत्थो णिज्जरापेही, समाहिमणुपालए ।

अतो वहि विउसिज्ज, अज्झत्थ सुद्धमेसए ॥

5. Majjhattho nijjarāpehī, samāhimanupālae.
Añto bahū viusijja, ajjhattham suddhamesae. .

5. The equipoised¹ monk, intent on shedding the karma (nirjara)², should maintain complete composure³. Sloughing off the internal as well as the external (encumbrances; viz. rāga and dveṣa and the body), he should engage himself in the pursuit of the pure Self⁴.

६ ज किचुवक्कम जाणे, आउक्खेमस्स अप्पणो ।

तस्सेव अतरद्दाए, खिप्प सिक्खेज्ज पंडिए ॥

1. Madhyastha: During the period of fasting, a monk should maintain equanimity both in midst of favourable and unfavourable circumstances such as life-death, pleasure-pain, etc. This has been indicated by the author of the scriptures by the word 'madhyastha'.

2. Nirjarāprekṣi: The mainstay of this equanimity is nirjarā (shedding off of the karma). A monk observing fast is always intent upon nirjara, without which he cannot remain dispassionate.

3. Samādhi: Knowledge, perception, conduct, penance, and spiritual vigours — these five are the constituents of samādhi (i. e. complete composure). A fasting monk must experience this five fold composure.

4. Pursuit of the Pure Self: The first step of spiritual pursuit is the reduction of physical activities and unattachment towards the body. This leads him to self-introspection wherein he perceives the impulses of rāga and dveṣa. Not perceiving the pure self, he penetrates still deeper into the innermost recesses of his soul. Ultimately, Conscient Reality (the self) in its purest and most spiritual form becomes manifest to him.

6. Jaṃ kiṃcuvakkamaṃ jāṇe, āukkhemassa appaṇo.
Tasseva aṃtaraddhāe, khippaṃ sikkhejja paṇḍie..
6. If a wise monk, unexpectedly encounters a contingency, during the course of his orderly progress of samīlekhana (i.e. step-by-step attenuation of body through penances), he should at once go to (the extreme step of) giving up nourishment in the middle.
- ७ गामे वा अदुवा रण्णे, थडिल पडिलेहिया ।
अप्पपाण तु विण्णाय, तणाइं सथरे मुणी ॥
7. Gāme vā aduvā ranṇe, thaṃḍilaṃ paḍilehiyā.
Appapāṇaṃ tu viṇṇāya, taṇāiṃ saṃthare muṇi..
7. The monk should enter a village or an unpopulated area, and after having thoroughly inspected a plot of ground free from living being, he should make a bed of straw on it.
८. अणाहारो तुअट्टेज्जा, पुट्ठो तत्थ हियासए ।
णातिवेलं उवचरे, माणुस्सेहि वि पुट्ठओ ॥
8. Anāhāro tuatṭejjā, putṭho tattha hiyāsaē.
Nāativelaṃ uvacare, māṇussehiṃ vi putṭhao..
8. After having solemnly resolved to give up food (and water, or food only), the monk should lie down on the straw bed. Having done so, if he happens to be oppressed by hunger, thirst or other rigours, he should bear them with fortitude. Or if he encounters any pleasing or painful conditions created by other people, he should not infringe the sanctity of his vow.
९. ससप्पगा य जे पाणा, जे य उद्धमहेचरा ।
भुजति मंस-सोणिय, ण छणे ण पमज्जए ॥
9. Saṃsappagā ya je pāṇā, je ya uddhamahēcarā.
Bhujanti maṃsa-soniyaṃ, ṇa chaṇe ṇa pamajjaē..
9. If crawling insects (such as ants), or birds (such as vultures), or creatures living underground (such as rats) feed on the monk's flesh, or if the insects such as mosquitoes suck his blood, he should not kill them and should not even ward them off with his broom.

१०. पाणा देहं विहिंसति, ठाणाओ ण विउब्भमे ।
आसवेहिं विवित्तेहिं, तिप्पमाणेहियासए ॥

10. Pāṇā dehaṃ vihiṃsaṃti, thāṇāo na viubbhame.
Āsavehuṃ vivittehuṃ, tippamaṇehiyāse..

10. (He should deem that) "(Although) these creatures are destroying my body, (they are not destroying the essential attributes of my soul)". Even if he is harassed by them, he should not budge an inch from his posture (or fall from his spiritual elevation). As soon as the influx of karma particles has stopped, the monk feels self-satisfied (as if with ambrosia). (Thus satisfied) a monk should cheerfully forbear all hardships encountered by him.

११ गयेहिं विवित्तेहिं, आउकालस्स पारए ।

11. Gaṃtthehuṃ vivittehuṃ, āukālassa pārae.

11. All his complexes are fully resolved and he fulfils his pledge of fasting unto death.

इंगिणिमरण-पद

पगगहियतरां चैयं, दवियस्स वियाणतो ॥

Imgiṇimarāṇa-padam

Paggahiyataragaṃ ceyam, daviyassa viyāṇato..
(Imgiṇi Marāṇa)

This (imgiṇi marāṇa fast) is of a higher order (than bhakta-pratyākhyāna). Only the very learned (who have the knowledge of at least nine pūrvas)¹ and self-disciplined monks embrace it.

1. The Pūrvas constitute one of the canonical texts of the Jains. Originally they were fourteen in number. They contained the vast oral tradition (or the Śrutajñāna). They have been lost.

१२. अयं से अवरे धम्मे, णायपुत्तेण साहिए।

आयवज्जं पडीयारं, विजहिज्जा तिहा तिहा ॥

12. Ayaṃ se avare dhamme, ṇāyaputtena sāhie.
Āyavajjaṃ paḍiyāraṃ, vijahijjā tihā tihā..

12. Bhagavān Mahāvira (Nātaputta) has propounded the code of imṅi maraṇa fast differently from that of bhakta-pratyākhyāna. In the course of this anaśana, the monk is allowed to stand or sit or walk up and down (within limited place) but without taking another's support. He should neither take support himself nor ask others to do so, nor should be approve of others doing so.

१३ हरिएसु ण निवज्जेज्जा, थमिल मुणिआ सए।

विउसिज्ज अणाहारो, पुट्ठो तत्थहियासए ॥

13. Hariesu ṇa nivaḷḷejjā, thaṃḍilaṃ muṇiā sae.
Viṇsiḷḷa aṇāhāro, puṭṭho tatthahiyāsaē..

13. He should not lie down on a grassy spot; but only on sthaṇḍila (i.e. ground bereft of green grass and living beings like insects, etc.) Thus should the fasting monk abandon (his body etc.) completely and endure severe rigours (like the pangs of hunger and thirst.).

१४ इदिएहि गिलायंते, समिय साहरे मुणी।

तहावि से अगरिहे, अचले जे समाहिए ॥

14. Imḍiehiṃ gilāyaṃte, samiyaṃ sāhare muṇi.
Tahāvi se agarīhe, acale je samāhie..

14. On getting enfeebled (and fatigued), the monk may make slight movements of the body, like contracting the limbs. By doing so, he who is tranquil and composed does not transgress the sanctity of his pledge.

१५ अभिक्कमे पडिक्कमे, सकुचए पसारए।

काय-साहारणट्ठाए , एत्थ वावि अचेयणे ॥

15. Abhikkame paḍikkame, saṃkucāe pasārae.
Kāya-sāharaṇaṭṭhāe, etthaṃ vāvi aceyane..

15. (In case of getting fatigued as a result of incessant sitting or lying in the same posture), the fasting monk may move to and fro, or contract and stretch (his limbs). (But if his bodily strength permits), he should remain motionless as if he were unconscious in the course of this anaśana also.

१६ परक्कमे परिकिलते, अदुवा चिट्ठे अहायते ।
ठाणेण परिकिलते, णिसिएज्जा य अतसो ॥

16. Parakkame parikilaṁte, aduvā ciṭṭhe ahāyate.
Thāṇeṇa parikilaṁte, ṇisīejjā ya aṁtaso..

16. If he feels fatigued after lying for a long time, he may move to and fro or may stand erect. If he feels tired of standing, he may finally sit down and rest.

१७ आसीणे णेलिस मरण, इदियाणि समीरण ।
कोलावास समासज्ज, वितह पाउरेसण ॥

17. Āsīṇe nelisaṁ maraṇaṁ, iddiyāṇi samīraṇe.
Kolāvāsaṁ samāsajja, vitahaṁ pāuresae..

17. While observing this extraordinary fast unto death, he would make right and proper use of all his sense organs (i. e. he would have neither attachment nor aversion to desirable or undesirable objects. He should not lean against a wooden pillar eaten by timber worms and/or infested with white ants, but should look for one which is (clearly) free from insects or worms or little holes created by them.

१८ जओ वज्ज समुप्पज्जे, ण तत्थ अवलवण ।
ततो उक्कसे अप्पाण, सव्वे फासेहियासण ॥

18. Jao vajjaṁ samuppajje, na tattha avalambae.
Tato ukkase appāṇaṁ, sāvve phāsehiyāsae..

18. The fasting monk should not lean against any thing which engenders the bondage of karma. He should keep himself away from it and bear all hardships.

पाओवगमण-पदं

- १९ अय चायततरे सिया, जो एवं अणुपालए ।
सव्वगायणिरोधेवि , ठाणातो ण विउब्भमे ॥

Pāvogamana-padam

19. Ayaṃ cāyatatare siyā, jo evaṃ aṇupālae.
Savvagāyanīrodhevi, ṭhāṇāto ṇa viubbhame..

Prāyopagamana

19. The (prāyopagamana) anaśana is superior even to inṅiṇi maraṇa. A monk embracing it should not budge (even slightly) from his posture even though his whole body may become stiff.

२०. अय से उत्तमे धम्मे, पुव्वट्ठाणस्स पग्गहे ।
अचिर पडिलेहिता, विहरे चिट्ठ माहणे ॥

20. Ayaṃ se uttame dhamme, puvvatthāṇassa paggahe.
Aciraṃ padilehittā, vihare ciṭṭha māhaṇe..

20. This is the supreme Dharma. It also includes the codes of conduct described earlier (in the context of the inṅiṇi maraṇa and bhakta-pratyākhyāna). It is characterised by total motionlessness. A monk (who observes this fast) should look for a spot free from any living beings and occupy it remaining motionless¹.

२१. अचित्तं तु समासज्ज, ठावए तत्थ अप्पगं ।
वोसिरे सव्वसो कायं, ण मे देहे परीसहा ॥

21. Acittaṃ tu samāsajja, ṭhāvae tattha appagam.
Vosire savvaso kāyaṃ, ṇa me dehe parisahā..

21. The monk may obtain (some thing like a wooden plank or stand,) free from any living being, and establish himself on (or against) it (in a suitable posture). He should completely abandon his body, (relaxing it

1. The Cūrṇi & Vṛtti have explained 'ciṭṭha' as 'sthita'.

completely). (If difficulties or adversities come, he should remain unaffected, and deem:) "Now when the body itself does not belong to me, how can the suffering (accompanying it) (ever affect me)?"

२२. जावज्जीवं परिसहा, उवसग्गा य संखाय । सवुडे देहमेयाए, इति पण्णेहियासए ॥

22. Jāvajjīvaṃ paṛisahā, uvasaggā ya saṁkhāya.
Saṁvuḍe dehabheyāe, iti paṇṇehiyāsaē..

22. Knowing that hardships and difficulties last only as long as life endures, the wise monk who has already subjected his body to total abandonment and (is fully prepared) for its dissolution, should endure them with evenness of mind.

२३ भेउरेसु न रज्जेज्जा, कामेसु बहुतरेसु वि ।
इच्छा-लोभं ण सेवेज्जा, सुहमं वण्णं सपेहिया ॥

23. Bheuresu na rajjejjā, kāmesu bahutaresu vi.
Icchā-lobhaṃ ṇa sevejja, suhamaṃ vaṇṇaṃ sapehiyā..

23. There are many sensual pleasures (emanating from sound etc.), but they are all transient. The monk (therefore) should not wallow in them. He should not even wish for any material gain as a reward. Self discipline is subtly exquisite, and the one, who perceives it should not deviate from it.

ANNOTATION 23. Desire is of two kinds:

- (a) Lust for sex, and
- (b) Craving for pleasure.

In the present śloka, the monk has been admonished to remain unattached to both kinds of desire. At the ebb of one's life, one might be tempted to wish for specific material gain as a reward of one's penances in the form of the attainment of the highest position of glory in the next birth. But a sādhaka being desireless should refrain from such vicious aspirations.

२४. सासएहि णिमतेज्जा, दिव्वं मायं ण सद्देहं ॥
त पडिबुज्झ माहणे, सव्वं नूमं विधूणिया ॥

24. Sāsahehiṃ nimantejjā, divvaṃ māyaṃ ṇa saddahe.
Taṃ paḍibujjha māhaṇe, savaṃ nūmaṃ vidhūṇiya.

24. The monk should not succumb to enticements, when invited to divine reveleries by the gods. He should not be misled by their illusive tricks. Penetrating the veil of illusion, he should clearly perceive the truth.

२५. सव्वट्ठेहि अमुच्छिए, आउकालस्स पारए । तित्तिकख परमं णच्चा, विमोहणतर हित ॥

—सि बेमि ।

25. Savvaṭṭhehiṃ amucchie, āukālassa pārae.
Tittikkhaṃ paramaṃ ṇaccā, vimohaṇṇataram hitaṃ.

— Tti bemi.

25. Not tantalised by any allurements — human or divine, he should reach the end of his life-span. Keeping stoicism at a premium, he should take recourse to one of the three kinds of vimoksa (fast unto death) viz. bhaktā-pratyākhyāna, ingitā maraṇa and prā-yopagamana, which is conducive to beatitude.

— I say so.

CHAPTER IX

THE EXCELLENCE OF RIGHTEOUSNESS

नवमं अज्झयणं

उवहाण-सुयं

NAVAMAM AJJHAYANAṂ

UVAHĀṆA SUYAṂ

Padhamo Uddeso

१. अहासुय वदिस्सामि, जहा से समणे भगवं उट्ठाय ।
संखाए तसि हेमते, अहुणा पण्वइए रीयत्था ॥

1. Ahāsuyam vadissāmi, jahā se samaṇe bhagavaṃ
uṭṭhāya.
Samkhāe taṃsi hemaṃte, ahunā pavvare riyatthā..

1. (The Venerable Sudharmā said, "O Jambū!) I shall relate to you what I have heard of the rambles of the Venerable Ascetic (Bhagavān Mahāvīra, the Śramana). After having discovered the Truth, the Bhagavān renounced worldly life. On getting initiated into ascetic life, (on the tenth day of the first fortnight of the lunar month of Mṛgaśīra (corresponding to November) in winter, at Kṣatriya-Kuṇḍapura (at present in Muzaffarpur District of Bihar)), the Bhagavān left immediately for ascetic wanderings.

२. णो चेविमेण वत्थेण, पिहिस्सामि तस्स हेमते ।

से पारए आवक्खाए, एय खु अणुधम्मियं तस्स ॥

2. No cevimeṇa vatthena, pihiṣṣāmi taṃsī hemaṃte.
Se pārae āvakahāe, eyaṃ khu aṇudhammiyaṃ tassa..
2. (At the time of initiation, the Bhagavān had put on only one robe. He resolved:) "I shall not cover myself with this robe in winter." He was pledged to forbear the severities of cold all his life. This, in fact, comprised his anudharma (i. e. way of life in harmony with his sādhana).

ANNOTATION 2. Bhagavān Mahāvīra was the propounder of anudharma, which has two main characteristics:

- (a) non-violence, and
- (b) stoicism.

(Cf. Sūyagaḍḍo, 1/2/14, Text and Commentary,)

३ चत्तारि साहिए मासे, बहवे पाण-जाइया आगम्म ।

अभिरुज्झ काय विहरिस्सु, आरुसियाण तत्थ हिंसिस्सु ॥

3. Cattāri sāhie māse, bahave pāṇa-jāiyā āgammā.
Abhirujjha kāyaṃ viharimṣu, ārusiyāṇaṃ tattha himsimsu..
3. (On the eve of initiation, the body of Bhagavān Mahāvīra was anointed with divine "Gośīrsa" sandalwood and perfumed powders, attracted by which living beings like black-bees and wasps came. They tried to suck the honey (which was not there) from the body of Bhagavān Mahāvīra, and which fact irked them into stinging the Bhagavān's body. This went on for over four months.

ANNOTATION 3. The aroma emanating from the anointed body of Bhagavān Mahāvīra was very sweet and delightful. Attracted by it, many young people would come to the Bhagavān and ask for various kinds of perfumaries. The Bhagavān observed a sacred silence; he would say nothing to the visitors. Displeased with him they would ruefully remark: "What on earth is the matter with you? Why don't you give us something?" Another spell of silence. Annoyed with this they would maltreat him.

Unruffled by all this, the Bhagavān would stand in the posture of meditation. Womenfolk got attracted to his body which was free from the bad smell of perspiration and filth, and to his mouth which was full of sweet breath. They used to inquire "Where do you live? Where can one find this scented stuff? Who manufactures it?" But the Bhagavān's sacred silence would continue.

Thus his extra-ordinary physique plus the fragrant anointment on it became the cause of his predicament. (Ācārāṅga Sūtra, p. 300).

४ सवच्छर साह्य मास, ज ण रिक्कासि वत्थग भगवं ।

अचेलए ततो चाई, त वोसज्ज वत्थमणगारे ॥

4. Samvaccharam sāhiyaṃ māsaṃ, jaṃ ṇa rikkāsī vatthagāṃ bhagavaṃ.
Acelae tato cāi, taṃ vosajja vatthamaṇagāre.

4. The Bhagavān did not discard his robe for thirteen months. The homeless and world-relinquishing Venerable One abandoned it for good and remained blissfully naked ever since.

ANNOTATION 4. The purport of the text seems to be that Bhagavān Mahāvīra initiated himself into ascetic life with a robe on, which he later discarded. He did so on principle.

Later tradition, however, has it that when the Bhagavān was passing by the bank of the river Swarnabāluka, his robe got caught up in some thorny bush and was swept away by the currents of the river. A brahmin who happened to pass by, picked it up.

The supposition that the said robe could have remained intact on the Bhagavān's shoulders for thirteen months after initiation, and that the Bhagavān discarded it just when it got caught up in a thorny bush, seems irrelevant and baseless. A much more plausible theory seems to be that the Bhagavān did not put on the robe to protect himself from cold but that he did so merely to cover up the privities. As a matter of fact, this is not alien to the Nir-grantha (the Jain) tradition. This is corroborated by the Buddhist scriptures which mention Nirgranthas clad in one single robe (ekaśāṭaka) (vide, the Āṅguttara Nikāya). When the Bhagavān attained the higher stages of sādhana, he completely abandoned even that piece of robe and became totally acela (naked monk). (Cf. Ācārāṅga Cūrṇi, p. 300).

५ अदु पोरिसिं तिरियं भित्तिं, चक्खुमासज्ज अंतसो ह्माइ ।

अह चक्खु-भीया सहिया, तं "हंता हंता" बहवे कंदिसु ॥

5. Adu porisim tiriyaṁ bhiṭṭim, cakkhumāsajja aṁtaso jhāi.
Aha cakkhu-bhiyā sahiyā, taṁ "hamtā-hamtā" bahave kaṁdimsu..

5. Intensely concentrating his mind on a slanting wall, the Bhagavān meditated for hours on end with his gaze firmly fixed. (The eye-balls used to bulge out, on account of the hard stare over a long period). Children used to get awe-stricken by this rather unusual spectacle, and invited other children to come and watch him, with the outcry 'Goodness Gracious! Oh dear!'¹

1. Both, author of the Cūrṇi and the Commentator have interpreted it as follows-

"He used to walk carefully with his eyes fixed on the path gradually widening, and of the length of a man (roughly six feet). Shocked at the spectacle of the Bhagavān's walking with his gaze fixed, children used to raise a hue and cry and attracted the other boys to it." Dr. Herman Jacobi, who has translated this sūtra on the basis of the explanation given by the commentator, has, however, mooted this point: "I cannot make out the exact meaning of it, perhaps, so that he was a wall for the animals."

Fixing the gaze on the wall has been the meditative technique of the Buddhist monks also. In the present text of Āyāro itself (2/125), we find that this very technique of meditation has been mentioned. The commentator of the Bhagavaiī Sūtra, Shri Abhayadeva Suri has also interpreted the word tiryagbhitti as the rampart (prākāra), or the wall of a mound, or the

६ सयणेहिं वितिमिस्सेहिं, इत्थीओ तत्थ से परिणाय ।
सागारियं ण सेवे, इति से सय पवेसिया ज्ञाति ॥

6. Sayanehim vitimissehim, itthiō tattha se parināya.
Sāgāriyaṃ ṇa seve, iti se sayam pavesiyā jhāti. .

6. Bhagavān Mahāvira did not (usually) stay in crowded places. (Sometime he managed to find a secluded area and stayed there). But this seclusion was often invaded by womenfolk who happened to pass that way (in search of solitude). (Although solicited by women for carnal enjoyment), the Bhagavān would spurn their advances, for he was all the time morally alert. Penetrating into the depths of his soul, he would go in meditation on such an occasion.

७ जे के इमे अगारत्था, मीसीभाव पहाय से ज्ञाति ।
पुट्ठो वि नाभिभासिसु, गच्छति नाइवत्तई अजू ॥

7. Je ke ime agāratthā, mīsībhāvaṃ pahāya se jhāti.
Putṭho vī nābhibhāsim̐su, gacchati nāivattai aṃjū. .

7. Bhagavān Mahāvira meditated with deep concentration even in the midst of places crowded with householders. He would not speak even when spoken to. If someone compelled him to speak, he would quietly move to some other place. He would not let his concentration be disturbed in any way and would remain equipoised in all situations.

ANNOTATIONS 6-7. The Bhagavān would choose a secluded place for meditation. If he did not get one, he would seclude himself — i. e. he would shut himself out from all extraneous circumstances and get himself immersed deeply in the very depths of the innermost soul. To look for a secluded place, or (if such a place is not easily available) to seclude oneself from all external objects—is very useful and advantageous for meditation.

rock. (Vide, the Bhagavati Sūtra, Commentary, pp. 543-44).

८. णो सुगरमेतमेगेसि, णाभिभासे अभिवायमाणे ।
हयपुव्वो तत्थ दडेहि, लूसियपुव्वो अप्पपुण्णेहि ॥

8. Ṇo sugarametamegeṣiṃ, ṇābhībhāse abhivāyamāṇe.
Hayapuvvo tattha daṇḍehiṃ, lūsiyapuvvo appapunne-hiṃ..

8. The Bhagavān would not give his blessings to those who greeted him. Nor would he curse even those who would bash him up with a cudgel or would try to mutilate his limbs. This high stage of sādhana is not easily accessible to every sādhaka.

ANNOTATION 8. According to the author of the Cūrṇi when the Bhagavān was passing through Corapalli, efforts were made to mutilate his limbs or bite his body, (vide, Ācārāṅga Cūrṇi, p. 302).

९ फरसाइ दुत्तिटिक्खाइ, अतिअच्च मुणी परक्कममाणे ।
आघाय-णट्ट-गीताइ , दडजुद्धाइ मुट्ठिजुद्धाइ ॥

9. Phārusāiṃ duttitikkhāiṃ, atīacca muṇī parakkama- māṇe.
Āghāya-ṇaṭṭa-gītāiṃ, daṇḍajuddhāiṃ muṭṭhijuddhāiṃ..

9. The Bhagavān would turn a deaf ear to harsh words and unbearable insults. He kept himself vigorously engrossed in spiritual pursuits. He would take no interest in graphic narratives, colourful plays, songs, cudgel-fights and boxing (and such other entertainments).

ANNOTATION 9. Bhagavān Mahāvīra would forbear both kinds of rigours or hardships, favourable and unfavourable. A musician was playing on a lute (vaṇṇā). On seeing the Bhagavān who happened to pass that way at that time, he said, "My Bhagavān! Please stop to hear my performance." But Bhagavān Mahāvīra politely refused, and quietly went away. To evince interest in any kind of entertainment colourful or euphonious, is a kind of tempting predicament for a sādhaka.

१०. गदिए मिहो - कहासु , समयमि नायसुए विसोगे अददखू ।

एताइ सो उरालाइ , गच्छइ नायपुत्ते असरणाए ॥

10. Gadhie miho-kahāsu, samayaṃmi nāyasue visoge
adakkhū.
Etāṃ so urālāṃ, gacchai nāyaputte asaraṇāe..

10. The Bhagavān would turn indifferent to people engaged in bawdy talks and amorous gestures without being moved by them. He would not evince any interest in, or pay any heed to, any of these trials — favourable or unfavourable. This is how he circumvented them all.

११. अविसाहिए दुवे वासे, सीतोद अभोच्चा णिवसते ।

एगत्तगए पिहियच्चे, से अहिण्णायदसणे सते ॥

11. Avisāhie duve vāse, sītodaṃ abhoccā ṇikkhamte.
Egattagae pihiyacce, se ahinṇāyadamsaṇe saṃte..

11. The Bhagavān lived home-life for more than two years (after the death of his parents). During that period, he did not take any animate food or water. Even though he lived with the members of his family, his soul was solitary. His body, mind, speech and senses — everything remained untainted. He always perceived Truth and kept constant company with Peace. (After this sūdhana in the midst of his family), he renounced home-life.

ANNOTATION 11. Bhagavān Mahāvīra was 28 years old, when his parents died. He expressed his desire to embrace asceticism at once. At that time his elder brother Nandī-wardhana and other relatives of his requested the Bhagavān, "Oh my dear Prince! please, do not add insult to injury by saying so. You know fully well that our parents are no more, and on top of this you too want to leave the family." Bearing this entreaty in mind, Bhagavān Mahāvīra thought to himself, "If I took to initiation now I may cause sadness to many people and this may make them miserable. Some people in the family might even commit suicide. This is not desirable."

Relenting, he said, "Please tell me how long I should remain with you?" Nandivardhana answered, "The death of the king and the queen will be mourned for two years, for which period you must live with us." The Bhagavān acceded to his request. The Bhagavān said, "You must however accede to a request of mine as well. I must have my own choice in matters of food etc. No one should interfere with me. If these terms are acceptable to you, then alone I can stay in this home for two years." Nandivardhana and others agreed to this.

During this period, the Bhagavān did not take any animate food or drink. He would wash his hands and feet with inanimate water, but never take a full bath. He led a life of non-violence, truth, non-stealing, continence and non-acquisitiveness. He did not take meals at night. He remained totally unattached to his family. This was an experiment in asceticism in the midst of the homelife.

१२. पुढवि च आउकाय, तेउकाय च वाउकायं च ।

पणगाइ बीय-हरियाइ, तसकाय च सव्वसो णच्चा ॥

12. Puḍhaviṃ ca āukāyaṃ, teukāyaṃ ca vaukāyaṃ ca.
Paṇagāiṃ biya-hariyāiṃ, tasakāyaṃ ca savvaso paṇṇā .

१३. एयाइ सति पडिलेहे, चित्तमताइ से अभिण्णाय ।

परिवज्जिया ण विहरित्था, इति सखाए से महावीरे ॥

13. Eyāiṃ samti paḍilehe, cittamaṃtāi se abhiṇṇāya.
Parivajjiyā ṇa viharitthā, iti saṃkhāe se mahāvīre .

12- After having fully known the (existence of) living
13. beings of earth-body, water-body, fire-body, air-body and mildew, seed and vegetation and mobile living beings, and after having recognized their existence, and ascertained their animatedness, the Bhagavān cheerfully rambled about doing no violence to them.

१४. अदु थावरा तसत्ताए, तसजीवा य थावरत्ताए ।

अदु सव्वजोणिया सत्ता, कम्मुणा कप्पिया पुढो बाला ॥

14. Adu thāvarā tasattāe, tasajīvā ya thāvarattāe.
Adu savvajoniyā sattā, kammunā kappiyā puḍho bālā .

14. Stationary creatures may be reborn in the species of mobile beings and vice versa. Living beings are prone to be reborn in any of the genera of beings. The ignorant beings are reborn into different genera because of their own karma.

ANNOTATION 14. In those days, the belief was current that a female is reborn as a female and a male as a male; a rich man is reborn as a rich man; and a muni as a muni. Bhagavān Mahāvīra repudiated this general belief and established the principle of the possibility of rebirth in any genus. According to this, the variety of karma causes change of genera in rebirth.

१५ भगव च एव मन्नेसि, सोवहिं हु लुप्पती बाले ।

कम्म च सव्वसो णच्चा, तं पडियाइक्खे पावगं भगव ॥

15. Bhagavaṃ ca evaṃ mannesiṃ, sōvahie hu luppātī bāle.
Kammaṃ ca savvaso ṇaccā, taṃ paḍiyāikkhe pāvagaṃ bhagavaṃ..

15. An ignorant person's accumulation of possessions culminates into his (spiritual) destruction. Reflecting thus, and knowing fully well the (consequences of) karmic bondage, the Bhagavān vowed not to commit sin.

१६ दुविहं समिच्च मेहावी, किरियमक्खायणेलिसिं णाणी ।

आयाण-सोयमतिनाय-सोय, जोग च सव्वसो णच्चा ॥

16. Duvīhaṃ samicca mehāvī, kiriyamakkhāyaṇelisīṃ ṇāṇī.
Āyāṇa-soyamativāya-soyam, jogāṃ ca savvaso ṇaccā..

16. After having weighed the pros and cons of both kriyāvāda (actionism)¹ and akriyāvāda (non-actionism), and having known fully the influx of Karmic matter

1. In the Sūtrakṛtāṅga 1/12/20, 21, it has been mentioned:
Attāṇa jo jāṇai jo ya logaṃ, jo āgatiṃ jāṇai (a)-ṇāgatiṃ ca.

Jo sāsayaṃ jāna asāsayaṃ ca, jātīṃ maranaṃ ca cayaṇovavātāṃ..

through sensuality, violence, and the impulses of mind, speech, and body, the sage and wise Bhagavān propounded the unique doctrine of kriyā, not propounded by others.

ANNOTATION 16. When the Bhagavān was leading a dispassionate and detached life even in the midst of home-life, his uncle named Supārśva, his elder brother named Nandivardhana, and some other friends, said to him, "Why don't you enjoy sensual pleasures?"

The Bhagavān answered, "The senses are the sources of the influx of karmic matter. My soul is pining for emancipation. That is why I can't enjoy the sensual pleasures.

On hearing this, they said, "O Prince! why don't you drink cold (animate) water and eat animate food?"

The Bhagavān replied, "Violence is the source of bondage. My soul is pining for freedom. That is why I refrain from killing beings (with water-body), possessed of life like me."

They again said, "Oh Prince! you keep continuously sitting in the posture of meditation. Why do you not have some recreation?"

The Bhagavān quipped back, "The mind, body and speech are also the triple sources of bondage. My soul is pining for freedom. I refrain, therefore, from giving support to their impulses."

They said, "Why don't you take bath? Why do you sleep on the floor?"

The Bhagavān said, "The bodily attachment and luxuries are both sources of bondage. I want to plug these loopholes. That is why I have embraced this way of life."

१७ अइवात्तिय अणाउट्ठे, सयमण्णसि अकरणयाए ।

जस्सित्थिओ परिण्णया, सव्वकम्मावहाओ से अदक्खू ॥

17. Aivātiyaṃ aṇāutte, sayamañṇesim akarāṇayāe.
Jassitthio parinnāyā, savvakammāvahāo se adakkhū..

Aho vi kattāṇa viuttaṇaṃ ca, jo āsavaṃ jāṇati saṃvaram ca.

Dukkhaṃ ca jo jāṇai nijjaraṃ ca, so bhāsiumarihati kuriyavādāṃ..

17. The Bhagavān did not commit any violence to any living beings, nor did he ever make others to do so. The Bhagavān saw —

(On being asked by his relatives why he avoided all women-folk, the Bhagavān replied —)

"Women (incontinence) are the harbingers of all karmic influx. One who relinquishes them, perceives (the soul)."

१८ अहाकड न से सेवे, सव्वसो कम्मणा य अदक्खू ।

ज किंचि पावग भगव, त अकुच्च विपदं भुजित्था ॥

18. Ahākaḍaṁ na se seve, savvaso kammaṇā ya adakkhū.
Jaṁ kiṁci pāvagaṁ bhagaṁ, taṁ akuvvaṁ viyaḍaṁ bhujjithā..

18. The Bhagavān saw that the acceptance of food prepared specifically for the munis entails karmic bondage. That is why he always refused such food. He would take only inanimate food. The Bhagavān never partook of any such meals which were conducive to sinfulness.¹

१९ णो सेवती य परवत्थ, परपाए वि से ण भुजित्था ।

परिवज्जियाण ओमाण, गच्छति सखिं असरणाए ॥

19. Ño sevati ya paravatthaṁ, parapāe vi se ṇa bhujjithā.
Parivajjīyāṇa omāṇaṁ, gacchati saṁkhaḍḍiṁ asaraṇāe..

19. (Bhagavān Mahāvīra did not possess any dress, nor did he borrow any from anyone else.

1. The author of the Cūrṇī has interpreted the word pāpaka in various ways:

The Bhagavān never took meals which were prepared with a view to giving them in alms to just anybody. Thus he was saved from the guilt of "approval of violence."

Another interpretation is that the Bhagavān did not take any meat or alcoholic drinks (pāpaka).

Yet another interpretation is that the Bhagavān did not partake of such meals which were conducive to sinfulness.

(He had no bowls of his own), nor did he use another's for the purpose of eating in them.

He did not go for alms to any such feast which could not feed people beyond the numbers of invitees.

He did not even think of delicious food.

ANNOTATION 19. According to the author of Cūrṇi, Bhagavān Mahāvīra had only one robe on at the time of initiation, which he had abandoned after thirteen months. He never used any other robe ever since.

When he broke the fast just after initiation into asceticism, the Bhagavān took his meals in a utensil owned by a householder. Later he became a pāṇipātra (i. e. one who uses the palms of his hand as utensils), and never used the utensils of anyone for taking his meals.

Once when the Bhagavān was sojourning in a weaver's workshop at Nālandā, his only disciple called Gośālaka asked him, "Shall I bring some food for you?" The Bhagavān said, "No", in the belief that his disciple would get food for him in a householder's utensil.

After he achieved omniscience the Bhagavān became a Tīrthāṅkara. Lohārya, one of his disciples, used to procure food for him from householders. But the Bhagavān would take it on his palms and then eat it. The description alluded to here refers to the period of sādhana. Therefore, the incident of procurement of food by Lohārya is not purported here.

२०. मायण्णे असण-पाणस्स, णाणुगिद्धे रसेसु अपादिण्णे ।

अच्छिपि णो पमज्जिया, णोवि य कइयये मुणी गाय ॥

20. Māyaṇṇe asaṇa-pāṇassa, ṇāṇugiddhe rasesu apaḍiṇṇe.
Acchiṃpi ṇo pamajjyā, ṇovi ya kaṇḍuyaye muṇi gā-yam..

20. Bhagavān Mahāvīra knew what quantity he should eat and drink. He was devoid of any ardent longing for delicacies. He did not even think of any particular kind of food. He did not even wipe his eyes. Nor did he scratch his body when he had an itching.

ANNOTATION 20. Bhagavān Mahāvīra had an extraordinarily well-built physique. His system did not have likelihood of developing any indigestion or constipation, still he cautiously avoided the possibility of any illness by being abstemious in his habits.

A glutton cannot wholeheartedly concentrate on meditation. That is why the Bhagavān took only a frugal diet.

Even while leading family life, Bhagavān Mahāvīra was not at all keen on (any delicacies of) food. Right from the very beginning he was not interested in such food. And this disinterestedness reached its culmination during the period of his sādhanā.

The Bhagavān would never long for a particular kind of food except when undertaking special sādhanā e. g. he would sometimes wish for urada for carrying on specific sādhanā.

Bhagavān Mahāvīra had a steady gaze, he would not let his eyes blink. If a particle of dust accidentally fell into his eyes, he would not care to take it out. In case of an ant or a mosquito or any other insect biting him, he would not even scratch his body. All this he did for successful control in sādhanā. "I shall let things take their own natural course and shall not interfere with their smooth flow." — this was always at the back of his mind while performing sādhanā with effortless ease.

२१. अप्प तिरियं पेहाए, अप्प पिट्ठओ उपेहाए ।

अप्प बुद्धएअपडिभाणी, पथपेही चरे जयमाणे ॥

21. Appam tiriyaṃ pehāe, appam piṭṭhao upehāe.

Appam vūe(a)paḍibhāṇī, paṃthapehī care jayamāṇe..

21. While walking, Bhagavān Mahāvīra never looked sideways (i. e. left or right), or looked back. He would walk in silence. He would speak only when spoken to, and that too, very little. Always wide awake to the responsibility and duty of non-violence to all living beings, he would walk with his eyes firmly fixed on the path ahead.

२२. सिसिरसि अद्धपडिबन्ने, तं वोसज्ज वत्थमणगारे ।

पसारित्तु दाहुं परक्कमे, णो अवलंबियाण कंघसि ॥

22. Sisīraṃsī addhapaḍivanne, taṃ vosajja vatthamaṇaḡāre.
Pasārīttu bāhuṃ parakkame, ṇo avalambiyāṇa kaṃdhaṃsī..

22. The Bhagavān had abandoned the use of clothes. In winter he would boldly walk with his hands outspread, and would not (try to avoid cold by) folding his arms under his shoulders.

२३. एस विही अणुक्कतो, माहणेण मईमया ।
अपडिण्णेण वीरेण, कासवेण महेसिणा ॥
—त्ति बेमि ।

23. Esa vihī aṇukkarṇto, māhaṇeṇa maīmaya.
Apaḍiṇṇeṇa vīreṇa, kāsavena mahesiṇā..

— Tti bemī.

23. Bhagavān Mahāvīra, the wise, Māhana, (Brāhmaṇa, non-violent) Great Seer, born in the clan of Kāśyapa, followed without any reservation the aforementioned code of conduct.

— Thus I say.

ANNOTATION 23. During the last two years of home-life and twelve-and-a-half years of sādhana, Bhagavān Mahāvīra austere practised freedom from desires. He had no inhibitions or reservations relating to food, place, and time for sleep. Thus he remained completely unaffected by the demands of the body. He would calmly and cheerfully accept anything that came his way and which was congenial to the accomplishment of his sādhana.

SECTION II

बीओ उद्देसो

Bīo Uddeso.

भगवओ सेज्जा-पदं

१. चरियासणाइ सेज्जाओ, एगतियाओ जाओ बुइयाओ ।
आइक्ख ताइ सयणासणाइ, जाइं सेवित्था से महावीरो ॥

Bhagavao Sejjā-padāṃ

1. Cariyāsaṇāṃ sejjāo, egatiyāo jāo buiyāo.
Āikkha tāṃ sayanaṣaṇāṃ, jāṃ sevithā se mahāvīro..

Bhagavān Mahāvīra's Seats and Retreats

1. (Jambū said to Sudharmā:) "O Noble One! In the context of ascetic rambles, you had already told me about some seats and places of residence. Now, would you care to tell me about all those seats and places of residence which were actually used by Bhagavān Mahāvīra?"

२. आवेसण - सभा - पवासु , पणियसालासु एगदा वासो ।
अदुवा पलियट्ठाणेषु, पलालपुजेसु एगदा वासो ॥

2. Āvesapa-sabhā-pavāsu, paṇiyasālāsu egadā vāso.
Aduvā paliyaṭṭhāṇesu, palālapuñjesu egadā vāso..
2. (Sudharmā replied.) "Bhagavān Mahāvīra lived in all sorts of places, such as workhouses (like potter's lodge, blacksmith's workshop etc.), assembly houses, water-huts, shops, factories, or even canopies made of hay-stacks.

३. आगतारे आरामागारे, गामे णगरेवि एगदा वासो ।

सुसाणे सुण्णगारे वा, रुक्खमूले वि एगदा वासो ॥

3. Āgaṃtāre ārāmāgāre, gāme ṇagarevi egadā vāso.
Susāṇe suṇṇagāre, vā, rukkhāmūle vi egadā vāso. .

3. The Bhagavān sometimes used to stay in inns or rest-houses; sometimes in villages and towns; sometimes on cremation grounds, in deserted houses or under the trees.

४. एतेहिं मुणी सयणेहिं, समणे आसी पतेरस वासे ।

राहं दिव पि जयमाणे, अप्पमत्ते समाहिए ज्ञाति ॥

4. Etehiṃ muṇī sayapehiṃ, samane āsī paterasa vāse.
Rāhaṃ divaṃ pi jayamaṇe, appamatte samāhīe jhāti. .

4. During the period of twelve-and-a-half years of his sādhana, Bhagavān Mahāvīra, the wise śramaṇa used to live cheerfully in these diverse lodges.

He would meditate day and night by making (his mind, body and speech) steady and poised and his senses and passions subdued.

५. णिहं पि णो पगामाए, सेवहं भगवं उट्ठाए ।

जग्गावती य अप्पाण, ईसिं साई या सी अपडिण्णे ॥

5. Niddaṃ pi ṇo pagāmāe, sevai bhagavaṃ utthāe.
Jaggāvati ya appāṇaṃ, īsīṃ sāī yā sī apadīṇṇe. .

5. The Bhagavān did not seek sleep for the sake of pleasure and comfort. (On feeling drowsy,) he would stand up and keep himself wide awake. (After long spells of sleeplessness, for the upkeep and maintenance of body,) he would have only a nap. He never craved for the comfort of sleep.

ANNOTATION 5. During the entire period of twelve-and-a-half long years of his sādhana, the Bhagavān slept only for one antarmuhūrta (i. e. less than 48 minutes). That too, not continuously, but only intermittently. He would not lie down at all. He would take only a nap, either standing or sitting, and then immediately go into meditation. In a village called Asthikagrāma he slept only for a few moments, during which brief period he dreamt ten dreams. (St'ānāṅga, 10/103).

६ सवुज्जमाणे पुणरवि, आसिंसु भगव उट्ठाए।
 निक्खम्म एगया राओ, वहि चं कमिया मुहुत्ताग ॥

6. Saṃbujjhamāṇe puṇaravi, āsimsu bhagavaṃ uṭṭhāe.
 Nīkhamma egayā rāo, bahi cāṃkamiyā muhuttāgam..

6. Bhagavān Mahāvīra, after only a few moment's sleep, would be awake again and would sit in meditation with full internal watchfulness. When, sometimes, sleep tormented him too much at night, he would come out of the resting-place, and stroll for about a muhūrta or so. (Then he would return to his original place and go into meditation).

ANNOTATION 6. There are three main constituents of Bhagavān Mahāvīra's sūddhanā-

- a) Control of diet;
- b) Control of the senses; and
- c) Control of sleep.

Through the elixir of spiritual realization, he would achieve control of palate.

Through total absorption in the perception of the soul, he achieved control over the senses.

Through meditation he achieved control over sleep.

It was generally in extremely cold and hot weather that he was tormented by sleep. On those occasions, the Bhagavān would achieve control over sleep by strolling.

७ सयणेहि तस्सुवसगा, भीमा आसी अणेगरूवा य।
 ससप्पगाय जे पाणा, अदुवा जे पक्खिणो उवचरति॥

7. Sayanehi tassuvasaggā, bhīmā āsī aṇegarūvā ya.
 Sāmsappagāya je paṇā, aduvā je pakkhīṇo uvacarami..

7. Bhagavān Mahāvīra had to undergo terrible hardships of various kinds, while he lived in those resting places. (While in meditation), he would be bit even by a snake or a mongoose, or a dog; he was occasionally attacked by ants which made his body bleed; and he was frequently tormented by gadflies, mosquitoes, bees and wasps. (Undeterred by all this, the Bhagavān would still remain deeply absorbed in meditation.)

८. अदु कुचरा उवचरंति, गामरक्खा य सत्तिहत्था य ।

अदु गामिया उवसग्गा, इत्थी एगतिया पुरिसा य ॥

8. Adu kucarā uvacaram̐ti, gāmarakkhā ya sattihattā ya.
Adu gāmiyā uvasaggā, itthī egatiyā purisā ya. .

8. (While meditating in a deserted hut, Bhagavān Mahāvira would often be discomforted by burglars or debauchees; (while meditating on the cross-roads,) he would be upbraided or even hurt by village-guards equipped with lances or spears. The Bhagavān would often have to bear even sexual advances caused by men or women.

ANNOTATION 8. Women were easily enamoured of Bhagavān Mahāvira's handsome face and figure. At night they tried to seduce him and distract him from meditation, but in vain. This made them angry and they cursed him. When their husbands came to know of this, they would come up to the Bhagavān and pass various sarcastic remarks, such as: "Look, he is a mischievous rogue, this cursed mendicant. It was he who enticed our pretty dames. Let's kick him out of here." Thus they abused him and rebuked him sharply. Some would even go to the length of giving him good hiding. Nevertheless, the Bhagavān paid no attention whatsoever to both these oppressions, and would remain absorbed in meditation.

९. इहलोइयाइ परलोइयाइ, भीमाइं अणेगरूवाइ ।

अवि सुब्धि-दुब्धि-गग्घाइ, सद्दाइ अणेगरूवाइ ॥

9. Ihaloyāim paraloyāim, bhīmāim aṇegarūvāim.
Avi subbhi-dubbhi-gaṇdhāim, saddāim aṇegarūvāim. .

9. Bhagavān Mahāvīra courageously put up with various sorts of terrible hardships and difficulties caused to him by men and other living creatures.

Odour — good or bad — did not affect him in the least.

Words — kind or unkind — he always remained completely indifferent to.

१०. अहियासए सया समिए, फासाइ विरुवरुवाइ ।

अरइ रइ अभिभूय, रीयई माहणे अबहुवाइ ॥

10. Ahiyāsae sayā samīe, phāsai virūvarūvāi.
Arañ rañ abhibhūya, rīyā māhaṇe abahuvāi..

10. Bhagavān Mahāvīra bore with fortitude all kinds of afflictions by following the Right Conduct.

He would subdue (by meditation) feelings of ennui produced by self-discipline or temptation for pleasures of self-indulgence.

He would normally remain silent, (except only in special circumstances.)

- ११ स जणेहिं तत्थ पुच्छिंसु, एगचरा वि एगदा राओ ।

अवाहिए कसाइत्था, पेहमाणे समाहिं अपडिण्णे ॥

11. Sa jāṇehiṃ tattha pucchimsu, egacarā vi egadā rāo.
Avvāṇie kasāitthā, pehamāṇe samāhiṃ apaḍiṇṇe..

11. (When Bhagavān Mahāvīra meditated in solitude,) some tramps would try to disturb him by embarrassing questions (like these "Who are you? Where have you come from? What makes you stand here?") Or some times at night, some debauchees would accost him thus ("What are you doing here in this deserted house?")

On getting no answer from the Bhagavān, they would get annoyed with him and would start maltreating him.

Nevertheless, the Bhagavān would remain rap: in meditation. He would not even think of retaliating.

१२ अयमतरसि को एत्थ, अहमसि त्ति भिक्खू आहट्ठु ।

अयमुत्तमे से धम्मे, तुसिणीए स कसाइए ज्ञाति ॥

12. Ayamam̐taram̐si ko ettha, ahamamsi tti bhikkhū āhaṭṭu. Ayamuttame se dhamme, tusinīe sa kasāie jhāti..

12. (When Bhagavān Mahāvīra was meditating in a park on the out-skirts of a village, some frequenters to the place inquired of him,) "Who is there inside?" The Bhagavān replied "I am an ascetic." (They asked, "Who gave you permission to use this place? Why are you occupying our place of recreation?" The Bhagavān quietly left the place). This characterised his lofty conduct. Despite their agitation, the Bhagavān kept quiet and remained absorbed in meditation.

१३ जसिप्पेगे पवेयंति, सिसिरे मारुए पवायते ।

तसिप्पेगे अणगारा, हिमवाए णिवायमेसति ॥

13. Jamsippege paveyam̐ti, sisire mārue pavāyam̐te. Tam̐sippege anagārā, himavāe ṇivāyamesam̐ti..

१४ सघाडिओ पविसिस्सामो, एहा य समादहमाणा ।

पिहिया वा सक्खामो, अतिदुक्ख हिमग-सफासा ॥

14. Samghāḍio pavisissāmo, ehā ya samādahamāṇā. Pihiyā vā sakkhāmo, atidukkhaṁ himaga-samphāsā..

13- The winter-wind made (scantily clad) people shiver
14. with cold; snowfall made houseless mendicants to seek houses protected from winds, and cover themselves with clothes. Considering that they would be able to protect themselves against painfully severe cold, some monks kindled fire and closed doors, because it was extremely difficult to brave snow-fall.

१५ तसि भगव अपडिण्णे, अहे वियडे अहियासए दविए ।

णिक्खम्म एगदा रामो, चाएइ भगवं समियाए ॥

15. Tam̐si bhagavaṁ apadīṇṇe, ahe viyaḍe ahiyāsae davie. Ṇikkhamma egadā rāo, cāeī bhagavaṁ samiyāe..

15. Bhagavān Mahāvīra, however, would not, even in the face of such severe cold, even think of (seeking a windless abode, or clothes to wrap himself with). He (would stand) under the merest shed in the cold and bear it with sublime equipoise. When the night grew colder, the Bhagavān would alternately come outside in the cold under the open sky (and go back to the shed). Thus was the Bhagavān able to endure the pangs of cold in perfect calmness and in conformity with Right Conduct.

१६. एस विही अणुक्कतो, माहणेण मईमया ।
अपडिण्णेण वीरेण, कासवेण महेसिणा ॥

—त्तिवेमि ।

16. Esa vihi añukkamto, māhaṇeṇa maīmaya.
Apadinnena vīreṇa, kāsaveṇa mahesiṇā.

— Tti bemi.

16. Bhagavān Mahāvīra, the wise Māhaṇa (Brāhmaṇa, Non-Violent) Great Seer, born in the clan of Kāsyapa, followed without any reservation the aforementioned code of conduct.

— So do I say.

SECTION III

तइओ उद्देसो

Taio Uddeso

भगवओ परीसह-उवसग-पद

१. तणफासे सीयफासे य, तेउफासे य दंस-मसगे य ।
अहियासए सया समिए, फासाइ विरुवरूवाइ ॥

Bhagavao parisaha-uvasagga-padam

1. Taṇaphāse sīyaphāse ya, teuphāse ya daṁsa-masage
Ahiyāsae sayā samie, phāsāim virūvarūvāim. . ya.

Bhagavān Mahāvīra's Endurance of Hardships

1. Bhagavān Mahāvīra bore with equipoise various kinds of hardships, including being pricked by the grass (typical of the Lāḍha country-side) the extremities of the weather, and bites of gad-flies and mosquitoes.

ANNOTATION 1. During the period of sādhana Bhagavān Mahāvīra once paid a visit to the Lāḍha countryside (i. e. the districts of Tāmūlaka, Mīdnāpur, Hugli and Burdvān in West Bengal) which abounded in prickly grass. Very often, this proved to be the cause of sharp bodily pain. The area in which this kind of grass luxuriously grew was also surrounded with mountains, which added to the cold atmosphere there.

The Bhagavān would also cheerfully bear the heat of the sun. In a place like Halduga, he had to put up with scorching and almost burning temperatures.

The Lādha teemed with vicious creatures like gad-flies, mosquitoes, and leeches. Despite knowledge of all these untoward conditions, the Bhagavān went there to test himself on the touchstone of equanimity.

२ अहं दुच्चर-लाढमचारी, वज्जभूमिं च सुवभ(म्ह?) भूमिं च ।
पतं सेज्जं सेविसु, आसणगाणि चैव पताड ॥

2. Aha duccara-lāḍhamacārī, vajjabhūmim ca subbha-(mha?) bhūmim ca.
Paṁtaṁ sejjam sevimsu, āsaṇagāṇi ceva pamtāṁ..

2. The Bhagavān cheerfully rambled through the areas of Vajrabhūmi and Sumhabhūmi in the difficult terrain of the Lādha countryside. There he had very miserable lodgings and poor seats.

ANNOTATION 2. The Lādha countryside was terribly inaccessible because of mountains and thick forest. Nevertheless, Bhagavān Mahāvīra went there. He managed to get only desolate and dilapidated houses to live in, and rough wooden planks or boards to sit on and those too covered with thick layers of dust, soil and cowdung. All this, however, could not disturb the evenness of the Bhagavān's mind.

३ लाढेहिं तस्सुवसग्गा, बह्वे जाणवया लूसिसु ।
अहं लूहदेसिए भत्ते, कुक्कुरातत्थहिंसिसु णिवत्तिसु ॥

3. Lāḍhehim tassuvasaggā, bahave jāṇavayā lūsimsu.
Aha lūhadesie bhatte, kukkurā tattha himsimsu ṇiva-timsu..

3. In the counties of Lādha, Bhagavān Mahāvīra had to undergo various vicissitudes. He was many a time attacked by the inhabitants of that place. The food he got there was vapid. He would be often attacked and bitten by dogs.

ANNOTATION 3. There were no towns and cities in the districts of Vajra and Sumha of the Lādha. There was a dearth of such things as sesamum seeds, from which oil could be produced, or of good cows from which butter could be produced. Consequently, the inhabitants of that place took only insipid, totally fatless food. This sort of food-habit led to their being ill-tempered. Anger, vituperative tongue, and assault were almost habit with them. They used to cover their bodies with grass.

The Bhagavān used to take a single meal only at midday. In Ladha, the Bhagavān would get only rice soaked in water, urada (a kind of pulse)-soup or sour-soup, but all without salt.

The dogs of that place were so fierce that people had to use sticks and cudgels to ward them off. Since the Bhagavān was unarmed, the dogs would frequently and easily attack him.

४ अप्पे जणे णिवारेह, लूसणए सुणए दसमाणे ।

छुकुकारति आहंसु, समण कुकुरा डसंतुति ॥

4. Appe jaṇe nīvārei, lūsanae sunae dasamāṇe.
Chuchukāramti āhaṁsu, samanaṁ kukkurā das-antutti..

4. When dogs would bark at or come to bite the Bhagavān, only a solitary person would come to his rescue; the others would set the dogs on him.

५ एलिकखए जणे भुज्जो, बहवे वज्जभूमि फरुसासी ।

लट्ठि गहाय नालीय, समणा तत्थ एव विहरिंसु ॥

5. Elikkhae jaṇe bhujjo, bahave vajjabhūmi pharusāsī.
Latṭhīm gahāya nāliyam, samanaṁ tattha eva viha-rimsu..

5. In such a county did the Bhagavān spend (six long months). Most people of Vajrabhūmi were ill-tempered owing to insipid food. In that countryside, some śramaṇas (ascetics) always roamed with either a stick¹ or a cudgel in hand.

६. एव पि तत्थ विहरता, पुट्ठुप्पा महेसि सुणएहि ।

सलुचमाणा सुणएहि, दुच्चरगाणि तत्थ लाहेहि ॥

1. A lathī (stick) is usually of the height of a man, while a nālika (cudgel) is four aṅgulas (twenty-fourth part of a cubit) longer than it.

6. Evaṃ pi tattha viharamāta, puṭṭhapuvvā ahesi suṇahehiṃ.
Saṃlumaṃcamāṇā suṇahehiṃ, duccaragāṇi tattha lāḍhe-
hiṃ..

6. Even those śramanas who were equipped with sticks or cudgels were torn and bitten by dogs. It was really difficult to move about freely in the villages of the Lāḍha area.

७ निघाय दडं पाणेहि, तं काय वोसज्जमणगारे ।
अहं गामकटए भगव, ते अहियासए अभिसमेच्चा ॥

7. Nidhāya daṇḍaṃ paṇehiṃ, taṃ kāyaṃ voṣajjamaṇagāre.
Aha gāmakamṭae bhagavaṃ, te ahīyāsaṃ abhisameccā..

7. Abandoning the attitude of violence to living beings, and totally ignoring all bodily comforts, the Bhagavān was cheerfully rambling about (in the Lāḍha area). There the Bhagavān put up with all kinds of harsh words and sharp rebukes with spiritual wisdom.

ANNOTATION 7. Punishment (i.e. violence) is of there kinds;

- (a) (Punishment) inflicted through the mind;
- (b) through the speech; and
- (c) through the body.

He would not brush away encroaching creatures or annoying insects either himself or make others to do so. Not even the thought of doing so ever crossed his mind. The Bhagavān was completely self-possessed in thought, speech and action.

८ णामो सगामसीसे वा, पारए तत्थ से महावीरे ।
एव पि तत्थ लोडेहि, अलद्धपुब्बो वि एगया गामो ॥

8. Nāo saṃgāmasīse vā, pārae tattha se mahāvīre.
Evaṃ pi tattha lāḍhehiṃ, aladdhapuvvo vi egayā gāmo..

8. Just as an elephant fighting on the battle front is not easily baffled by piercing weapons, so also did Bhagavān Mahāvīra remain completely unruffled by and triumphed over various kinds of hardships he experienced in Lāḍha area. (Although) he occasionally did not find a village or a suitable abode in Lāḍha to stay in, (he remained completely unperturbed).

६ उवसकमतमपडिण्ण , गामंतिय पि अप्पत्तं ।
पडिण्णक्खमित्तु लूसिंसु, एत्तो पर पलेहिस्सि ॥

9. Uvasaṅkamamamtapaḍiṇṇaṃ, gāmaṅtiyaṃ pi appat-taṃ.
Paḍiṇikkhamittu lūsimsu, etto paraṃ palehitti..

9. The Bhagavān did not desire a fixed abode or a definite diet. He would go to a village for boarding or lodging only when occasion arose. Sometime it so happened that before he entered a village some people would try to stop him, and even hit him and say — "Why don't you go away from here, and look for some other place?"

ANNOTATION 9. The inhabitants of Lāḍha did not relish the Bhagavān's nudity. This is why they would stop him from entering the village.

१० हय-पुव्वो तत्थ दढेण, अदुवा मुट्ठिणा अदु कुताइ-फलेण ।
अदु लेलुणा कवालेण, हता-हता बहवे कदिंसु ॥

10. Hayapuvvo tattha daṇḍeṇa, aduvā muṭṭhiṇā adu kuṇṭāi-phaleṇaṃ.
Adu lelunā kavāleṇaṃ, haṁtā-haṁtā bahave kaṁ-diṃsu..

10. There some people would try to hit the Bhagavān with a slap or a blow, or a stick, or a spear, or a clod or a potsherd. They would run after him and scream "Goodness Gracious! go away."

११ मसाणि छिन्नपुव्वाइ, उट्ठुमति एगया कायं ।
परीसहाइ लुचिसु, अहवा पंसुणा अवकिरिसु ॥

11. Mamsāpi chinnaṣṣuvvāṃ, utṭhubhamānti egayā kāyaṃ.
Paṇṣahāṃ luṃcīṃsu ahavā paṃsupā avakīṃsu. .
11. (Brutally assaulting him), some people would even mangle him, spit on him, fling heaps of dust on him, and (thus) inflict hardships on him.

१२ उच्चालइय णिहणिसु, अदुवा आसणाओ खलइसु ।
 वोसट्ठकाए पणयासी, दुक्खसहे भगवं अपडिण्णे ॥

12. Uccālaya pihaṇīṃsu, aduvā āsaṇāo khalāṃsu.
Vosaṭṭhakāe paṇayāsī, dukkhasahe bhagavaṃ apaḍiṇṇe. .
12. Some would lift him up and throw him down while he was in meditation. Some others would push him out of his seat. But the Bhagavān had abandoned all care of the body; he was wholly dedicated to the cause of the soul; he was highly tolerant of feeling of pain and anguish; and free from the desire of pleasure. (He would, therefore, never let his evenness of mind dwindle).

ANNOTATION 12. Not all people inhabiting the Lāḍha countryside were ill-tempered; there were, however, some good-natured people there as well. There were those who were very impulsive. These would remove the Bhagavān from his seat. Even so the Bhagavān would not be displeased. Seeing that he maintained a sweet evenness of temper, their hearts would change, and they would apologise to him for their nonchalant insolence. The ill-natured ones, however, did not evince any change of heart.

१३ सूरो संगामसीसे वा, सवुडे तत्थ से महावीरे ।
 पडिसेवमाणे फरुसाई, अचले भगव रीइत्था ॥

13. Sūro saṅgāmasīse vā, saṃvude tattha sē mahāvīre.
Paḍisevaṃaṇe pharusāī, acale bhagavaṃ rutthā. .
13. Just as a warrior wearing the escutcheon is never baffled at the war front, so also was Bhagavān Mahāvīra wearing the armour of total abstinence from sinful actions never subdued by hardships, and would never be disturbed in meditation. Unperturbed, he kept cheerfully rambling on.

१४ एस विही अणुक्कंतो, माहणेण मईमया ।
अपडिण्णेण वीरेण, कासवेण महेसिणा ॥

— त्ति वेमि ।

14. *Esa vihi añukkamto, māhaṇeṇa maīmayā.
Apaḍiṇṇeṇa vīreṇa, kāsaveṇa mahesiṇā.*

— Tti bemi.

14. Bhagavān Mahāvīra, the wise, Māhana (Brāhmaṇa, Non-violent), great seer, born in the clan of Kāśyapa, followed without any reservation the above mentioned code of conduct.

— Thus I say.

SECTION IV

चउत्थो उद्देसो

Cauttho Uddeso

भगवतो अतिगिच्छा-पदं

- १ ओमोदरियं चाएति, अपुट्ठे वि भगवं रोगेहि ।
पुट्ठे वा से अपुट्ठे वा, णो से सातिज्जति तेइच्छ ॥

Bhagavao atigicchā-padam

1. Omodariyam cāeti, aputṭhe vi bhagavaṃ rogehiṃ.
Putṭhe vā se aputṭhe vā, ño se sātijjati teicchaṃ..

Abandonment of Medication by Bhagavān Mahāvīra

1. Although untouched by illness, Bhagavān Mahāvīra would still have a curtailed diet. Whether afflicted or not, he would not approve of medication for himself.

ANNOTATION 1. Man by nature is prone to gluttony. It is not easy to eat sparingly. There are some who do eat little, but they do so only under compulsion, i. e. when they are afflicted with a disease, and wish to get rid of it. Bhagavān Mahāvīra had no disease or ailment, yet he would eat sparingly and with long intervals just like a serpent.

Illnesses are of two kinds:

- (a) Internal, i. e. due to a disturbance of humours or deficiency of vitamins, and
(b) External, i. e. injuries caused by accidents, etc.

The Bhagavān was free from the former kind of diseases, but he would occasionally be afflicted by the latter, in the event of attacks by human beings or other creatures and insects. He would not undergo any medical treatment to mitigate even these.

To illustrate his extra-ordinary forbearance, an incident is given here. Once a cowboy drove a wooden nail into his ear. A physician named Kharaka had to take it out and dress his wound. But the Bhagavān never wished anyone to do anything for him.

२ ससोहणं च वमणं च, गायबभगणं सिणाणं च ।

सबाहणं ण से कप्पे, दत्त-पक्खालणं परिण्णाए ॥

2. Saṁsohaṇaṁ ca vamaṇaṁ ca, gāyabbhaṁgaṇaṁ siṇā-ṇaṁ ca.
Sambāhaṇaṁ na se kappe, datta-pakkhālaṇaṁ pariṇ-ṇāe..

2. The Bhagavān abandoned all sorts of purgatives, emetics, unguents, bathing, shampooing or even cleaning of the teeth.

ANNOTATION 2. Soon after initiation into ascetic life, Bhagavān Mahāvīra had taken up a vow: "I will lead a life of self-abnegation by abandoning all bodily care." In accordance with this vow, he would refrain from any physical beautification, or any extra care of the body. It is imperative for a sādhaka to forget all about his body and concern himself with complete dedication to the soul. The above routine followed by Bhagavān Mahāvīra refers to this.

३ विरए गामधम्ममेहिं, रीयति माहणे अबहुवाई ।

सिसिरमि एगदा भगवं, छायाए झाइ आसी य ॥

3. Virae gāmadhammehiṁ, rīyati māhaṇe abahuvaī.
Sisiraṁmi egadā bhagavaṁ, chāyāe jhāi āsī ya..
3. Averse to all sensual delights, Bhagavān Mahāvīra (Māhaṇa) cheerfully rambled about. He would speak but little. Even in the winter he would meditate (not in sunshine), but in shade.

भगवतो आहार-चरिया-पदं

४ आयावई य गिम्हाण, अच्छइ उक्कुहुए अभिवाते ।
अदु जावइत्थ लूहेणं, ओयण-मथु-कुम्मासेण ॥

Bhagavao āhāra-carīyā-padam

4. Āyavaī ya giṃhāṇaṃ, accha ukkuḍue abhivāte.
Adu jāvaṭṭha lūheṇaṃ, oyana-maṃthu-kummāseṇaṃ.
4. In summer he would deliberately expose himself to the scorching heat of the sun. He would squat in the cock-posture in the face of hot winds.

Dietary Routine

He lived on meals of coarse rice, pounded grains ground into flour-like substance and beans (urada).

- ५ एयाणि तिण्णि पडिसेवे, अट्टमासे य जावए भगव ।
अपिइत्थ एगया भगव, अट्टमास अदुवा मास पि ॥
5. Eyaṇi tinnī paḍiseve, atṭha māse ya jāvae bhagavaṃ.
Apuṭṭha egayā bhagavaṃ, addhamāsaṃ aduvā māsaṃ pi.
5. Bhagavān Mahāvīra lived on these three (grains) for eight months. Sometimes, he would go without water either for half a month or for a whole month at a stretch.
- ६ अवि साहिए दुवे मासे, छप्पिमासे अदुवा अपिवित्ता ।
रायोवरायं अपडिण्णे, अन्नगिलायमेगया भुंजे ॥
6. Aṇi sāhie duve māse, chappi māse aduvā apivittā.
Rāyovarāyaṃ apaḍiṇṇe, annagilāyamegayā bhumje.
6. He would go without water sometimes for over two months, or as long as for six months. He did not even think of taking sleep; he would keep himself awake all night.

Sometimes he had to take even stale food.

७. छट्ठेण एगया भुजे, अदुवा अट्ठमेण दसमेण ।
दुवालसमेण एगया भुजे, पेहमाणे समाहि अपाणिणे ॥

7. Chatṭthenaṃ egayā bhuñje, 'aduvā atṭhamena dasa-menaṃ.
Duvālasameṇa egayā bhuñje, pehamāṇe samāhiṃ apaṇiṇṇe. .

7. Sometimes he would take meals after either two days', or three, or four, or even five days' fast. He had his mind always fixed on only (tapas -) samadhi (i. e. evenness of mind accompanied by austerities); for food he had no craving.

८. णच्चाणं से महावीरे, णो वि य पावग सयमकासी ।
अण्णेहि वा ण कारित्था, कीरंतं पि णाणुजाणित्था ॥

8. Naccāṇaṃ se mahāvīre, ṇo vi ya pāvagaṃ sayamakāśī.
Aṇṇehiṃ vā ṇa kārithā, kīraṃtaṃ pi ṇāṇujāṇitthā. .

8. Fully aware of the sinfulness, vitiating the alms that he received, Bhagavān Mahāvīra would neither himself indulge in violence nor make others to do so, nor did he approve of any such action. .

९. गानं पविसे णयरं वा, घासमेसे कढं परट्ठाए ।
सुविसुद्धमेसिया, भगवं, आयत-जोगयाए सेवित्था ॥

9. Gāmaṃ pavise ṇayaraṃ vā, ghāsamese kaḍaṃ paraṭṭhāe.
Suvisuddhamesiyā bhagavaṃ, āyata-jogayāe seviththā. .

9. Upon entering a village or a town, Bhagavān Mahāvīra would ask for only that kind of meal which was prepared for the use of a householder (i. e. not specially prepared for the Bhagavān). He would accept alms unvitiated by any sin and eat it with complete control of his passions.

१०. अदु वायसा दिगिच्छता, जे अण्णे रसेसिणो सत्ता ।
घासेसणाए चिट्ठते, सययं णिवत्तिते य पेहाए ॥

११ अदु माहणं व समणं वा, गामपिढोलगं च अतिहिं वा ।
सोवागं मूसियारं वा, कुक्कुरं वावि विहठिय पुरतो ॥

१२ वित्तिच्छेदं वज्जतो, तेसप्पत्तियं परिहरतो ।
मदं परक्कमे भगव, अहिंसमाणो वासमेसित्था ॥
(त्तिभि. कुलकम्)

10. Adu vāyasā digim̐chattā, je aṇṇe rasesiṇo sattā.
Ghāsesaṇṇāe cūṭṭham̐te, sayayaṁ nivatite ya pehāe..

11. Adu māhaṇaṁ va samaṇaṁ vā, gāmapim̐dolagam ca atihim̐ vā.
Sovāgaṁ mūsiyāraṁ vā, kukkuraṁ vāvi vihaṁ thiyam̐
purato..

12. Vitticchedaṁ vajjaṁto, tesappattiyaṁ pariharam̐to.
Mam̐daṁ parakkame bhagavaṁ, ahimsamāṇo ghāsamesithā..

(Tribhiḥ kulakaṁ)

10- While on his way for alms, if Bhagavān Mahāvīra saw
12. a group of birds like crows sitting together, or a dog, or a cat, or a Brāhmaṇa or a Sramaṇa, or a beggar or a guest, or a grave-digger (caṇḍāla), suffering from hunger or thirst, and trying to satisfy them by food or drink, he would not disturb them, bearing in mind the fact that they are not to be deprived of their bread and that they need not sustain any fear from him. He would walk very slowly and softly in search of alms without causing any hindrance or apprehension to anyone.

१३ अवि सूइयं व सुक्कं वा, सीयपिढं पुराणकुम्मास ।
अदु बक्कसं पुलगं वा, लद्धे पिढे अलद्धे दविए ॥

13. Avi sūiyaṁ va sukkam̐ vā, siyapim̐daṁ purāṇakummāsaṁ.
Adu bakkasaṁ pulāgaṁ vā, laddhe piṁḍe aladdhae dave..

13. Bhagavān Mahāvīra would not care whether or not his meal included cooked savoury vegetables, whether he got cold rice, or stale bean-soup; whether his meals consisted of vapid stuff like powdered gram or only grams; whether or not he got any food at all. In all such situations, he would maintain total equipoise.

१४. अवि ज्ञाति से महावीरे, आसणत्थे अकुक्कुए ज्ञाण ।
उद्धमहे तिरिय च, पेहमाणे समाहिमपडिण्णे ॥

14. Avī jhāti se mahāvīre, āsaṇatthe akukkue jhāṇaṁ.
Uddhamāhe tiriyaṁ ca, pehamāṇe samāhīmapaḍiṇṇe..

14. Completely calm and poised, the Bhagavān would meditate, squatting in cock-posture or any other posture. He would meditate on various objects of the upper, lower, and the lateral worlds. He had his mind's eye firmly fixed on self-absorption... He was completely free from the desire of pleasure. (He would, therefore, never let his evenness of mind dwindle). He was completely free from reservations.

१५. अकसाई विगयगेही, सद्धवेसुमुच्छिए ज्ञाति ।
छउमत्थे वि परक्कममाणे, णो पमाय सइ पि कुव्वित्था ॥

15. Akasāi vigayagehī, saddarūvesu(a)mucchie jhāti.
Chaumatthe vi parakkamamāṇe, ño pamāyaṁ saṁ pi kuvvitthā..

15. Becalming all his passions (such as, anger, conceit, deceit and avarice), abandoning all kinds of attachments, and lulling all kinds of infatuation with (sensual) sound or form, Bhagavān Mahāvīra would meditate. Always exerting himself in self-discipline, despite the veils of karma (such as knowledge-obscuring karma), he never slackened for a moment.

१६. सयमेव अभिसमागम्म, आयत्तजोगमायसोहीए ।
अभिणिव्वुडे अमाइल्ले, आवकहं भगवं समिआसी ॥

16. Sayameva abhisamāgamma, āyatajogamāyasohīe.
Abhiṇivvude amāille, āvakahaṁ bhagavaṁ samīāsī..

16. Achieving, through complete self-purification, discipline of mind, body and speech, Bhagavān Mahāvira became absolutely calm and poised. He practised (austerities) with simplicity of heart. Through the entire period of his sādhana, he remained equipoised and tranquil.

१७ ए॒स वि॒ही अ॒णुक्कं॑तो, मा॒ह॒णे॒ण मई॑मया ।
अ॒प॒डि॒ण्णे॒ण ची॒रे॒ण, का॒सवे॑ण म॒हे॒सि॒णा ॥

— त्ति बेमि ।

17. Esa vihi añukkamto, māhaṇeṇa maimayā.
Apaḍiṇṇeṇa vīreṇa, kāsavena mahesiṇā.

— Tti bemi.

17. Bhagavān Mahāvira, the wise, Māhāṇa (Brāhmaṇa, Non-violent) Great Seer, born in the clan of Kāśyapa, followed without any reservation the aforementioned code of conduct.

— I say so.

WORD-INDEX (Glossary)

- Abbhāt'hejjā* (Skt Abhā- khyāter), malign, slander or except for chond as truth 31
Abhinirupha, grasp 171, restrain 17
Abhinirupita, stage of development of limbs 278
Abhivāṇeṇa, should get rid of 178
Abhisamannūvatā, thoroughly knows 150
Abhisamblāta, stage of development of the embryo 278
Abhisamjāta, stage of development of foetus and muscles 278
Abhavadāna, non-intimidation
 30
Abolhi, desprivement of enlightenment 20
Ācāmla, eating only a single item of food 370
Ācāra, ethics, spiritual conduct
Ācārāṇa, the treatise on Jaina spiritual conduct 1
Ācārya, teacher 9
Acca, circumvents 140
Acitta, inanimate 36
Ādāna, clothes 290
Ādānāc, with self-disciplined
 life 115
Adatta, taking away things of others including their life 315
Adattādāna, appropriating that which is not given 37
Adattahāra, thieves 107
Adhimutti, faith xiii
Adinnādāna, unauthorized appropriation xv
Adinnādānāo, from theft xvi Adissamāne, one should keep away from 155
Aduvā, athavā, or 191
Āgamissam, future 169
Āghāt, preach 189
Agrantha, absolutely unfettered by worldly snares 331
Aham, downwards 51
Āhāra-heu, purpose of monk's nourishment 332
Āhāsacam, the real truth 190
Āhaṭṭu, implanted 113
Āhimsā, non-violence iv
Ahosiṭhāra, the practice of self-discipline, (asceticism) 89
Ājīvikas, a school of the śra- mana ascetics led by Goṣā-laka 38
Ajjariya, uprightness xiii
Ajḥattha, spiritual world 166
Ajḥattham, the inner self 71
Ajjhavarāṇṇā, licentious 80
Ājñā, instruction 229
Akamma, pure 154, meditation, 96
Ākasa, a mine-like abode 356
Akasūyī, free from passions
 xxiii
Akkushe, call names 284
Akriyāvāda, non-actionism 389

Akukkue, free from distractions xxiii

Alīṇagutto, subjugating the senses and disciplining the mind, speech and body 170

Aṅgula, twenty-fourth part of a cubit 404

Anācariṇīya, forbidden 324

Aṇaḡāṇa, monk 17

Āṇākamkhī, devoted to the Teachings 196

Anannadamsī, one who looks inwardly at the self 141

Anannam, unique 164

Aṇṇānārāme, revels in the self 141

Anāsādae, does not cause obstruction to others 306

Anaśana, undertaking fast unto death 341

Anāsatti, non-attachment 100, 117

Anāsāya, eschewing taste 353

Anāsiava, not the cause of the influx of kaṃma 187

Anativattiya, non-transgression xiii

Anattapannāṇam, lacking in spiritual insight 270

Anaṭṭhāe, unmotivated 211

Anegacitta, manifold desires of man 163

Aniccayaṃ, mortal 58

Anidāna, free from bonds of attachment and aversion 321

Aniyaṭṭagāṇi, life-long ascetics 203

Añjū, simple and straightforward in behaviour 151

Annāna, ignorance 16

Annesim, pursue 234

Antarmuhūrta, less than 48 minutes 242

Anudhaima, way of life in harmony with sādhana 382

Aṇudisā, intermediate direction 4

Anugāmiyam, favourable xiii

Ānupūrvī, achieved in serial order of development 368

Ānupūrvī vimoksa, fast unto death 367

Anusīlāṇa, practice 261

Anusoyamiti, continuously go on thinking

Anuvū, contemplate and visualise 37

Apadīṇṇe, without guile xxiii

Apalīyamāṇe, remaining unattached 282

Aparāḡkrama, fast undertaken with weak body 368

Aparīgraha, non-possession of property xv

Aparīhīna, perfect 93

Aparimāṇe, person who cannot give up (amassing of wealth) 130

Apasmāra, epilepsy 272

Appamāda, (Skt Apramāda), constant vigilance, living in the present 87, 142

Appamattehum, vigilant 42

Appāṇam, soul (overwhelmed by passions) 197

Apiamatta muni, vigilant but not completely free from passions 242

Arati, ennui 94

Āmbha, hitting, cutting and killing 159

Āmbha, all activities 369

- Arhamta*, the Reverend One xiii
Ārie, noble 118
Arhat, Venerable One 183
Āriyavayanam, Doctrine of the Noble Ones 194
Ārya-satya, noble truth xx
Asādhū, non-ascetic 317
Āsam, lust 112
Asamanunna, heretics 313
Asamādhina, land which does not get flooded with water 295
Asannmāyāra, improper conduct 315
Āsava, hardship xviii
Asāsayaṃ, not eternal 58
Āsāma, a hermitage 356
Assāyaṃ, suffering or pain 63
Ātavam, established in ātman xiii
Ātman, knower x
Ātmavāda, doctrine of objective reality of soul 9
Attā, afflicted 189
Attatūlā, equality of beings with the self 71
Atthāe, with a motive 211
Atthita, existence 41
Āukāya, water-being 30
Āure, tormented 152
Avama-celika, scantily-clad 337
Avamaudarya, attenuation 283
Āvanti keāvanti, in this world 215
Avasāda, dejection 270
Avasakejjā, should abstain from 120
Āvattasoe, whirlpool 151
Avidyā, absence of right perception 217
Āvilae, relinquish the relations 201
Avimane, blissful 202
Avijatta, immature ascetic 237
Avratas, infringement of the six vows 134
Avyāghāta, fast undertaken in the normal course 368
Aryāghāta-marana, fasting unto death 367
Āyagutte, self-secured 153
Ājāṇṇam, path of Truth 108
Āyariya, preceptor 248
Āyatacakkhū, with wide open eyes 123
Āyāvādī, believer in soul xii
Ājavam, in possession of the self 150
Bambhaceramsi, continence 204
Bayghao, others 230
Buddha-bodhita, enlightened by the Tīrthamkara 331
Bāla-marana, suicide committed due to irrational impulses 341
Bhattaparinnā abandonment of food 346
Bhāvanā, contemplation 352
Bhānava, formidable 357
Bhāva-samlekhanā, method of curtailment of passions 369
Brahma, the Supreme Reality 1
Bhūta, existing xii
Bambhavam, established in Brahman xiii
Bhagavamta, lord xiii
Brahmacarya, celibacy xv Bambhavam, in possession of the Supreme Reality 150

Buyam, activity 164
Bhoga, sensuality 110
Bhogī, self-indulgent 110
Bāla, immature sādhaka 131
Chañapaṇṇa, affairs of violence 143
Chee, wise 214
Cāritia-moha-karma, the karma which pollutes right conduct through delusion 221
Chana, violence and other evils 155, 232
Cavanam, death 164
Cittṭham, preoccupy, intensely painful genera 191
Cakkhupannāna, ocular perception xx1
Cayāvacaṇṇam, metabolism (building up of new cells and decaying of old ones) 58
Chamdovanīyā, self-indulgent 80
Cauppayam, quadrupeds (animals) 106
Cittṭhai, sticks to it 108
Chamdān, servility 112
Candāla, a grave-digger 413
Ḍajjhai, meets with incineration 168
Dama, curbing of passions 104
Damda, the man of violence, panel instrument xiv
Dharma, righteousness 226
Dhammavān, in possession of piety, 150 established in dhamma xiii
Dhamavān, one who is conversant with the nature of Reality 151
Dhīṭum, steadfastness 162
Dhune, shake to its root 236

Dhuta, austerities which wash away passions xi, separation by shaking off 277
Dhuvacārīna, 'progressing towards salvation 105
Dhyāna, meditation xxii
Ḍiṭṭhi, view, xiii, xvii
Ḍiṭṭham, perceived 185
Ḍiṭṭhapahe, one who has perceived the path to salvation 136, 161
Ḍīva, island 295
Dosa, hatred xvii
Dhuyam, advanced asceticism 267
Dravya-samlekhanā, method of curtailment of food 369
Droṇamukha, a capital of four hundred villages 356
Dubbhum, unsavoury 288
Dukkham, suffering xiii, ignorance 150
Dukkha-ṣayyā, living in gloom 252
Dupayam, bipeds (servants) 106
Duppādivahanam, cannot be prolonged 122
Duraṇucara, an uphill task 203
Duratikammā, difficult to transcend 122
Duṣkṛta, unrighteousness 317
Dveṣa, aversion 293
Egallavhāta, asceticism in solitariness 237
Egatta, solitariness, 352
Egasāde, clad in only one clothing 344, 384
Ejassa, of air-being 71
Ejānupassī, one who observes the realities happening in the

- 'present only 170
Gabbha, womb, xvii
Gacchanāti, wish, 275
Gamana Yoga, the activity involving walking 245
Gamtha, bondage, xii
Gaṇḍa, gourd 272
 ✓ Gati, steadiness of knowledge and perception, steadfastness of conduct and competence through the learning of scriptures 255
Ghānapannāna, olfactory perception xxi
Gihacāri or gihavāsa, a hypocritical ascetic 51
Gijjhe, hanker, 102
Giḷāna, ailing monk, 346
Giḷāsini, morbid appetite from over-digestion 272
Gorava, conceit 278
Goyāṇādī, believer in the dogma of casteism 102
 ✓ Guna, the five types of sensual qualities (colour, sound, odour, taste, touch) 52
Gunasthāna, a stage of spiritual development 241
Gunatthite, engrossed in sensual pleasures xiv, 86
Guru, colossal 211
Hammai, meets with decapitation 108
Himsā (qua-Āmbha), violent action xv
Hiri, rigours of an embarrassing nature, like nudity 285
Hiyam, good xiii
Imgiṇi-marana, fast unto death called itvarika 356
Īryā, manner of moving 239
Itvarika, religious fast unto death 357
Jāgata, the wide-awake 149
Jamma, birth xvii
Jarāyu, membrane enveloping the younger one at the time of birth 62
Jatehū, self-composure 43
Jātī, birth 54
Jayamāne, to be diligent by remaining vigilant through concentration on studies and meditation while awake 229
Jāyāmāyāe, limited diet 168
Jhamjhāe, vicissitudes 173
Jhumyam, paralysis 272
Jhosamāne, follows, 287
Jhoseṇi, causes them to wither away 162
Jhōṣita (ksapitah), dissolved 254
Jyñāsā, quest i
Jīva, living xii
Jīvatta, animation 21
Jñāna, knowledge xxi
Jujjhāhi, battle 230
Junnām, decayed 198
Jūratī, gets emaciated 122
Kadāsanaṇṇi, straw-mats 119
Kalala, embryo 278
Kalyāna, virtue 317
Kāma, desire 122, lust 211
Kāmakāmi, sensualist 122
Kamma-samārambha, indulging in activities of mind, speech and body 11
Kammavasanti, subsidence of kaṃma 136
Kāṇiyam, one-eyedness 272
Karma-samnyāsa, renunciation of action ii

- Karmavāda*, doctrine of reaping the fruits of one's actions xii, 9
- Karma-yoga*, disciplined performance of action ii
- Karvaṭaṇ*, a village at the foot of a mountain 356
- Kaṭṭhām*, wood 198
- Kāyakeśa*, enduring physical hardships 345
- ↓ Kāyotsarga, relaxation and renunciation of bodily activities 244
- Keyanaṇ*, sieve, 163
- Ko'ham*, who am I ? 9
- Khana*, moment xix
- Kheda* a village or town two miles long 356
- Khemam*, wholesome xiii
- Kheyagṇe*, one who knows the essence of things 153
- Khudda*, trivial 168
- Khujjatam*, hunch-backedness 103
- Khujjiyam*, hunch-backedness 272
- Kilesa*, tormentation 74
- Kinhe*, black 264
- Kivaṇa*, crippled pauper 99
- Kodha*, leprosy 272
- ↓ Kriyāvāda, doctrine that actions are the cause of bondage of soul 10, xii, actionism 389
- Kujjihe*, feel piqued 103
- Kumṭattam*, lameness 103
- Kuṇḍalinī*, vitality 30
- Kunīyam*, defect in hands 272
- Kusala*, person endowed with knowledge 144
- Lāghava*, attenuation 292
- Lāghaviya*, lightness xiii
- Lahubhūyagāmī*, moves unimpeded like a breeze 165
- Laṭṭhim*, stick 404
- Leśyā*, train of thoughts 349
- Logasaṃgam*, mammonism 137
- Logasāro*, essence of the world 209
- Logaviṇḍa*, subjugation of the world of passions 83
- Loka*, world of non-ascetic actions 11, universe 123
- Lokavāda*, doctrine of real existence of the world, xii, 9
- Loyasaṃjoyam*, worldly bondages 140
- Lūham*, coarse 236
- Lūpṭa*, stealing 90
- Maḍamba*, an isolated village 356
- Maddaviya*, modesty xiii
- Madhyastha*, maintaining equanimity in favourable and unfavourable circumstances 371
- Mahāvīhi*, great path 30
- Mahāvīrata*, great vows xiv
- Mahumehaṇam*, diabetes, 272
- Majjejjā*, should not feel elated 120
- Majjhattha*, unbiased attitude 253
- Māhana*, Brāhmaṇa, non-violent 401
- Mamāṇya*, acquisitiveness 136
- Mamda*, foolish person 95
- Mānana*, reverence 13 honour 32
- Māra*, death xii, 212,
- Matī*, instinct 136
- Mānāvādī*, believer in egotism 102

- Mārga*, path, xvi
Mayam, deliberated upon, 185
Mcchāvī, a sage 26
Moha, delusion xii, xvii
Mokṣa-mārga, path of emancipation xvi
Mona, knowledge (hence the word 'mum') 116
Moyana, liberation 32
Mūḍhabhāvam, senility 88
Mudrā, posture, 244
Mūhūrta, 48 minutes, 62
Mūlatthāna, (Samsāra), i.e., cycles of birth and death, mundane existence of the soul 85
Munda, completely shorn of hair on the head, (figuratively, shorn of all evils) 283
Muni, ascetic iv
Musāvāḍyāo, from false speech xvi
Mutti, faith xiii, xvii
Muyaccā, one completely indifferent to bodily adornments 195
Mūyam, dumbness 272
Nāe, leader, 140
Nāi, kith and kin 98
Nairyārika, capable of leading to liberation 289
Ṇāliyam (nālikā), a cudgel 404
Nānavam, established in knowledge xiii, 150
Nāni, a sage 168
Naraga-tirikkha, hell-animal xiii
Nigama, a city, 336
Nihe, vitiate 184
Nikkammadamsī, one who has attained self-realization, salvation, omniscience or non-action 161, 206
Nikkhve, forsake 184
Nippīlāe, mortify the flesh 201
Niraja, hell xii
Nirgrantha Order, the Order of the Unfettered ones or the Jaina Order 73
Nirjarā, shedding the karma 371
Nirodha, release from suffering xx
Nirūvana, discourse 269
Nirukti, the earliest commentary
Nisanne, has no regard for 164
Nissesam, complete xiii
Nivesana, persuasion xiii
Nivijjati, gets fed up 115
Nivvāna liberation xiii, state of spiritual peace xviii
Nivvattana, dispelling 94
Nivveyana detachment 226
Nivvinda, give a cold shoulder to 164
Niyama, self-control 104
Omoyariyam, light diet, 244
Oravāie, reincarnating 4
Oravāi ā, born spontaneously 61
Paḍiggaham, bowls 119
Paḍighāya, prevention 32
Paḍimoyae, disentangles 126
Paḍuppannā, of the present 183
Pagabbhai, becomes shameless 276
Pagadam, has committed 162
Pagamthe, abuse 284

- Pāṇaṁ*, in front 51
Palicchundiya, extirpate 206
Palucchanne, corrupted by the karma particles 216
Paliyantkara, one who has removed the veils 174
Pamokkha, deliverance from, freedom xviii
Pamatte, careless xiv
Pāna, breathing xii
Pānāvāyāo, from killing xvi
✓ Pandita-maiaṇa, suicide committed by conscious judgement 341
Pāṇipātra, one using his palms as utensils 392
Pannūna, perception, insight xxi, intellect 80, 234
Paṇṇavaṇṇite, enjoin xiii
Pantaṁ, tasteless 236
Pāpa, vice 317
Para, person having extra-sensory or transcendental knowledge 6
Pāiagāmino, those who transcend 96
Parairanāśātayan, not causing harm to others 306
Paramabodha, knowledge of the Supreme Reality 156
Paramacakkhū, Argus-eyed one 223
Paramappa, the supreme soul 263
Pariccāya, renunciation 133 abandonment 280
Pariggaha, acquisitiveness 104
Paḍighāya, prevention 13
Parihāyamāṇehim, premature degeneration 87
Pariyāṇiyavvā, comprehend and forswear 11
Parikkhā, critique 187
Parinivvāna, freedom from fear and suffering xviii feeling of happiness 63
Parimā, comprehension and renunciation 1, 136, 196
Paripaccamāṇe, writhing in unsatiated sexual desires 216
Parisrava, cause of the efflux of karmas 117
Parivaejjā, reprimand 89
Parivandana, praise 32
Parivājakas, one of the schools of ascetics who used to move about 321, ascetics belonging to heretical sects 37
Pariyaṭṭana, means of transaction, 86
Pāsaga, a seer 108, 121, 145, 185
Pāsaha (Skt Paśyata), independent perception or conception, 249, realize 205
Pāsati, knowing directly through perception or intuition xxi, perceives 27, 212
Pattana, a larger town 336
Pāvadyā, philosophers 194
Pāvagam, conducive to sinfulness 391
Pāvāyā, wise preceptors 196
Pavajjā, initiation into ascetic life 330
Pavīlae, subdue mind and senses 201
Pavvahie, feels distress 16, vanquished 113
Pavuccai, deserves 51
Pecca, supra-mundane power 99

Pehāe, having looked at xxiv
Pejja, lust xvii
Pharusiyam, pain 151
Phāsām, various kinds of miseries and malodies 199
Phāsapannāna, tactile perception xxi
Phusamiva, as a mere dew-drop 212
Piḍhasappim, crippledness 272
Potaja, a being born complete as a young one without an enveloping membrane 61
Prabuddha, enlightened 249
Prajñā, penetrating wisdom xvii
Prajñāpanā, prophetic injunctions viii
Prānātipāta, sin of violence 18
Pratisamdhi, rebirth xix
Pratyabhyññā, a logical conclusion based on the recognition of the past object with the present one 9
Piṭṭhābhyaṇāvarana-kasāya, a type of passion 134
Pratyekabuddha, suddenly enlightened by an impulse 331
Pratyutpanna, instantaneously capable of checking the influx of karma-particles 289
Prāyopagamana, fasting unto death 364
Puḍhaviḍḍa, earth-beings 16
Puḍho, diverse 199, 220
Puṇṇa, the haves 142
Purakkāra, dominant idea xiii
Pūrvas, the earlier sacred books 249

Raddhi, grandeur 277
Rāga, attachment 293
Rājadhānī, a capital 356
Rasa, delicacies 277
Rasapannāna, gustatory perception xxi, 93
Rāyaṇsī, suffering from Tuberculosis 272
Rūpa, sensual objects and body 221, 232
Rūvasamdhi, meeting point of matter and spirit xix
Sabalattam, variegatedness 103
Sacca, truth xv, 172, 252
Sacitta, animate 36
Sadda, sound 153
Saddhi, one who reposes faith in someone or something 176
Sādhaka, an aspirant exerting himself in asceticism 7
Sādhana, the path prescribed for self-realization iii, 7
Sādharmika, one belonging to the same faith 314
Sādhu, ascetic 317
Sagadabbhu, smash his own (karmas) 174
Sāgarīyam, sex 214
Sāhanā (Skt. Sādhana) practice 14
Sahapamāṇam, owing to his infatuation 103
Śaileśī stage, whose mind is rendered as calm and immobile as a mountain 241
Samādhi, meditation xvii, absolute equipoise 214
Samādhi-marana, death sublime 355

Samannāgaya, illumined with truth 80

Samanujān'jā, approve 49

Samanunna, one whose anujñā (qualification) is proper 253

Samappana, dedication of the aim 28

Samatta, equality 102

Samattadamsī, practising equanimity 139, 157

Sāmatam, leprosy 103

Samatva, equanimity (equality) 11

Samaya, time-point 241

Sāmbhogika, one with whom the exchange of things is permissible 314

Sambodha, admonition 79

Samdeha, equivocation 214

Samdhi, juncture of birth and death xix

Samdhi (gīanthi), a knot, a complicated problem 254

Samdhi, nature 166

Samdīna, land flooded with water at the tide 295

Samgha, the religious order 322

Samghadadamsino, wide-awake 207

Samyā-paiyyāye, one who has perfectly comprehended the truth 220

Samjamācāyana, practice of self-discipline 163

Samjatehum, self-disciplined 42

Samyñā, intuitive knowledge 4

Samyoga, connection xx

Samyogatthī, desirous of sensual pleasures 86

Samlehanā, conscious preparation for death 355

Sammācaritta, right ascetic discipline 201

Sammam, samyak, 234

Sammānāne, right knowledge 187

Sammātava, right austerities 195

Sammāñāe, the true doctrine 183

Sammucchinā, beings born by coagulation 61

Samsāra, world of recurrent transmigration 6, phenomenon of birth and death 214

Samseyayā, beings born out of sweat 61

Samsuddha, pure 289

Samthavo, contact 190

Sāmti, peace xiii

Samudaya, cause of suffering xx

Samvara, stoppage of the influx of kāma particles 14, 15

Samyag-cāritta, right conduct xvi

Samyag-darśana, right view xvi

Samyag-jñāna, right knowledge xvi

Sanna, notion xiii

Sannihāna (Skt Sanmīdhāna), storing or hoarding of food articles 333

Sanniveśa, a settlement of huts 356

Sapaiākrama, fast undertaken when the body is strong 368

Sapehāe, having comprehended xxiv

Sārae, wise 202

Sarvajñatā, omniscience xx

Sarvesanā, all rules of begging food and eating 287

Satipathāna, mindfulness ११४

Satta, sentient creature ११

Sattha, weapon of violence १४, 1

Sauca, freedom from avarice 305

Sāyam, pleasing, 194

Sajayam, perpetually 152

Scyā, seats and retreats 395

Siddhas, the perfect ones 357

Śīla, right conduct ११

Śīla sampreksā, the practice of the ethical code 230

Sihayam, elephantiasis 272

Sīosanujjam, shifting sands of life 147

Siyā (Skt Śrīta), taking guidance 250

So'ham, I am He

Sovahesu, for those who are acquisitive 184

Soyavja, purity, ११, freedom from avarice 305

Śramana, monk 38

Sthandila, ground bereft of green grass and living beings like insects etc 374

Styānarddhi, deep slumber-producing karma 25

Suakkhā (Skt Suākhjātah), well-propounded 289

Subbhim, flavoury 288

Suham, blissful ११

Suhasāyā, relishing pleasures ११, 105

Sukha, ease and comfort 277

Sukṛta, righteousness 317

Sotapannāna, auditory perception ११, 93

Sūnam, swelling 272

Sutta, the torpid 149

Sūtra, canonical text 242

Surasu muni, who commands the wealth of self-discipline 140

Svajam-sambuddha, self-enlightened 331

Suṇam, heard 185

Tahāgajā, the Tathāgatas, (the aspirants who strive for the attainment of the state of perfect equanimity) 169

Taijas śarīra, the electrical body 219

Tamhā, therefore 164

Tāna, protection 89

Tasakāya, mobile living beings 64

Tava, austerity 104

Tcukāya, fire-beings 41

Tigicchā, remedy of maladies 130, 275

Tippati, sheds tears 122

Tiriyam, sideways 51

Tiriyam bhitti, slanting wall, prākara 384

Tīrthankaras, the enlightened ones 140

Titikkhā, forbearance 304

Tivija, a person knowing three sciences 157

Trāṭaka, concentrating on a point with delated and unblinking eyes 124

Tuccha, the have-nots 142

Ubbhijā, beings-born by sprouting from the earth 61

Uccālayam, devoted to the

- Supreme Reality 171
Udaṇṇa, dropsy 272
Uddavattā, killing 90
Uddeso, guidance 108
Uddham, upwards 51
Uggaham, room 119
Ukkase, keep aloof from 375
Uḷada, a kind of pulse 404
Unnayaṇāne, being praised 238
Ūrdhvaśthāna, adopting posture in which legs are kept upwards and head downwards 244
Uttaravāde, golden principle 286
Uttāsaittā, torturing 90
Uttihāna, exertion, vigorous preparation for something 355
Uvagarana, clothes 289
Uvāhāna, excellence of righteousness 379
Uvarayasattha, a true abstainer from violence 174
Uvasagga, hardships 402
Uvasama, calmness xiii, pacification 305
Uvavāyaṇ, birth 164
Uvehamāṇo, indifferent to 153
Vadabhattaṇ, dwarfishness 103
Vamkāṇikeyā, tabernacle of deceit 190
Vamtā, disgorging 137, 174
Vaṇassaikāya, beings of vegetable-body 53
Vaṇikasamājāne, a hypocrite 52
Varuṇa, fame, form 233
Vasumam, rich in enlightenment 80
Vāukāya, beings of air-body 73
Vavahāra, conduct 137
Vaya, gate 135
Vedanābodha, experience of pain 21
Vedanīya karma, the karma which brings pain in its wake 221
Vehānasa, committing suicide by hanging 341
Veramaṇaṇ, desisting xvi
Verovarae, above enmity 152
Vevan, trembling 272
Veyāvaccapakappa, rules for service 347
Veyavam, established in Vedas xiii, in possession of scriptures 150
Viamtikāṇae, total annihilation of karma 349
Vidhūtakappa, well-versed in dhmma and firm in austerities xi, observing the dhuta code of conduct 170
Vidittā, comprehending 137
Vigatagehī, devoid of greed xxiii
Vigīṇca, forswears 176
Vigīṇca, abandon 113
Vihāyamarana, deliberately ending one's life by hanging 368
Vikṛti-parityāga, abandonment of rich food 370
Vihmṇpittā, pillaging 90
Vimoha, liberation xii
Vimokkha, emancipation 311
Vināyama, ethical code 79
Vinṇāyama, thoroughly understood 185

Viparināmadhammayam, undergoing various transformations 58

Vipparāmusanti, kill 211

Vippariyāsuei, becomes a victim of paradoxes 107

Vippasājæ, gratify 167

Virati, abstinence xiii, cessation from desires 305

Virehum, fortitude 42

Vīrya, energy xvii

Visanna, embogged in sensual pleasures 302

Vītarāga muni, one who is completely free from passions or attachment and aversion 241

Vitarka, killer of beings 302

Vivega, forswearing 26, rid-dance 241

Vivittajīvi, leading a life of recluse 162

Vivittovagarana, vast number of utensils 86

Vosire, abandon 376

Vīata, vow xvi

Vjāghāta-yukta, fast undertaken suddenly on account of some incident 368

SUBJECT INDEX

Abandonment

- of relatives 277-279
- of karma 280
- of clothes 289, 343, 350, 359
- of attenuation of the body 292
- of conceit 298
- of possessiveness 331
- of body 340
- of food 346, 369

Ācāra

- Meaning of 1
- Five kinds of 1
- and knowledge 1
- of the unattached one 137
- Acquisitiveness 223
- Renunciation of 133

Action

- Motives of 12-13
- Mahāvīra on 15
- Freedom from 96, 161, 206

Air-beings

- Animation and experience of pain 76
- forswearing of violence to 78

Āsrava (Influx of Karma particles)

- Meaning of xviii
- Cause of 10
- Consequence of 12
- explained 188-189

Asceticism xi

- Right 195, 201
- Two primary conditions for 201
- in solitariness by an immature ascetic 237
- Initiation into 330 ff

Ascetics

- Hypocritical 51
- Admonition to 79
- Behaviour of 138
- Richly-disciplined and poorly disciplined 139
- Manner of moving of 240

Attachment ix, 85-86

- to carnal pleasures 101
- to possessions 104-105
- Result of 107

Attachment and aversion

- Renunciation of iv

Āyāro

- its antiquity vii

Bhagavān Mahāvīra

- The Rambles of 381
- Seats and retreats of 395
- Endurance of Hardships 402
- Abandonment of Medication by 409
- Dietary routine of 411

Bondage ix, 103-104

- Libration from 140
- And Riddance 241

- Three methods of 124
- Meghakumāra*
remembering his past life 7
- Mobile beings* 61
- Violence to 64
- Forswearing of violence of 69
- Mortification of the flesh* vii
- Meaning of 203
- Mysticism* x
- Non-attachment* to food 117
to desire 112
- Non-Violence* viii, 322
- Basis for 10
- Monks' vow of 50
- The true doctrine 183
- Critique of 187
stated 192-194
based on equality 255
and treatment 275
- Omniscience*
No reference to xx
Vaguely suggested 175
- Passions*
Riddance of 174
and bondage 177-179
Realisation of 199
- Path of Vigilance* 218
- Perception (Paññāna)* xx1 compared to prajñā xx1
Knowledge and xx1
- Preaching Sermons* 142-145
- Preceptor*
Compared to lake 248
- Prophetic Injections (Panṇavanā)* xiii
- Remedy* 130
No use of 131-132
- Renunciation* x-x1
- Renunciation in the Gītā and the Āyāro* iii
- Samdhu* xix-xx 125, 166
- Self-dependence* 171
- Self-discipline* 164, 171,
Three stages of 201-202
- Place for 320
- Sensuality*
Evils of 110
- Service*
Rules for 347, 361
- Solitariness*
Contemplation of 352
and Separateness 197
- Soul* 257
The quest for 1, vii
in its Empirical and Transcendental Aspects ix
Existence of 3
Reincarnation of 4-5
Supreme 163
- Steadiness in ascetic life*
Seven steps leading to 229-230
- Stoppage of Influx* 10
The Gītā on 14-15
- Taste*
Eschewing 353
- Ten kinds of muṇḍa*
(stripped off the evils) 283
- Ten powers* 98-99
- The Gītā and Karman* 11
- The path of vitality (Kundalini)* 30
- Three sciences* 158
- Torpid and the Wide-awake*
149
- True Monk* 96-97
- Truth* 261
- Unbiased attitude* 253

